THE FASHIONABLE WOMAN'S NIGHTMARE: CAUGHT DOWN-TOWN IN A LAST YEAR'S MODEL!

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

IT is agreed among expert and seasoned observers of fashion's ever-changeful pageant, that never has the fitful dame rung so sudden, so radical, so violent, so complete a change in so short a stretch of time, as she has between last season and this.

Just take your month-old fashion bulletin as an aid to your memory and compare its pictures with what you may observe in St. Louis streets today.

Six weeks ago the streets were peopled with women mincing about in skirts that were generous if they measured 30 inches at the hem. And what have we today? The more fashionable among us striding along in skirts that measure four yards round!

Six weeks ago, low heels and the "debutante slouch" caused our skirts to pick up in a fold at the heels or else scrape the ground.

Today, "nine inches from the ground is the conventional length," announces the tailor or dressmaker, as she whacks away with her shears and we begin to feel like the old "lack-a-mercy-can-this-be-I?" lady in the "Mother Goose" book.

And the heels of our new boots, we know, will elevate our skirts to about twelve inches when we really are dressed up."

The Change in Hat Styles.

A SEASON ago hats couldn't be too small or too snug or set too low over our ears. Today what do we see? Little envelopes, note-paper size, of velvet, hung giddily over one corner of one's topknot. A month ago the thought of wide-brimmed hats would have caused us to shudder as at a ghost of the late deceased "Merry Widow" monstrosity.

Today the more wealthy and ambitious of us are striving to see how large a cart wheel we can balance on our heads. Sleeves which but a little while ago couldn't be too loose and floppy, this week are "set in" at the armhole and fit tight in old leg-o'-mutton fashion at the wrist. That's so shoulders may look narrower and skirts even wider than they are. For the same reason our stylest redingotes are cut with many seams above the waist to give one that narrow back effect.

And not only are skirts as wide as may be, but they are cut circular, mostly, so that they "stand out" and ripple generously when you walk. When of flimsy material, such as party frocks are made of, the skirts are built on tiers of wires. I believe they used to call them tilters! Last year harem trousers were advisable in the absence of petticoats. This year pantalettes are essential because of the voluminousness of one's petticoats.

Fashion's whims and vagaries usually can be depended upon as a ready and reliable subject for dissertation at the beginning of each succeeding season. But, My Goodness! this time the subject gets quite beyond the scope of many pages many times as large as this.

Fashion Periodicals Are Baffled.

SOME of the fashion periodicals issuing weekly and semi-monthly bulletins as they do in the mad race, seem to have given up the chase. There is a very sad reason why some of them have abandoned the publication.

Some of them cannot get the sketches they have been wont to rely upon from Paris since war times began. My sketches simply leave some of the authoritative fashion pictures at the stake, I will acknowledge, and yet they were made with absolute fidelity from life, as it is to be observed in St. Louis streets, at a social function or two and in St. Louis shops.

Yes, Paris fashion bulletins ceased some time ago. From Paris, to whose authority in humble obedience fashion once bowed down, not a command, not a suggestion, not a word, has come. And yet fashion has gone on presenting "new fads and fancies," right along, newer ones, more of them than before. What—what can be the answer to all this?

Can it be that as soon as Paris' back was turned, fashion threw off her yoke as that of a tyrannical despot?

This would seem to be the answer when we think how quickly the fetters of last season's skirts were cast off. Or can it be that Americans are but proving themselves capable of inventing fashions, if only they are allowed the freedom to do so?

Or can it be—and I think, in view of the chaotic state of affairs now in evidence, this latter answer may well be held in reserve—can it be that fashion, like any other ungoverned element, is on the rampage, about to run amuck without a guiding hand?

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Cotton Sale Suggestion.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

With profound pleasure I read in your paper: Buy a bale of cotton to help make the cotton planters' investment a profitable one. It really appears that one-half of the people are looking out for the interest of the other half. Is it an absolute necessity to dispose of the cotton crop in this manner? Does the production exceed the demand, or is it a fact that the planters have felt the fruits of exorbitant prices and cannot see their way clear to sell direct to the manufacturer for a reasonable profit? Eliminate the middle man and sell direct from plantation to manufacturer, shipper or consignee, pay freight the same as any other commodity. I believe there is enough cotton fabric and duck mills in this country to use the present cotton crop if sold to the mills at a reasonable price. These mills would manufacture cotton fabrics and cotton piece goods at a price that would be within the reach of all. I am sure there would be thousands of people buying cotton goods then that were unable to buy before on account of high prices on this commodity.

It may be a fact that on account of the European war exporting has entirely stopped and caused a condition making the supply greater than the demand. But speaking from a common sense standpoint I cannot see why the cause of such uneasiness. If the cotton planters cannot dispose of their crops let the Government supply them a warehouse gratis until the cotton starts moving again. The existing condition cannot last forever. Forget your greed for gold, think of the needs and pleasures of those good old American people right here in the states.

The New Sex Literature.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I wish to ask a few questions through your columns:

How much experience must one have to become eligible as a heart balm writer?

Does being disappointed or, in modern slang, stung, entitle one to condemn the whole opposite sex?

Why does the average sex article, thrown in the laps of two lovers, or husband and wife, end up in a row?

Will our future race disgracefully depend upon the unread?

Why do they preach mere duty instead of old-fashioned probity, doubt instead of trust, fear instead of faith, envy instead of admiration, antagonism instead of cohesion, and everything under the sun for a substitute to love?

I have here an article which advises a girl to doubt, lie to and marry a man who doubts her in the bargain. HERBERT BOYE, Fort Worth, Tex.

The County Unit Amendment.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

On Tuesday, Nov. 3, the voters will vote on about 15 amendments. The one which should not be overlooked by working people will be Amendment No. 10, or the county unit bill. If that bill passes, it will be the next thing to state-wide prohibition, and that means that not only the sale and manufacture of beer and liquors be prohibited, but that thousands of brewery workers and other trades which are enjoying union conditions, living wages and the shorter workday, will be added to the army of unemployed, which at the present time includes thousands of men owing to the unsettled conditions not only here but all over the world.

It is a proven fact that prohibition does not really prohibit, as people will get liquors in an illegal manner through blind tigers, bootlegging, express, mail orders and doctors' prescriptions. Then where will all the revenue come from which formerly came from the brewers and dramshops? Taxes would be raised, so the taxpayer raises the rents, and then the working class suffer again, as it increases the cost of living.

A certain manufacturer of shoes in the East, where they had an election on local option, induced his men, 1600 in number, to vote out the saloon, telling them if they did so they would have more money in their pockets. The men did as they were bid, and voted the town dry. After a while their wages were reduced 25 per cent, and when the men went out on strike that same proprietor told them that they were unreasonable, as they ought to have lots of money now.

Now this is not a matter of what ticket a man may vote; it is a matter of principle, and also a fight for personal liberty, of which every American should be proud. BERT LISEC.

Not to Be Neglected.

From the Columbus Journal.

We don't suppose it would do a particle of harm to sandwich in a little petition to the throne of grace for Mexico along with the more important ones.

LIGHT FOR WILLIAM ALDEN.

Senator William Alden Smith of Michigan complains that the proposed war tax bill is a "sectional measure." He says it will collect $40,000,000 from beer, and that "only 3.9 per cent of this will come from the South." He adds:

> It is little less than shameful that the appropriations under this administration have run so strongly to the South, while the sources of revenue have been so meager from that direction.

Senator Smith either doesn't know, or he forgets:

That for more than 40 years the agricultural South has been tariff-taxed to enrich Northern manufacturers, while enjoying the competitive blessings of almost wholly free trade in its farm products;

That of the Federal appropriations for rivers and harbors and public buildings, made during that period, the South has been given very much less than the 30 per cent to which its 30 per cent of the country's population entitled it;

That while paying 30 per cent of the $4,663,000,000 of Federal pensions drawn from the national treasury since the Civil War, the South has received less than 5 per cent of that total—this tiny portion being paid to Northern ex-soldiers resident in the South—and has at the same time borne upon its own shoulders, through state enactments, the heavy burden of pensions paid to veterans of the Confederate armies and to their surviving dependents;

That four-fifths of the emergency currency lately issued by the Government to relieve business stress has gone into the national banks of the Northern cities;

That the small sums this year appropriated to improve Southern harbors are meant to, and will, facilitate the use of the Panama Canal route to South America and the Orient by Northern and Eastern manufacturers and merchants; and, finally,

That while the South makes only 4 or 5 per cent of the beer which will bear the war tax, the South consumes its full 30 per cent of the American product, and will therefore pay—the consumer always pays—its full 30 per cent of the tax.

We sometimes suspect that Senator Smith does not adequately represent the great State of Michigan. In this instance it looks as if he were making a feeble effort to wave the moldy old bloody shirt for political effect.

Less than 25 per cent of Detroit's profit on automobiles sold in the South this year will be more than double Michigan's war tax on beer.

St. Louis makes a little beer, too, but St. Louis isn't grumbling at the South on that account. St. Louis is heading a national movement to help the South save as much as it can from the smash in cotton. And we have no doubt Detroit's real leaders will give a lift on that job.

COMPLETE THE BRIDGE.

The adoption of the Southern Traction repeal bill by the Council and the pledge of a large majority of the House to vote for repeal disposes of the chief menace to the success of the bridge-completion campaign.

As the Post-Dispatch has said the Southern Traction issue is small beside the issue of bridge completion. All issues connected with the bridge are subordinate to the one paramount issue of removing the unfinished bridge reproach and putting the bridge to work.

Let us concentrate on bridge completion. Let every St. Louisan join hands in this work. Let us see to it that no effort is spared to register an overwhelming vote for the bridge bonds.

The building of the bridge will mark a great step forward.

GOING AFTER THE CANAL'S "GOAT"

Transcontinental railroads are asking the Interstate Commerce Commission to let them lower freight rates 10 to 50 per cent on various commodities between Atlantic and Pacific coasts, so that they may hold traffic now being routed via the Panama Canal.

They wish, also, to be allowed to raise rates, between intermediate points, sufficiently to make up for the cut on coast to coast business.

In a word, they wish to make local traffic bear the cost of a campaign to "put the canal out of business," just as they put the big rivers and a number of costly intrastate and interstate canals out of business years ago.

It ought not to be necessary for intermediate states and cities to send agents to Chicago, the seat of the hearing, to protest against being victimized in this way.

A mere statement of the railroads' impudent proposition ought to procure its prompt rejection.

THE RANDOLPH COUNTY COON CLUB.

If type could shout we could more fitly express enthusiasm over our formal invitation from the Randolph County Coon Club to come up to the primeval forests around Moberly and help tree some of the sportive fauna thereabouts on the 27th, 28th and 29th inst., which will be in the dark of the moon.

This irresistible summons is made even more alluring by the statement that the club's hounds trace their pedigrees back to the days of Dan'l Boone. We assume likewise the coons are of that exclusive patrician lineage associated with Davy Crockett. The flavor of age and consequent respectability, we infer, characterizes every factor of the entertainment; the fragrance of the wood sweetens the ruddy nectar with which hospitality ministers to the hunter's temporal wants. Need we intimate more than that Hon. John Curry will officiate as Heap Big Medicine Man, with Hamp Rothwell and Hank Davidson as Commissaries?

Except grave-robbing, in which we have never participated, there is no funerary and nocturnal sport of rarer excitement than coon hunting—in the dark of the moon, on a middling damp night, with a fair chance of wetting the feet pursuing the quarry through weird and marshy places. And none exceeds in soul afflatus the triumphs of treeing, to the music of the dogs; or surpasses in uplift that glowing interval when hunters sit on a fallen log to refresh the inner and spiritual man—while they watch a hired negro and a small boy chop down the tree where perches the militant mammal poised for that crashing moment when he shall precipitate pandemonium and blue blazes amid the impatient pack. Dear Reader, have you never seen, or heard, a healthy adult coon light among a mess of hounds?

Coon hunting, varied with by-play after the 'possum, is but one more of those pioneer pastimes in which Missouri occupies a proud preeminence. An institution, no less than fox-hunting, which tends to the perpetuation of the Missouri dawg in its purest strain, must appeal to every true patriot, while coon and 'possum perhaps better deserve the places of honor upon our imperial seal than the bears themselves. An institution, indeed, which makes possible the preservation and preparation of that Olympian combination with sweet potatoes in the pan commands the esteem of mankind everywhere, with a special appeal to our ablest politicians, in Moberly or in Washington, aye statesmen and even Presidents.

Hence our renewed expressions of respect to the Randolph County Coon Club, an organization of far-reaching influence for democracy, good fellowship, human brotherhood and world peace.

A NATIONAL DEFENSE COMMISSION.

"The United States is totally unprepared for war, defensive or offensive, against a real Power," declared Congressman A. P. Gardner.

Let us see what ground there is for his alarmist charges. In the year before the opening of the European war our army had the benefit of a $94,266,145 appropriation, a trifle more than half as much as the sum on which Germany had been supporting the greatest army in the world except Russia's. Our navy cost us that year $140,800,643, while Germany's rather efficient navy cost her $111,300,000 and France's $119,571,400. In addition to national appropriations our states spend several millions on militia and naval reserves.

If we are not getting our money's worth, let us know it. The weakness in actual war usually attributed to our inexperienced volunteer forces may really be traced back to our regular establishment. If the staff officers of that regular establishment had selected proper camp grounds, if its medical corps had dictated proper sanitary policies, and if its commissary department had supplied proper foods, many distressing things in our Spanish War would have been avoided. What we are spending should provide a highly efficient nucleus of defense and all the facilities enabling it to be rapidly expanded and adequately officered in case of need.

If these are not being provided, the country should know it. Give us the facts.

A HOME HINT FOR CULBERSON.

Senator Reed's amendments restoring receivership and specific prison penalties to the Clayton anti-trust law have been introduced, but will not be enacted at this session. They will be considered and should pass at the winter session.

Meantime, Senator Culberson of Texas, who, as chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, supervised the "drawing of the teeth," will, we presume, read with mingled emotions the news that the Texas State Senate has by formal resolution praised Senator Reed for opposing the mutilation of the measure by Culberson and his committee associates.

CIVIC CRIMES AND WAR.

King's Counsel Robert Wallace at the London Sessions congratulated the grand jury on a 40 per cent reduction in crime since the breaking out of the war.

This is, however, a wartime experience not peculiar to London. It was the subject of much comment during our war with Spain. St. Louis police reporters felt that their work was reduced by more than half. Chicago's one-a-day murder record was decreased to one or two a month. Diminished offenses outside the department gave New York's Tammany force more time to concoct new graft schemes, for graft particularly flourishes during war, being one of the crimes in which reductions are seldom effected.

This phase of war's psychology is most interesting. It is one of the proofs that much common law crime is due to circumstance and impulse. War makes profound impressions. It arouses all-absorbing interests. It jars people out of old habits of thought and action. It creates new motives and incentives, not known in times of peace.

THE SIN OF MIS-TRANSLATION.

Parallel columns in Friday's Post-Dispatch contained a spirited literary duel over the war between Romaine Rolland, French author, perhaps destined to eternal fame because of his Jean Christophe, and Gerhart Hauptmann, the celebrated German author. Formerly boon companions in the world of art, these two master writers are estranged in the cataclysm that has overwhelmed Europe.

Rolland's challenge to Hauptmann, in the one column, is a masterpiece of literary polemics. Hauptmann's reply is a rough, disjointed, unpleasing piece of work. It is difficult to believe that the translator caught even the faintest flicker of inspiration from the German writer's genius.

Investigation seems to indicate that whereas the Rolland translation was done by a literary man at the behest of an important American magazine, Hauptmann's translation was done by order of the German diplomatic corps in the United States. It is to be hoped that hereafter the Teutonic faithfulness to detail will make some provision for the artistic sense, so that German masterpieces in the future will not necessarily suffer in contrast with French masterpieces that are not flattened beneath the unemotional iron of officialdom.

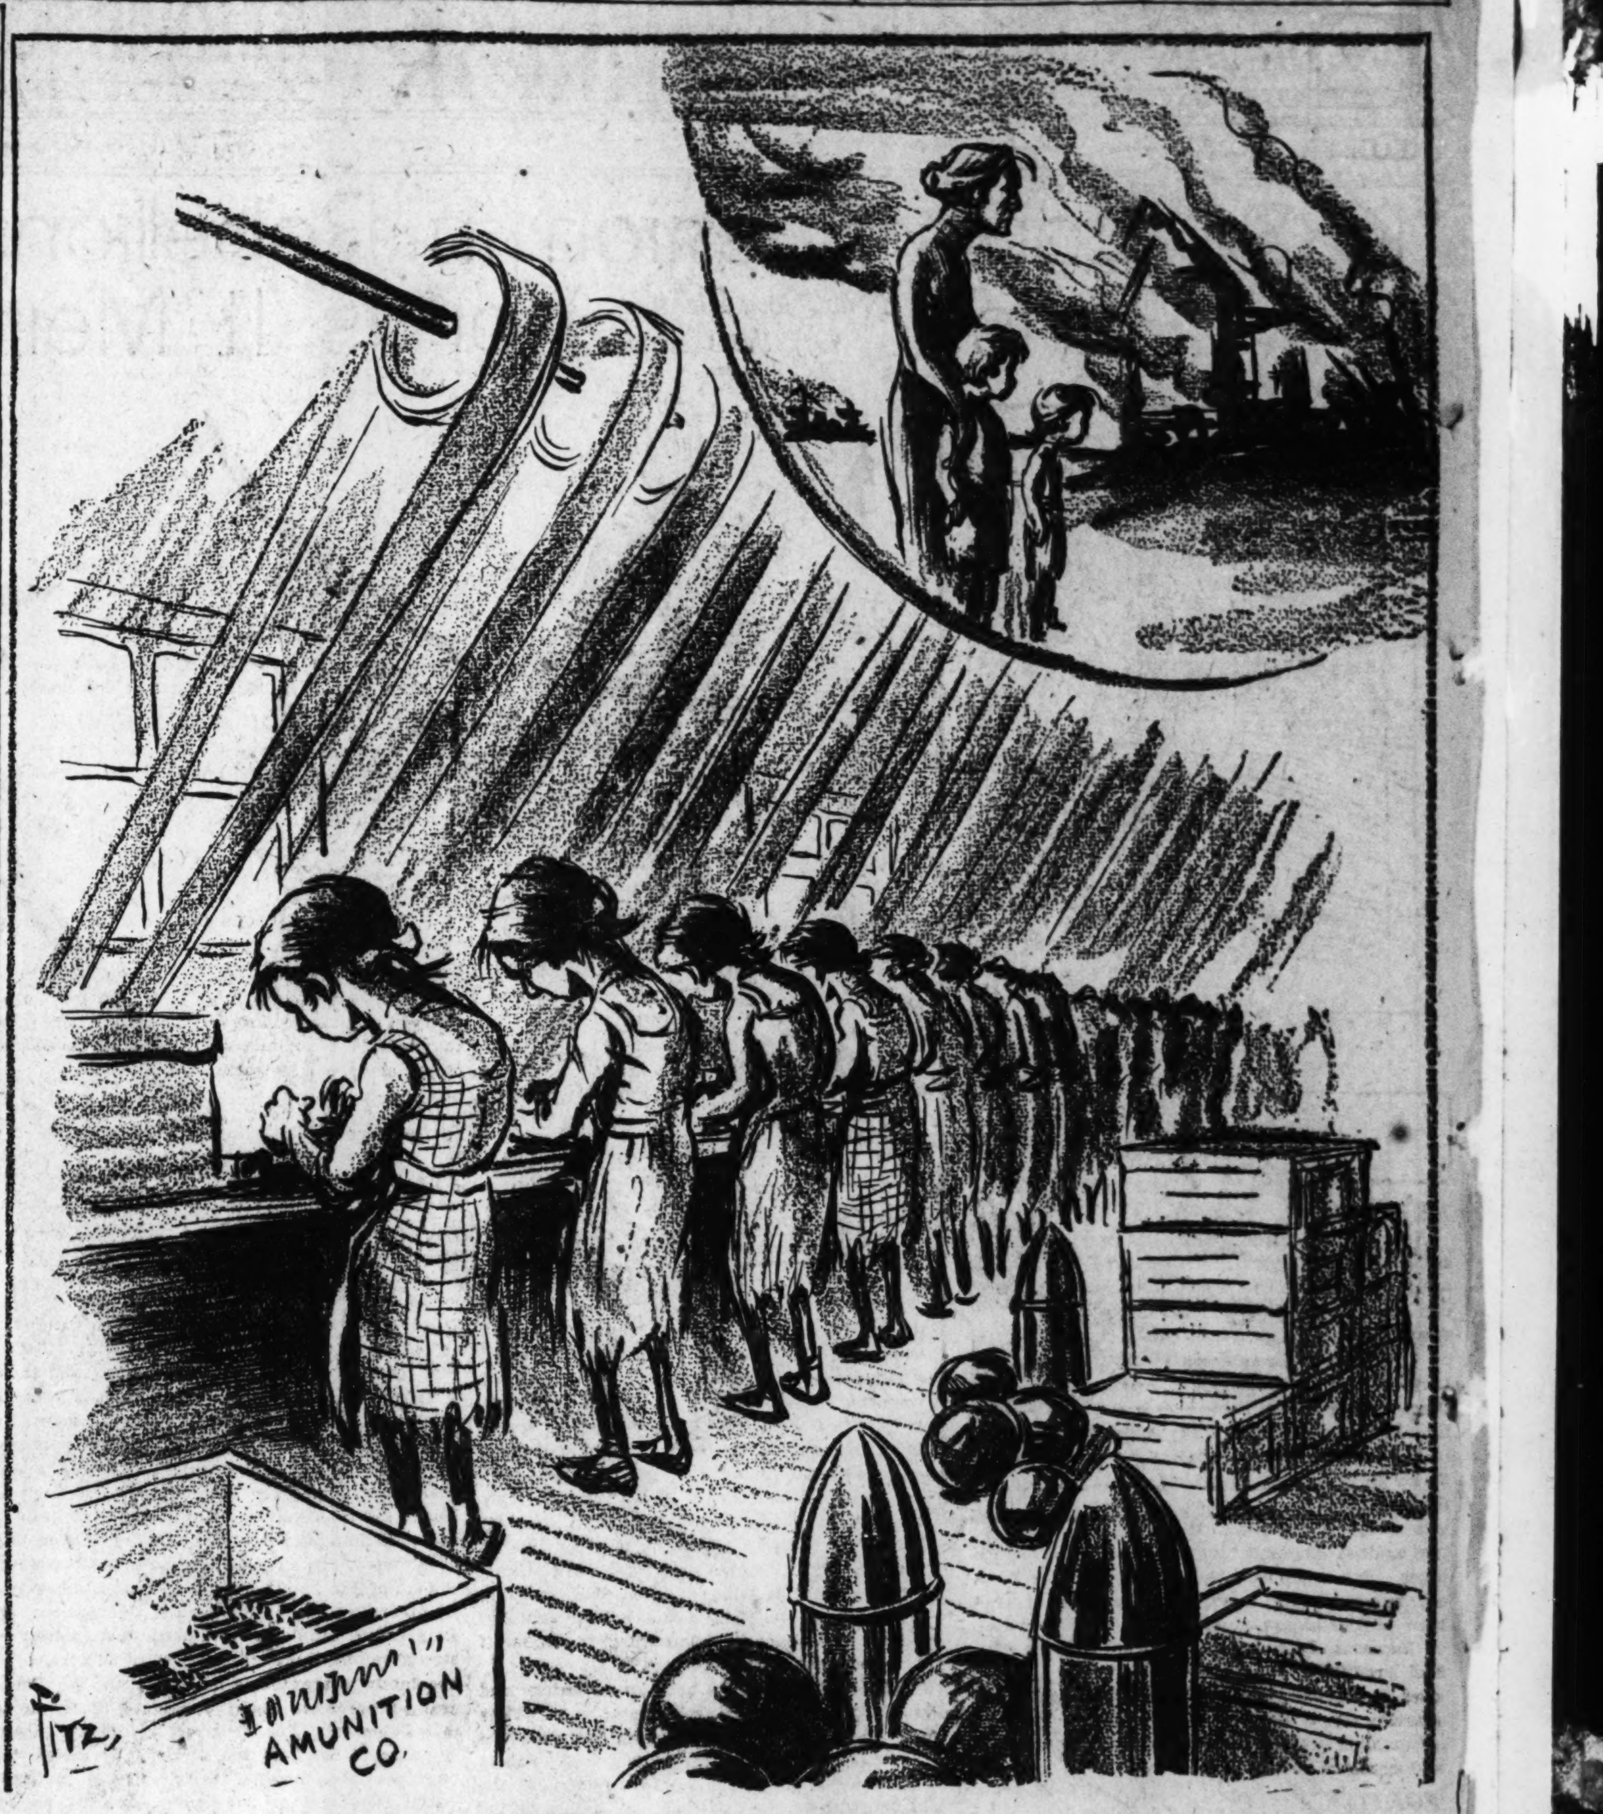
ENTER PORTUGAL.

Portugal's pact with Great Britain requires her to supply 10,000 soldiers. Not many, added to an Anglo-Irish-Scotch-French-Belgian-Indian-African-Canadian-Australian army estimated at more than 1,500,000 men; but summoned, no doubt, in acknowledgment of the classic truth that "every little bit added to what you have got makes just a little bit more."

Portugal, least powerful of European nations in our time, has made great history. Brazil, largest and most populous of South American republics, is Portugal's daughter, and speaks the language of the Portuguese motherland. Before Columbus, Portuguese navigators were among the most daring on the globe.

Portugal is the youngest of the European republics, a seedbed of radical idealism, and, in its present status, a challenge to the institutions of hereditary monarchy and social caste.



ILLINOIS ORPHAN FACTORY.

JUST A MINUTE.

THE READER'S WAR GUIDE.

The desperate efforts of the Germans to get back on the front page have done a great deal to enliven the paper. That appearance of having in it exactly what has been in it for several days past has given way to a bright cast of newsiness, and the paper is fortunately selling again. It is impossible to deceive the people in this respect. They can tell at a glance whether there is anything happening or if it is no more than something warmed over from the last excitement. Indeed, the newsboys' voices are an excellent index to what is in the paper. If there is something new, their voices are eager and shrill, and if there isn't they cry their papers in the meek and apologetic manner of one who is practicing some deception. Therefore, when the Germans gave up trying to cross back on the first page, that movement having been definitely checked, and attempted to send their right wing around the top of the page, the paper recovered its vim and vigor. It is interesting to observe the Germans engaged in one of these flanking movements. They first sail their aeroplanes over the top of the page, and then throw out the cavalry screen which is to scout on ahead of the artillery and infantry. It is a beautiful sight, and even if it doesn't get anywhere, as is usually the case, it is still worth while for being as inspiring a spectacle as man ever saw. We have seen the Germans try to cross at the top of the second page about 20 times, and we have seen the allies try to cross over from the front page at that point about as many. If anything, we believe they are both improving at it all the time up to the point where the two forces meet. Beyond that neither side makes any headway at all. It looks to us as if these movements were a mere waste of men, but the opposing Generals seem to think not. The Weather Bird says such maneuvers all bear a certain relation to one another in the book, and that neither commander has any choice in the matter. That is, in this case, they must go on doing what they are doing until it succeeds or is else proven unscientific and the book is revised. Thus, addressing his army, the General says: "Soldiers, we stand this morning upon no such historic spot as inspired the armies of other and less scientific days, but upon Page 44, which is a much sounder position. Looking from Page 44 to Page 45, we see what is before us, and looking back to Page 43 we see what is behind us. Is it not an inspiration, my soldiers? Does it not render us all determined to see Page 46, and so on to the back of the book? The development of 40 centuries of warfare is set down before us. Let us, therefore, go bravely to meet the foe, losing the battle if needs must be, but certain of never losing the place. Page 44!"

The Austrians continue coming up from the rear of the paper, and they have chased all the Russians off of Page 4. Nobody in the papers seems able to account for the sudden weakness of the Russians. They run now at the drop of a hat, and that boldness which characterized them in the first weeks of the war is singularly missing. The Weather Bird says the Austrians captured it. A keen student of war, he says armies capture one another's valor exactly as they take one another's stores. He says the Russians got an absurd notion that nothing could withstand them, and were careless about guarding their valor nights, with the result that the Austrians made away with it. However that may be, it is certain that the Austrians, who, formerly had none of their own, now have an abundance of it. They have not lost a battle in six days, and have chased all the Rusisans off the fourth page.

THE BRITISH COMMANDMENTS.

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—Following the revelation of what the Germans intend doing with France if the Kaiser wins the war, the plans of Britain with respect to Germany have just come to light.

1. Germany must give up all its sea coast to the allies and become an inland country.
2. The German navy will be divided equally among the allies.
3. Manufacturing must cease in Germany, and all German manufacturing plants must be moved to England.
4. All German colonies must be divided between England and France.
5. Germany must pay England's national debt.
6. All German trade in whatsoever part of the world must be turned over to England forever.
7. Belgium must be given German territory equal to the present area of Belgium, and everybody now living in Belgium must be paid by Germany for life the sum of $2 a week.
8. The Kaiser and the leaders of the German war party must go to the Thousand Islands and take an island apiece.
9. Germany must pay the expense of maintaining adequate armies of defense in Holland and Belgium, but may not have an army of her own.
10. All arms, ordnance and ammunition in Germany, all commercial drummers, all chemists, scientists and inventors, must be turned over to England at the close of the war.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

L. V. G.—Use the warm water before pressing the blackheads out.

FORMER.—Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas are the states having guaranty banks.

WILLIE.—No premium on 1845 cent. Your other "cent" is not a cent; it is a Modern Woodmen check.

YOURS TRULY.—You may begin your letter "Dear Sir:" Simply state that you wish to be employed again and that you would do your best to serve him well and faithfully.

LADY.—Someone advises, for superfluous hair removal, an Indian razor, which is a piece of open coil spring about an inch long made of square steel wire much like some seen in window shade rollers. It is worked with the thumb and first finger. The hairs are pinched with it and pulled out by the roots. After the first two or three times it doesn't hurt and they finally quit growing entirely. No marks are left.

W. S.—Course in stenography, 6 months. The business colleges use various forms of the Pitman system of stenography. The present systems are an outgrowth of the Pitman. The Graham system is excellent, but requires a very good memory. It may be taken up after one of the other systems has been learned if the student fears it may be too difficult for a beginner. Success in stenography, as in other callings, depends upon the person.

MISS C. W. W.—Linen shower: Invitations are sent to the mutual friends of the bride and hostess for a luncheon or afternoon tea, explaining the object of the little function, and requesting that each guest shall bring some trifle in linen, kitchen furnishings or whatever it is designed to give. The notes should be so worded as to leave the recipients free to bring the merest bit of a gift or none at all, since they may have other plans for their offerings to the bride. No inkling of the purpose of the hostess must reach the guest of honor, who is invited half an hour later than the rest, to give time for the arrangement of the gifts upon a flower-bedecked table, accompanied by the cards of the givers, who receive their thanks at sight of the bride's surprise and pleasure. Dainty bits of linen have been popular as gifts—centerpieces, doilies, buffet covers, tray-cloths; and kitchen furnishings, which take on quite an air of elegance when tied with ribbons or filled with flowers or bonbons.

PUPIL.—Horatius Cocles is a legendary hero of ancient Rome. With two companions he defended the Sublician bridge against Lars Porsena and the whole army of the Etruscans, while the Romans cut down the bridge behind. Then Horatius threw himself into the Tiber and swam in safety to shore. A statue was erected in his honor in the temple of Vulcan, and he received as much land as he could plow around in a single day. According to another version, Horatius alone defended the bridge and was drowned in the Tiber. There is an obvious resemblance between the legend of Horatius Cocles and that of the Horatii and Curiatii. In both cases three Romans come forward as the champions of Rome at a critical moment of her fortunes, and only one successfully holds his ground. In the one case, the locality is the land frontier, in the other, the boundary stream of Roman territory. E. Pais finds the origin of the story in the worship of Vulcan, and identifies Cocles (the "one-eyed") with one of the Cyclopes, who in mythology were connected with Hephaestus, and later with Vulcan. He concludes that the supposed statue of Cocles was really that of Vulcan, who, as one of the most ancient Roman divinities and, in fact, the protecting deity of the state, would naturally be confounded with the hero who saved it by holding the bridge against the invaders. He suggests that legend arose from some religious ceremony, possibly the practice of throwing the stuffed figures called Argei into the Tiber from the Pons Sublicius on the ides of May. The conspicuous part played in Roman history by members of the Horatian family, who were connected with the worship of Jupiter Vulcanus, will explain the attribution of the name Horatius to Vulcan-Cocles.

JOHNSTON.—Austria-Hungary military service is obligatory, beginning Ja. 1 after age of 20 and lasts 12 years with certain provisions as to active service and reserves. In war all citizens between 19 and 41 years are subject to call. In France every man not declared unfit for military service must, on reaching 20, serve 3 years in active army, 11 years in reserve, with 2 trainings of one month each, and 6 years in territorial reserve. In Germany, military service is obligatory for all males from 20 to 40 years, including 7 years in standing army, 12 years in landwehr and 12 years in what is called the depot reserve. Military service in Russia begins at 20 and lasts till 44. In Italy it begins at 20 and lasts till 40, either in active service or reserves. In all countries above named military service is obligatory and evasion or escape is almost impossible. Service in British army is purely voluntary, term of enlistment being 12 years, of which 3, 5 or 9 may be served in the reserve. A man has his choice of enlisting for 21 years, which entitles him to a pension at the end of the term. What is called in England the territorial reserve corresponds to our militia and is intended primarily for home defense. (For World Almanac try writing "The World," New York.)

COTTER.—It was long customary to speak of the potato as a native of mountainous districts of tropical and subtropical America; but it has never been clearly determined where it is really indigenous, though it is known that the potato was used as a food in America long before the advent of Europeans, and was probably indigenous from Chile to Mexico. It was taken from Peru to Spain, and thence into the Netherlands, Burgundy and other parts of Europe early in the sixteenth century. In 1563 or 1565 it was carried from Virginia to Ireland by Sir John Hawkins and Sir Francis Drake introduced it into England in 1565. Its importance as a vegetable was not recognized, however, until the time of Sir Walter Raleigh, who cultivated it on a considerable scale on his estates in the County of Cork, Ireland. Through the exertions of Raleigh it was developed in quality and popularized as food to such an extent in Ireland that its cultivation spread into England, where it became known as the "Irish potato." The potato mentioned by early English writers before the seventeenth century was the same as the Spanish batatas, or sweet potatoes. The first statue to the potato was erected in Offenburg, Germany. The upper part consists of a statue to Sir Francis Drake, and the pedestal is draped with garlands of the potato vine, with full-grown potatoes attached. On one side of the pedestal is Sir Francis Drake's name, the inscription on the second side explains what a blessing the potato has been to mankind, the third side bears the name of Andrew Frederick of Strasburg, who gave the statue to the city, and on the fourth side are the names of the erectors. A similar statue is placed in the town of Mura. (It has been asserted that neither Raleigh nor Drake had anything to do with the introduction of the potato.)

Meaning of Antwerp's Fall

FEW MILITARY ADVANTAGES.

New York Tribune: In a military sense the advantages gained by the reduction of Antwerp are relatively unimportant. The investing army can now be used in operations further to the west, and all danger of an attack from the rear on the German line of communications through Liege to Aix-la-Chapelle has been removed. But these results are of secondary value. As a base for naval operations Antwerp is useless. The outlet to the sea by the Scheldt River is through Dutch territory, and Germany has, moreover, no means at present of getting any part of her fleet into Antwerp. As a station for Zeppelins mobilizing against England Antwerp has some advantages. But a Zeppelin base there would be more exposed to British aeroplane attacks than is a base at Dusseldorf or Cologne. The occupation of Brussels, Belgium's capital and largest city, had practically no military effect. The taking over of Antwerp, after an evacuation, will be of scarcely any greater value in helping Germany to accomplish her primary purpose of overrunning and crushing France.

FORTIFICATIONS USELESS.

New York Evening Post: The appalling celerity of the fall of Antwerp shows, like Namur, that the Germans cannot be held back by mere fortifications. Even Baedeker contains the statement that Antwerp is one of the strongest of European fortifications, rebuilt with all possible skill and endless expense as a safe retreat for the Belgian army if the nation's neutrality should be violated. Now this is a legend; the Germans have smashed their way through with irresistible force in a manner unparalleled in military history, and poor, innocent Belgium sees another violated and breached city in the hands of the enemy. If this would only end Belgian loss and suffering, there might be a little consolation in it. But Ghent, Ostend and Calais may be the next to fall; and when the allies attempt to drive out the Germans, suffering and death will still come to the Belgians.

MOTIVES FOR CAPTURE.

Chicago Tribune: As to the military consequences of the capture of Antwerp, it is foolish to prophesy. The talk of Antwerp as a base against England is exaggerated. Napoleon is quoted as calling Antwerp a pistol at the head of England. But it was a pistol that he could not discharge. Germany had a base for operations against England, but she will not be able to use it until the British fleet is beaten. Zeppelin raids will count for little except to rouse British war feeling still more and increase the rate of enlistment.

The main strategic motives for the determined attack upon Antwerp were based upon the fact that it was a danger to the German communications and the fact that itse existence on the flank or rear of the German advance necessitated withholding a large force from the main battle line.

THE MENACE TO HOLLAND.

Cincinnati Enquirer: Because Antwerp is on the Scheldt and because navigation by it must be through Holland there comes the suggestion that the conquering Germans will not avail themselves of its waters for the coming and going of their great ships of war, transports and deadly submarines in making Antwerp one of their bases of operations against England; that they would not violate the territory of Holland, but would make of Ostend, in conquered and ruined Belgium, their principal base against England by sea and air.

Belgium is now practically a German possession. Why not Holland? There have been tremendous wars to maintain "balance of power." Here we have one to the last ditch and the bitter end, with each side proposing control of land and sea, so there should be no surprise if the side finally conquering should change some boundary lines and wipe some countries off the map.

FATE OF FORTIFIED CITIES.

Washington Times: The fall of Antwerp is tremendously significant for two reasons. First, the ease with which it was accomplished emphasizes the impression created by the affairs of Liege, Namur and Maubeuge, that there are no fortified cities in Europe that may be considered even reasonably secure against capture if once they are invested by the Germans. No reliance may be placed in defensive works. Paris is supposed to be the most powerfully fortified city on the Continent; but then, Antwerp was regarded as the second in strength, and it fell in a period so short that it is counted in days, where the allies had pretended to believe it could hold out for months. The failure of the allies to defend their fortified cities is, however, offset somewhat by the fact that in the open field they have given excellent accounts of themselves. The kind of artillery that wrecks the great turreted forts and reinforced concrete works of a city, does not lend itself so well to attack on a great line of infantry stretched along a hundred miles of fighting front. In this kind of open-field fighting, by all accounts, the French and British artillery, especially the French, is accounted the equal if not the superior to the German.

Thus the Germans have both an advantage and a certain weakness in their monster guns. They are able to capture cities; but to capture cities in the enemy's country, while army of the enemy escapes and remains active and effective in the field, is a poor success. The fate of fortified cities is decided after all in the open field. Every hostile city that is taken, and that is required to be garrisoned, detracts to that extent from the mobility and the independence of the army in the field.

A Lincoln Poem

LINCOLN WALKS AT MIDNIGHT.
(Written at Springfield, Illinois.)

It is portentous, and a thing of state
That here at midnight, in our little town,
A mourning figure walks, and will not rest
Near the old courthouse, pacing up and down.

Or by his homestead, or the shadowed yards,
He lingers where his children used to play,
Or through the market, on the well-worn stones
He stalks until the dawn stars burn away.

A famous high-top hat and plain worn shawl
Make him the quaint great figure that men love,
The prairie lawyer, master of us all.

He cannot sleep upon his hillside now.
He is among us, as in time before!
And we who toss and lie awake for long
Breathe deep, and start, to see him pass the door.

His head is bowed. He thinks on men and Kings.
Yea, when the sick world cries, how can he sleep?
Too many peasants fight, they know not why,
Too many homesteads in black terror weep.

The sins of all the war lords burn his heart.
He sees the dreadnaughts scouring every main.
He carries on his shawl-wrapt shoulders now
The bitterness, the folly and the pain.

He cannot rest until a spirit-dawn
Shall come—the thinking hope of Europe free;
The league of sober folk, the Workers' Earth
Bringing long peace to Cornland, Alp and Sea.

It breaks his heart that Kings must murder still,
That all his hours of travail here for men
Seem yet in vain. And who will bring white peace
That he may sleep upon his hill again?

The Week's Progress in Politics

SULLIVAN vs. ROBINS.

Springfield Republican: Roger Sullivan's candidacy for United States Senator from Illinois is getting precious little aid from Democrats outside the State. Secretary Bryan refuses to make speeches in Illinois on his Western tour. Senator Owen of Oklahoma, a prominent Democrat and president of the Popular Government League, has written a letter denouncing Sullivan and advocating the support by Illinois Democrats of Raymond Robins, the Progressive candidate. Mr. Robins well deserves Democratic aid. What Progressives have done in Pennsylvania in supporting a Democrat against Penrose, the Democrats can do in Illinois in supporting a Progressive against Sullivan. Penrose and Sullivan are on the same level in political practices and ideals.

PENROSE STOOD FOR LORIMER.

Philadelphia Ledger: William Lorimer, stripped of his toga by vote of the Senate, is under indictment for misapplication of bank funds, lending money on unsecured notes and to officers of the bank, and for wildcat financiering.

The news is important to Pennsylvanians, because Lorimer is the man for whom Penrose stood sponsor in Washington and whose cause he championed in the face of the nation.

Some men are loved for the enemies they make and others are despised for the friends they have. Sympathy is an index to character, and the things for which a man will fight are a revelation of the standards he holds.

PROGRESSIVE CHANCES.

New York Evening Post: Taking the country as a whole, what are the chances of the Progressives in the senatorial contests this fall? In 21 of the 32 states holding elections they have, according to the latest tabulation, candidates, while seven of the remaining 11 are Southern states, in which not even the Republicans have thought it worth while to name men. The outlook cannot be called bright in any quarter. Although the Pennsylvania Progressives are maintaining that a vote for Palmer is a vote for Penrose, and those of Illinois that a vote for Sherman is a vote for Sullivan, the independents in these states will be well advised to vote for the old party opponents of the two bosses. They inevitably have the best chance of winning. In California, Francis J. Heney has a strong following, but he can scarcely do more than so split the old Republican vote as to elect the Democratic nominee, ex-Mayor Phelan of San Francisco. In a dozen other states, as Colorado, Iowa, Indiana and Connecticut, the Progressive candidacy is looked upon merely as strengthening Democratic hopes of success, or as absolutely guaranteeing it. In Utah, the Democratic-Progressive fusion candidate, J. H. Moyle, is a Democrat. The Progressives are undoubtedly proud of the fact that in so many states they have been able to bring their party into the field; but it is altogether improbable that the present party alignment—52 Democrats to 43 Republicans—will be altered by the choice of Progressive Senators.

BRYAN'S STRAIGHT TICKET PLEA.

Indianapolis Star: The trouble with Mr. Bryan's plea for election of the whole Democratic ticket as an indorsement of Woodrow Wilson is that it proves too much.

It is perfectly true that if Shively is beaten the opposition leaders and newspapers will claim a rebuke for the Democratic administration, but this is no more true of Indiana than it is of Illinois or of any state where the Democratic organization is in discredited and unworthy hands.

All there is to Mr. Bryan's plea is the same old fetish of blind partisan loyalty, the same old crack of the party whip. Although in the State of Illinois a Democratic defeat will be heralded as a rebuke to President Wilson, thousands of high-minded Democrats in that State will vote against Roger Sullivan, just as thousands of high-minded Democrats in Indiana will vote against Benjamin Shively and Homer Cook and will in that act perform a duty not only to their country, but to their party itself.

Is any Democratic reader of these lines so shortsighted as not to realize that he injures his party when he swallows bad nominations along with good, or so imperfectly informed that he does not recognize as the highest service he can render his party the dethronement of bad leadership and the substitution of good?

UPRISING AGAINST SULLIVAN.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: If Roger Sullivan succeeds in being elected United States Senator from Illinois it will be a success achieved in the face of a redoubtable rebellion in his own party and against the better judgment of a great majority of progressive Democrats the country over. Seldom has a regular party candidate faced so strong a hostile demonstration among his own partisans.

The opposing candidates are Senator Sherman, Republican, whose record in Illinois politics is none too good, and Raymond Robins,, Progressive. A formidable organization working to defeat Sullivan is called the Robins Democratic League and the literature the league publishes has a plausibility which may well cause the Sullivan followers some concern.

Robins is a social economist, a man prominent in several movements for the betterment of Chicago; a more thorough antithesis for Sullivan could scarcely be imagined. It would be a decided gain to replace Sherman with Robins in the United States Senate. On the other hand, to replace Sherman with Sullivan would at best be exchanging one undesirable member for another.

THE SENATORIAL OUTLOOK.

Philadelphia Ledger: Under the constitutional amendment the voters will choose United States Senators in November; 34 are to be elected. The places are at present filled by 16 Republicans and 18 Democrats. Of the present Democratic incumbents, Senators White of Alabama and Thornton of Louisiana are to retire. Representative Underwood has been nominated to succeed Mr. White and Representative Broussard is the candidate named for the place occupied by Mr. Thornton. The other 16 Democrats have been nominated to succeed themselves. Of the Republican Senators, Root, Burton, Perkins and Stephenson were not candidates for renomination; they retire voluntarily. Senators Bristow and Crawford were defeated at the primaries.

While the Democrats seem certain of electing 15 of their candidates, Republicans are confident of but seven. No one can predict today how the voters will decide in California, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Maryland, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Dakota or Washington. In Illinois, for example, Senator Sherman's election would be assured if it were not for the candidacy of Robins, the Socialist agitator, running on the Progressive ticket. Roger Sullivan, the Democratic candidate, is likely to be a poor vote getter, but distinguished leaders of his party are planning to help him. In Indiana the Progressive candidacy of Beveridge makes for Democratic victory, and the weakness of the Republican organization in New York and the vulnerability of the candidate in this State makes Democratic success possible. Gov. Baldwin is popular in Connecticut, and his friends are confident he will be promoted to the senatorship. And so it goes. Republican division is Democratic opportunity and the Democrats are disposed to make the most of it. But now that the novelty is worn off, it is not likely that even the most enthusiastic advocates of popular election of Senators expect the new system to produce better law makers than the old.

What Will Rumania Do?

WILL THE WAR SPREAD?

Pittsburg Dispatch: The death of King Charles of Rumania, better known in this country as the husband of "Carmen Sylva," is regarded as increasing the probability of Rumania's entrance into the war. The late monarch was a member of the Hohenzollern family, elevated to the throne in 1866 in succession to the dethroned Prince Alexander John Cuza. It has been understood that it was his affiliations with the Kaiser and his personal friendship for Emperor Francis Joseph that led him to curb the clamor of the Rumanians for joining the allies, in the hope of gaining territory from Austria. He is succeeded by his nephew, Prince Ferdinand, whose wife, however, is a cousin of the Czar and of King George of England and is said to be pronouncedly Russian in sympathies. Whether this weakening of the royal resistance to the Rumanian sentiment for war will be followed by Rumania's entering the fight remains to be seen. The dubious attitude of Bulgaria now flirting with Turkey and therefore with the German-Austrian alliance, may, however check Bucharest. One thing is reasonably certain, if Rumania takes the field all the Balkan states may be expected to follow on one side or the other, and perhaps Italy also.

RUMANIA AND RUSSIA.

Philadelphia Inquirer: The death of the King of Rumania raises a question as to the continued neutrality of the country over which he ruled. Himself a Hohenzollern, King Charles is thought to have opposed the entrance of his Government into the war on the side of Russian upon purely personal grounds. There is said to be a great deal of war sentiment among the Rumanian people and speculation is rife as to the attitude to be assumed by King Charles' successor.

If the latter has good judgment he will follow the example of his predecessor, who, during his reign, showed himself an able ruler and a disinterested lover of his adopted country. Rumania has had some experience of Russian gratitude. It went to the assistance of that country during the Turco-Russian War of 1877-78, after the Russians had been fought to a standstill. Plevna was taken by Rumanian troops, and it may be said that Russia was indebted to Rumania for its long-delay and dearly-bought victory. Yet when it came to the final settlement Rumania, which had counted on getting part of Bessarabia as its reward, was put off with the marshy and relatively valueless territory of the Dobrudscha. Russia took the Bessarabia section for itself.

WHAT WILL FERDINAND DO?

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Not until the outbreak of the present war did the German blood of King Charles bring discord between King and people. He sought to place Rumania on the Austro-German side, but found the task far beyond his power. He was compelled to content himself with holding his people back from actual alliance with Germany's foes.

The King's death may mark an important change in the destiny of Rumania. The new King, Ferdinand, nephew of the late ruler, though himself of German blood, has always stood in the most friendly attitude toward Great Britain. His wife, the new Queen, is the daughter of the British Duke of Edinburgh, and the royal children—who are, perhaps, the most beautiful and promising of all Europe—have spent as much time in London as in Bucharest.

It is very unlikely that King Ferdinand will follow the German tendencies of his predecessor. Both for family reasons and for the purpose of winning at the outset the esteem of his subjects, he will probably assume a neutrality quite untinged by any German leaning.

CHARLES A WISE RULER.

Philadelphia Ledger: Should it be said that King Charles of Rumania died at a fortunate moment both for himself and for his country? It is difficult to believe that he would have assented willingly to participation in the war or that his people would much longer have been contented to maintain peace. As a Hohenzollern, his sympathies were naturally with Germany; he is credited with saying that he had given his word to the Kaiser not to permit Rumania to become the ally of Russia. Yet this was precisely what the Rumanians desired, and it was already a question how soon they might force the King's hand.

Their attitude is perfectly intelligible; it [illegible]ot unlike that of the Italians. The Austro-Hungarian provinces of Transylvania and Bukowina are largely Rumanian, just as Trieste and the Trentino are largely Italian. As the war is now going in the East, Transylvania will soon be occupied by the Russian forces; Bukowina already has been. Rumania gained some territory from Bulgaria at the end of the second Balkan War without having to fight for it. But a policy of strict neutrality at this time would probably not lead to an equally happy result.

It is only simple justice to the late King, moreover, to say that, however his subject may have resented his recent policy, he was a wise ruler in the main and his reign was beneficial to his realm. He was chosen "Domn," or Lord of Rumania, in 1866, and proclaimed King in 1881, after the country had been freed from Turkish domination. Many foreign and domestic troubles confronted him at the outset, but he safely surmounted them. Exasperation with his pacific policy at this time should not prevent the Rumanians from doing full justice to all his services in their behalf. No small part of their present prosperity is due to him.

RUMANIAN SYMPATHY.

Philadelphia Record: King Charles has been called the Maker of Rumania; and in a sense his claim to that title is justified. Being a Hohenzollern, he naturally regarded an efficient army to be the first requisite to the greatness of a State; and he, therefore, bent his energies during the early years of his reign to the creation of a military force trained in the thoroughgoing Prussian drill. When Russia began her "war of liberation" in Turkey it so happened that Rumania was able to give very material aid; and on the field of Plevna the Rumanian troops not only received their baptism of fire, but conquered for their country complete independence of Turkish sovereignty. The tributary principality became a kingdom. The death of King Charles is expected to cause a change in Rumania from the policy of neutrality to one of belligerency in favor of Russia and the Triple Entente. The assumption that only the Hohenzollern sympathies of the late King held Rumania neutral is merely the result of interested surmises in Petrograd. If the Rumanian Government and people really wanted war they would have acted according to their desires in spite of the King.

SOCIETY

Charity Ball Nov. 17 for the Benefit of the St. Louis Protestant Orphans' Home Now Engaging Fashionable Set—Miss Clara Busch and Miss Annie Warmack Soon to Make Social Bows.

By Frances Cabanne Scovel.

OCTOBER is more than half gone and so far there has been little talk of balls. So the announcement that a big charity ball will be given Nov. 17 at Dreamland is twice welcome.

It will be for the benefit of the St. Louis Protestant Orphans Home and is in the hands of a group of young women whose names assure its social and financial success.

Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Bush is chairman of the Committee on Arrangements, and assisting her are Mrs. Edward A. Faust, Mrs. George F. Steedman, Mrs. Edwin H. Steedman, Mrs. Alden H. Little and Mrs. Henry A. Boeckeler.

The Protestant Orphans' Home is at Webster Groves. There are about 85 boys and girls there now. A farm for boys and a practical sewing school for girls are run in connection with it. The home was established in Civil War times as the Soldiers' Orphan Asylum, and was originally supported by what was then known as the Sanitary Commission.

Mrs. E. K. Luddington of 28 Washington terrace is president of the institution. Mrs. Edwin H. Steedman is second vice-president; Mrs. J. D. Dana, secretary; Mrs. Fritz Nisbet, treasurer, and Mrs. Charles Moore assistant treasurer.

BESIDES the charity ball, there are in prospect several others, the dates for which have not yet been announced. One will be given by Mr. and Mrs. August A. Busch in honor of their second daughter, Miss Clara Busch, when she will make her bow to society. Another will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Warmack for their daughter, Miss Annie Laurie Warmack, who is one of the season's debutantes. Of course, there will be the Lenox dances and the two Imperials, but it has been prophesied there will be fewer large affairs this winter than last, but that there will be many small ones, and that, in a way, the season will be a gay one in spite of all the talk to the contrary.

IF you see a number of women going about with long bone knitting needles and a lot of gray yarn, you will know they are answering Miss Emilie Maffitt's appeal for help and are knitting "cholera belts" for the French soldiers.

Miss Dorothy Niedringhaus is making pajamas for the German soldiers and in Munich Miss Marian Lindsay, who, by the way, is a friend of Miss Maffitt's, is busy helping the women and children of the German soldiers while in Switzerland. Miss Cornelia McNair and Miss Mary Frances Joy, who are at school in Lausanne, are knitting socks for the Swiss soldiers. So it is quite in keeping with the spirit of the moment that women at home should want to contribute their mite and do something for their sisters' sons, who are fighting, children of the German soldiers and cold fields. The raw, cold season on the Continent is well on and the men, young and old, of all the countries involved in the most terrible of all wars, are suffering.

Miss Maffitt was mortoring on the Continent when the war began and had an exciting time getting out of Germany, into Switzerland and across France, where she embarked for home.

She writes that since her return she has wanted to assist in some way, so when Miss Elsie de Wolf and Miss Marbury Lindell visited the hospitals in France and asked the surgeons what the men needed most and were told that hand-knitted cholera belts were among the most important articles, the movement was started. The surgeon said there was something about the hand-knitted belts that made them superior to the others.

So in New York many of the women are busy knitting and Miss Maffitt's letter ends hoping it may be read, as she has been knitting for hours and "scarcely can hold a pen."

The belts are made with 40 plain stitches on the needle and are about two and a half yards long when finished. They are easily made.

Miss Maffitt has been in New York since her arrival home and has taken apartments in the Washington Hotel for the winter. She will send the belts to Miss de Wolf, who, in turn, will send them to their final destination.

MRS. JAMES SHEPPARD SMITH will present her daughter, Miss Eunie Cabanne Smith to society at a tea which she will give at her residence, 4515 Westminster place, Oct. 28, at 4 o'clock. The name of Miss Louise Knapp, daughter of Mrs. Harry G. Knapp, another debutante of the season, is enclosed in the invitation.

J. White, ladies' tailor, 1002 Olive, is selling all imported models at a discount. Special prices on tailor-made suits.

Model Suits and Gowns at reduced prices. A. Schumack, Ladies' Tailor and Gown Maker, 856 Century Bldg.

The marriage of Miss Reba Stone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Stone of 4296 Lindell boulevard, and Bode Smith, has been set for Nov. 11, and will take place in the evening at the home of the bride.

THIS week will be marked by several important weddings, the most interesting, perhaps, to be that of Miss Kathleen McBride, who is to be the first bride to grace the portals of the New Cathedral. This is quite fitting, as it was her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. McBride, who gave the high altar which, when finished, will be one of the finest in the world.

Miss McBride's marriage to Lacy Marion Love will be solemnized at noon Tuesday. Archbishop Glennon will officiate, assisted by the Rev. Fathers Francis Gilfillan and Francis J. O'Connor and the Rev. Father Faughman of Pittsburg, whose friendship for the McBrides dates from the time they lived in Pittsburg.

The bride's sisters, Miss Ellen McBride and Mrs. Oliver B. Mahaffey, will be maid and matron of honor.

The bridemaids will be Misses Theotiste Nugent, Dorcas Carlton and little Miss Dorothy McBride, who is still a schoolgirl; Miss Helen Hobson of Cleveland and Beatrice Gillam of New York, who were schoolmates of the bride at Miss Finch's.

There will be two little flower girls, Miss Patsy Parker, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Parker, and Miss Marjorie Bell of West Point, N. Y.

Mr. Love will have his brother, John Allan Love, for his best man, and the groomsmen will be Messrs. William H Barnett, Sidney R. Overall, Edward McI. Lewis, Anson Moore, William B. Hunt and Morris McDougall of Ottawa, Canada.

After the ceremony there will be a breakfast at the McBride mansion at 29 Washington terrace, and later Mr. Love and his bride will depart for the East to spend their honeymoon.

They have taken an apartment in the Claridge, which will be ready for them when they return.

Miss McBride was presented to society last winter at one of the most brilliant balls ever given in St. Louis. It was at the St. Louis Club on Twelfth Night, and the decorations represented the four seasons. The ballroom was winter, and when the gayety was at its height there was a fall of snow from the ceiling that covered the dancers in fancy costume, giving the effect of a carnival in the snow. She was one of the most popular of the buds. She is a convent-bred girl and finished at Miss Finch's in New York. She is fond of outdoor sports and drives a high-power car.

Mr. Love is a graduate of Amherst College in the class of '06; is a member of the University, Country and Racquet Clubs and is a son of John E. Love.

A large shipment from New York of fur-trimmed hats and smart sailors, from $12 to $18. Sally Meagher, 801 Century Building.

THE same day there will be an out-of-town wedding of more than passing interest in St. Louis, that of Miss Adele Waterman, daughter of the late Kingsbury Waterman, and George Worthington of Washington, which will take place at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Thomas Turner, in Washington, where Miss Waterman has been during the absence of her mother and sister, Miss Winifred Waterman, in Europe.

Miss Waterman lived in Lausanne, Switzerland, for several years, and returned to this country with her mother about six years ago. She came to St. Louis to make her bow where her family had lived since her ancestor, Pierre Laclede, founded the city. She spent that winter with her aunt, Mrs. Cornelius Tompkins Jr., and her great-aunt, the late Mme. de Giverville. She was a belle in the debutante set and his since spent most of her time in Washington with Mrs. Turner.

She has a host of relatives here, among whom are Mrs. William H. Lee, Henry S. Turner, Mrs. Lee Benoist and a number of the old pioneer French families.

ANOTHER wedding of interest here, taking place in New York, Tuesday, will be that of Alfred J. Wertheimer, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Wertheimer of Clayton, and Miss Amy Weil of New York.

The wedding will be at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leopold Weil, and will be attended by relatives and close friends. Mr. and Mrs. Weil have gone on with their son for the nuptials.

ON Wednesday evening Miss Gertrude Kies, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis George Kies, will be married at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Charles F. Gauss of 17 Washington terrace, to George P. Whitelaw II, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Whitelaw.

Dean Carrol M. Davis of Christ Church Cathedral, will perform the ceremony at [illegible] o'clock in the presence of an assemblage of relatives and friends, and afterwards there will be a large reception.

In the bridal party will be Misses Jane Taylor, Dorothy Allison, Mary Bullen, the bride's cousin, who will be maid of honor, and Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Moss, who will be matron of honor. Wright Nugent will be best man, and the groomsmen, Messrs. Wessel Shapleigh, Joseph H. Holliday, Robert Gartside and Thomas Jefferson Moss.

THURSDAY Miss Virginia Saunders Foster and Edward A. Limberg will be married in the evening at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Adelaide Wiggins Barnett, at 6 Lenox place. Although the invitations are verbal and the arrangements informal, it will be one of the most notable weddings of the season.

Miss Foster is the daughter of Col. T. Saunders Foster of Guadalajara, Mexico, and St. Louis. Her mother was Miss Mary Wiggins, since whose death, some time ago, Miss Foster has made her home with Mrs. Barnett. She made her debut two seasons ago and few girls have enjoyed such popularity as has she.

Mr. Limberg is the son of Mrs. Ellie Limberg and the grandson of the late Caspar Koehler. He is a Yale man and a member of the Country and Racquet Clubs.

They have taken an apartment in the Claridge which Mrs. Limberg has furnished. They will be at home there when they return from a brief wedding trip.

Miss Margaret Wright will be Miss Foster's bridemaid, and Mr. Limberg's cousin, Carl Krausnick, will be groomsman.

Old hats made new. Flossie Allen, and other styles. Ostrich feathers cleaned, dyed, curled. Style Hat Shop, 700 Jaccard Building.

AMONG the other weddings of the week will be that of Miss Sallie Currier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Currier of Boston, and W. Arthur Stickney of St. Louis, which will take place Saturday at the Curriers' town house on Commonwealth avenue, Boston.

It is to be one of the most interesting weddings of the year, and will bring a charming young woman to St. Louis to live.

Miss Currier and her sister, Miss Nancy Currier, were guests of Mrs. Joseph Gilman Miller and her daughter, Miss Carol Miller, last summer and it was then Mr. Stickney met her.

Mrs. William C. Stickney, Miss Mildred Stickney, the bridegroom-elect's mother and sister, and his brothers, Taylor and Stuart Stickney, Mrs. Miller and Miss Eleanor Dozier will go to Boston the middle of the week, to be present at the wedding.

Miss Stickney's marriage to Orion Willis will follow closely upon that of her brother. It will take place here Nov. 7.

THE musical season will open Saturday evening with the joint recital of Alice Nielson, the American prima donna, and Rudolph Ganz, the Swiss pianist, who will appear at the Odeon.

Miss Nielson is the little Nielson who was a favorite in the days of the Castle Square Opera Company and afterwards studied for grand opera and came back with Florencio Constantino as Mimi to his Rudolpho in La Boheme and other roles.

Ganz is on leave of absence after his term of service in the Swiss army and one of the few artists so far to be able to keep his engagements.

Mrs. John F. Murphy, who knew Miss Nielson when she lived in Kansas City, will entertain at luncheon for her Saturday and Mrs. Charles Cunnings Collins will give a small tea in her honor in the afternoon.

THE enormous crop of autumn engagements was added to by the announcement last week of several more of much interest.

Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Harold Leavitt Brown made formal announcement of the engagement of Mrs. Brown's sister, Miss Margaret Drew, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Drew, and Harry Burgoyne Wilson, son of Mrs. Vaughan Clark.

Miss Drew is the youngest of the four Drew girls, who are, besides Mrs. Ephron Catlin Jr. and Mrs. James H. Platt, now of San Francisco.

Mr. Wilson's father, Harry Wilson, was an Englishman. Mrs. Clark was formerly Miss Grace Winckley of Boston, a member of an old New England family, and came here several years ago with her son to live.

The marriage will be one of the notable ones of the winter.

MR. AND MRS. HOMER HISEY of Webster Groves gave a party Thursday evening which was one of the most original entertainments ever give in a group of about 100 members of Webster's fashionable set.

The rooms were arranged to represent a cafe with small tables, and even a cashier's cage. There were menus from which the guests ordered, but got what was given them. All during the affair there was a cabaret, much of it impromptu and clever.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Nathan have returned from their wedding trip and are residing at 4124 McPherson avenue.

Mrs. Nathan formerly was Miss Josie L. Loeb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Loeb of Henderson, Ky., where the marriage took place on Sept. 27.

A notable event of Thanksgiving week will be the joint recital at the Odeon on Nov. 28 of Alma Gluck, soprano, and her husband, Efrem Zimbalist, the Russian violinist, under

FOR DANDRUFF, FALLING HAIR AND ITCHING SCALP—25 CENT "DANDERINE"

Save your hair! Danderine destroys dandruff and stops falling hair at once—Grows hair and we can prove it.

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or a loose or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you will actually see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp

A little Danderine now will immediately double the beauty of your hair No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable luster, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove to yourself tonight—now—that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all.—ADV.

the direction of Hattie B. Gooding, for which many of the boxes already have been reserved. The romance of the recent marriage of the two great artists and the fact that Zimbalist is the one Russian artist exempt from military service, lends interest to their appearance. Zimbalist, who is the favorite violinist of the Russian Czar, was given last year on the occasion of his twenty-first birthday, a certificate of honor by the Czar which states that because of his genius he would never be called on for duty in the army.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Turner and her daughter, Miss Eloise, have given up their apartment at 5475 Vernon avenue, and have taken a suite of rooms at the Pechmann Hotel during the fall and winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bowman of 4617 Westminster place will receive this evening from 8 to 11 o'clock in honor of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Edith Bowman, to Jerome Wexler of Syracuse, N. Y., which was recently announced.

The Saturday Evening Dancing Club of Webster Groves will start its sixth season with a dance on Oct. 31, at the Monday Club. The membership consists of 80 of the married set of Webster Groves.

Lieut. Lloyd B. Bennett, who has been in the Philippines for the last three years, arrived in St. Louis Saturday for a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bennett of 1034 Hickory street. Lieut. Bennett will return to his duties about Jan. 1.

MISS NATALIE GAIENNIE of 5915 McPherson avenue, announced her engagement to Anthony M. Allemang of Grafton, Ill., Saturday afternoon at a card party given in honor of her guest, Miss Nina Slaten of Springfield, Ill. Miss Gaiennie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gaiennie and has been identified with the Daughters of the Confederacy set.

Miss Clara McFadden and Dr. George I. Beeler of Chicago were married last evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry McFadden, 1403 Semple avenue, in the presence of immediate relatives. The Rev. F. G. Belwer of Grace Presbyterian Church officiated. The bride was gowned in white charmeuse and chiffon with trimmings of Oriental lace. She carried bride's roses and valley lilies. Chaplet of orange blossoms adorned her hair. She was attended by her sister, Miss Celeste McFadden, as maid of honor, who wore canary colored messaline and shadow lace and carried sunset roses. Prof. Alexander Baird of Independence, Kan., attended the bridegroom as best man. The house was decorated with autumn leaves and chrysanthemums in yellow and white. The couple departed the same evening and will make their home in Chicago.

A pretty wedding last week was that of Miss Cecilia V. Ferrier, daughter of Mr. Andrew S. Ferrier, and Louis Borlinghaus of 3558 Nebraska avenue, which took place at the home of the bride, 3421 Alberta street, Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. The Rev. Dr. S. C. Palmer officiated. The bride wore white crepe de chine and carried a shower of lilies of the valley and roses. Miss Annie Borlinghaus, sister of the bridegroom, served as bridemaid and was dressed in pale green crepe de chine and carried pink roses. Irvin Sleyster was best man and Marie Ferrier, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer. Miss Jean A. Auld played the wedding march. A small reception followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Borlinghaus will be at home after November at 746 Dover place.

The monthly meeting of the M. A. E. McClure Chapter, U. D. C., was held Monday at the residence of Mrs. John S. Trares, 5711 Clemens avenue. Mrs. H. S. O'Bannon was assistant hostess. "Wooltex" Week Begins at Our Store Tomorrow

At Which Time We Shall Offer Over 300 of the Celebrated Wooltex Coats for Women and Misses at the Extraordinarily Low Prices of

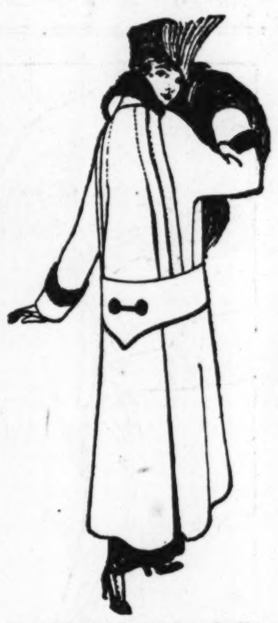
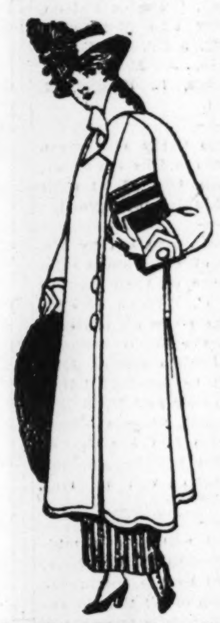
Wooltex Week, which begins tomorrow morning, October 19, will be one of the most important weeks in the history of our Coat Department. At that time we shall offer over three hundred of the well-known Wooltex Coats at prices that should insure their sale before the expiration of the week.

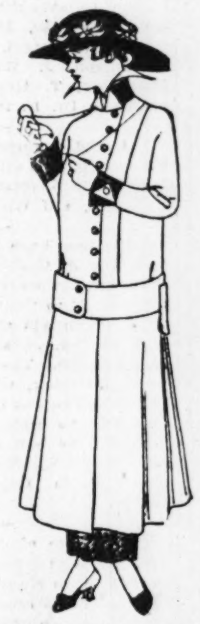
Below we illustrate and describe the garments that will be placed on sale, and it will pay you to be on hand early if you wish to be sure of sharing in this event.



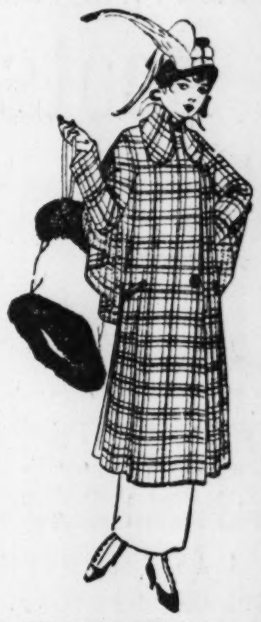
No. 687. The smart and practical lines of this Women's Coat combine to make it a real utility winter garment. The materials are gabardine and granite cloth, in green, plum, brown, navy and black; plush trimmed cuffs to match the full plush collar. The double-breasted fastening is of self-cord loops which fasten across the chest. Wide belt effect of self-material.



No. 882. This Women's Coat is of chinchilla in hairline checks and crepe cheviots, in green, brown, navy and black. It has new Parisian convertible collar, and is trimmed in back with band of velvet and buttons to match; belt extends across back, slightly confining the full lines at the sides and back. Can be worn buttoned high at the throat and over chest.

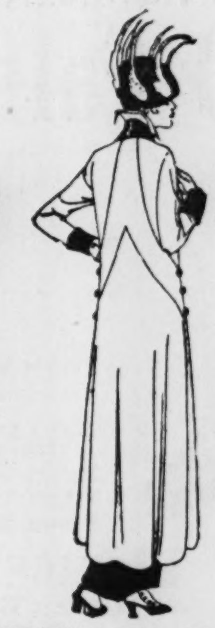


No. 886. Misses' Winter Coat of fancy coatings and zibeline, that is unexcelled for general wear. It is fashionably cut and is made with a graceful flare and in belted effect, with high collar. Choice of navy, Copenhagen, green or black; sizes 14 to 18 years.

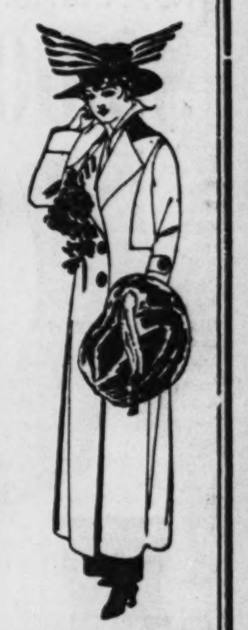


No. 1869. Misses' Cape Coat of fancy weaves, zibelines and other attractive plaids, in navy, green and brown. This is a very useful garment and has a cape attached to the sleeves, giving it graceful lines and providing ample protection on stormy days. Sizes, 14 to 18 years.

Note the description of these garments carefully



No. 1647. This is an extremely good-looking Coat for women and is made of zibelines and broadcloths, lined with silk throughout and trimmed with velvet collar and cuffs. Can be worn buttoned to the neck or turned down. Choice of navy, green, seal brown or black. Back shows a novel cut, forming an inverted V-effect at waist; belted.



No. 1663. This exceptionally handsome Coat for women is made of black broadcloth, and will be chosen by many for both dress and general utility wear. It is 52 inches long, has medium-sized velvet collar and self-cuffs; self-revers. Back finished on both sides from neck to waist, with tailored band of self-material; deep set-in sleeves. Lined throughout with silk.

Misses' Wooltex Coats in This Sale

The Misses' Wooltex Coats in this sale number about 150, and are in three of the season's newest models, all of which are copies of foreign designs. The school girl, the college girl or the business woman of small stature can be quickly and satisfactorily pleased with one of these models.

The materials are chinchillas, zibelines, plaids and other fancy weaves in the season's best colors; sizes 14 to 18 years.

Nowhere will you find better values than these at our special sale price of $18.75
Valued at $25.00

Women's Wooltex Coats in This Sale

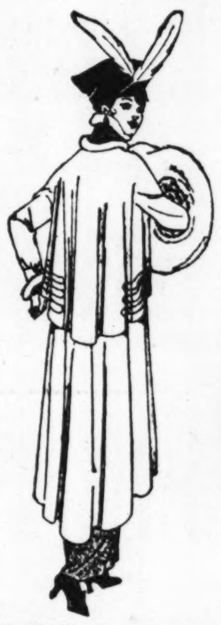
The Women's Wooltex Coats in this sale number about 200, and there are ten different models, nine of which we illustrate and describe.

In this sale there are styles suitable for afternoon and evening wear and which will appeal to those of both conservative and extreme tastes.

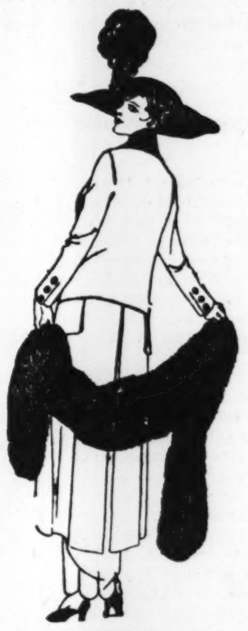
Choice can be made from a large selection of materials, including broadcloths, zibelines, pebble cheviots, diagonals and colored checks and novelty coatings, in regular and extra sizes.

Without a doubt they are the best coats that we have ever shown at $25.00
Valued at $35.00

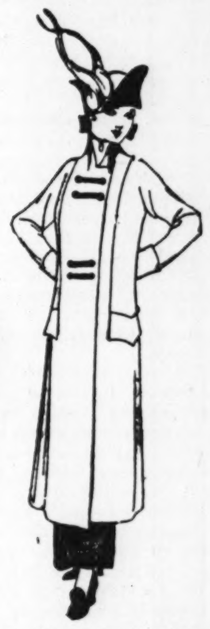
Every garment that bears the Wooltex Label is guaranteed to be pure wool, or pure silk. It is guaranteed to give two full season's satisfactory service in any and every way.



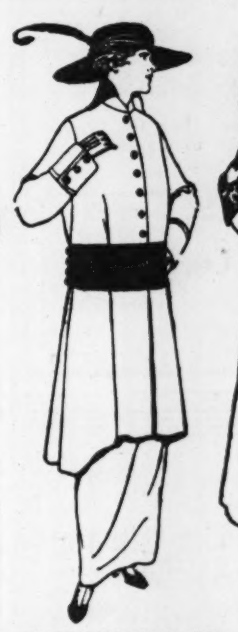
No. 6627. Women's Coat for evening wear of broadcloth with velvet collar and cuffs, edged with fur. Back shows cape effect, trimmed with straps of self-material. Cape attached over arms and the coat fastened in front by a charming sash of self-material. Caught at throat with large button and another at waist, in navy, tete de negre, plum, green and black.



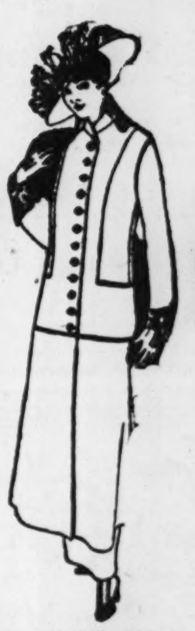
No. 662. This is an exceedingly graceful Coat, made on long and generally becoming Redingote lines, from brown and black checked coatings and zibelines in black, and white, and brown and white checks. It has wide box plaits in the back, with large flaps of self-material on hips; velvet collar. This is a splendid utility coat for any woman.



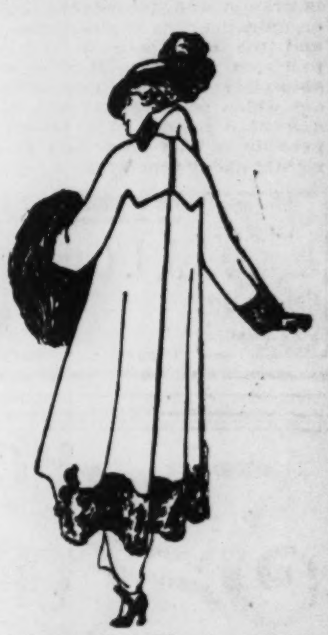
No. 887. Misses' Winter Coat, of chinchilla, zibeline and fancy weaves, in navy, Copenhagen, green and black. It buttons to the neck and flares slightly from the hips, making it decidedly modish and suitable for almost any occasion; sizes range from 14 to 18 years.



No. 683. The best of the season's style features combine to make this Women's Coat an exceptional Winter garment. The fashionable flare-lines and straight buttoned front are especially worthy of note, as is the broad-belt effect of inlaid silk velvet; button trimmed in back. Materials are broadcloth and zibelines, in green, seal brown, navy and black; silk or satin lined.



No 682. This Coat is expressive of the latest fashion decrees. It buttons close to the neck, has broad-belt effect and is trimmed in the back with an inlay of fashionable furette with buttons to match the broad furette collar and cuffs. The materials are zibelines and crepe cheviots, in green, seal brown, navy, taupe and black. Flares from below the waist.



No. 689. A graceful, dressy Coat for women—for afternoon and evening wear—is made from rich broadcloths, in brown, navy, plum and black. The collar and cuffs are handsomely trimmed with furette, a broad band of which finishes the bottom of the coat. May be worn open or buttoned comfortably to the neck in cold weather. Every woman will admire this coat.

NATION SPENDS ANNUALLY $500,000,000 FOR DRUGS

Public Health Experts Say Haphazard Use Has Increased Certain Diseases 100 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The amount of money expended annually for drugs and medicines in the United States is out of all proportion to the real need or requirements of the people, according to the Public Health Service today, in a report on the indiscriminate use of drugs.

The report deals with "drug intoxication," which, it is asserted, is an economic waste and a menace to public health. Five hundred million dollars is the price American people pay annually for drugs and medicines, it is declared. The greater part of the preparations are consumed haphazardly, say the public health officials.

The report points out the effect certain drugs and compounds have on the kidneys, heart and blood vessels and then calls attention to the increase of more than 100 per cent during the last 30 years in the number of deaths from disease of those organs.

DECREE ENTERED TO DISSOLVE THE NEW HAVEN TRUST

Filed in Court by Attorney-General; Orders Monopoly's Disintegration.

ROAD'S HOLDINGS TO GO

Trustees Assume Control of Many Subsidiaries, Including Ships and Trolleys.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The disintegration of the great railway, trolley and steamship transportation monopoly built up in New England during the last 12 years by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Co. is prescribed in detail by the decree filed today with the Federal Court by Attorney-General Gregory in the Government's dissolution suit.

Briefly, the railroad trust must shear itself of vast holdings of trolley and steamship lines and must part with certain railroads brought under its domination, including the Boston & Maine, forever and by public auction if necessary.

The control of many of the New Haven's subsidiaries passes today from the road's directors into the keeping of 15 men, termed trustees, who will act as officers of the Federal Court. These men will rule these subsidiaries until such time as they are taken permanently from New Haven domination. The time limit set for the final parting varies; but in no case is it to be deferred beyond July 1, 1919.

Whether there will be linked under one management the affairs of the New Haven road and the fleet of Sound steamships operated by the New England Steamship Co. is to be determined by the court after the Interstate Commerce Commission passes on the application of the New Haven Co. for authority to retain stock in the steamship company and the Hartford & New York Transportation Co.

In certain steamship companies, however, the New Haven Railroad must surrender its controlling influence.

The filing of the decree closes the civil proceedings in connection with the Government's investigation of the New Haven road. The criminal end of the investigation is yet under way. The company consented to the Government's dissolution decree.

The decree also discloses that the New Haven Co. has cancelled its contracts with the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Co., for sharing the financial results of the Boston and Albany Railroad and furthermore, it has disposed under terms approved by the Attorney-General of the Merchants' and Miners' Transportation Co. The renewal of this contract and the repurchase of any interest in the Merchants' and Miners' company is perpetually enjoined.

PERSONAL ESTATE OF CAPT. M'CULLOCH $43,588

Late Street Railway President Also Leaves Valuable Pieces of Realty.

An inventory of the estate of Capt. Robert McCulloch, president and general manager of the United Railways, who died Sept. 28, was completed yesterday by his son, Richard McCulloch, as administrator. It shows personal property of $43,588.72 and several valuable pieces of realty.

The personal property consists of notes appraised at $3023; accounts, including $5000 life insurance, at $6879.30; stocks, $27,930; bonds, $3100; cash, $1806.40 and chattels, $850.

Capt. McCulloch owned 50 shares of preferred stock of the United Railways, $1430 of stock of the St. Louis Coliseum Co., $20,000 of American Cotton Separator Co. stock, and $1500 of the Bimetallic Mining Co. stock.

The real estate listed is at 4469 Westminster place, 4385 McPherson avenue, 3911 Greer avenue, and eight flats running from 4353 to 4363A Maryland avenue.

SAYS FEE WAS TOO BIG

Union Pacific Declares State Commission Overcharged It.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 17.—Attorneys for the Union Pacific Railroad today filed a protest with the Public Service Commission, alleging the commission overcharged them more than $10,000 for fees in a recent hearing of an application by the road to issue $31,848,900 additional bonds. The issue was authorized Sept. 22, and a fee of $10,962.25 entered on the books against the company.

Fees are based upon the amount of bond issues. Attorneys for the road say the fees should not exceed $250 because the entire property of Union Pacific in Missouri consists of a fraction of a mile of trackage and terminal facilities at Kansas City, and that the total amount of bond issue to be used in this State is less than $125,000.

KIEL NAMES OCT. 20 TO BE SAFETY FIRST DAY

Mayor Advises Community That Injuries and Deaths Can Be Avoided by Thinking.

Mayor Kiel will issue a proclamation Monday declaring Tuesday, Oct. 20, to be Safety First day at the request of Hugh K. Wagner, president of the Safety First Society of Missouri.

"It will be well for the community if everybody thinks safety and talks safety on Safety First Day," said the Mayor. "Most of the injuries and deaths caused by accidents could be avoided if the people only had the habit of thinking about their own safety. It is time this habit should be encouraged in every way possible."

WESTERN CATHOLIC UNION CONVENTION OPENS TODAY

Street Parade Will Be Followed by Addresses at Hall by City Officials.

The thirty-second (fifth biennial) convention of the Western Catholic Union will be held in St. Louis, beginning today and continuing tomorrow and Tuesday.

At 9 o'clock this morning a parade will start from Meramec and Compton avenues. At 10 solemn high mass will be celebrated at St. Anthony's Church, Meramec and Compton avenues, with music by St. Anthony's choirsters.

The first session of the convention will be held at 11:30 at St. Anthony's School hall. There will be addresses by Mayor Kiel and Assistant City Counselor Daues. After dinner at St. Anthony's Hall there will be an automobile tour. At 8 p. m. there will be an entertainment at St. Anthony's Hall and an address by Supreme President F. William Heckenkamp of Quincy, Ill.

Monday's business session will be held at Goller Hall, Eighth street and Allen avenue, beginning at 9 a. m. Tuesday's session at the same hall will begin at 8:30 a. m.

The arrangements for the convention are in the hands of an executive committee composed of Jacob Albrecht, Jerome Fuerst, Henry Witte, George J. Heleck, John A. Piper, Herman A. Krueger and Frank A. Darius.

Speed Law's Validity Attacked.

Attorney L. Frank Ottofy, defending his son, J. Carlisle Ottofy, on an auto speeding charge in Judge Hogan's division of the City Court, yesterday, attacked the constitutionality of the speeding ordinances, alleging that they had been superseded by a State law against careless driving. Judge Hogan continued the case until next Saturday.

CUSHION SHOES

If you will study the preceding sectional view showing the special construction of these shoes, you will understand just why they afford such great relief to tender feet. The soft felt insole acts as a cushion, distributs your weight evenly, absorbs shocks, and incidentally keeps the feet warm and dry.

Men and women suffering from tender feet, callouses and other foot ailments should try a pair—foot troubles vanish quickly.

Advice on Beauty

by Claire Ainsworth

A great authority has said three-fourths of all the beauty there is in the world is possessed by women. The highest creation of God is the face of a good woman. If women take pains to keep their beauty they are not to be blamed, not even if it costs money as well as effort.

Now, are not such sentiments welcomed by we women? Are they not especially welcomed by the woman who imagines that she will be thought "vain" if she in the least tries to improve or preserve her skin and complexion? Indeed, I think so!

Mrs. C. B. writes: "I am greatly perturbed because the flesh of my cheeks and neck is beginning to sag and wrinkles make their appearance. My skin is also becoming dry and darker. I have tried several face creams, but without apparent good. What should be done?"

Answer: First discontinue the use of toilet soaps and to cleanse, soften and invigorate the skin and underlying tissues, begin using gloriol glowene—a "water massage" made of saponified vegetable oils, possessing antiseptic, medicinal values of great service to the skin. Use it according to directions with each tube. Second, follow this "water massage" with a splendid cold cream called gloriol emollient, massaging with both the rotary and patting movement, using the finger tips, until the skin glows. Give special attention to the wrinkled parts. Permit the gloriol emollient to remain on over night. Third, before going out into the weather, always rub in the vanishing cream, gloriol balm. This latter is essential to whiten, soften and preserve the skin and complexion from the effects of wind, cold, sun, etc. If you or any woman or girl will adopt these three scientific toilet requisites and be regular and conscientious in using them, you can restore health and vigor to the skin, or retain a beautifully tinted complexion until you are well into "old age." A good pure and refined face powder is essential, and the gloriol face powder comes in three shades, white, flesh and brunette. Get the color which suits your natural skin.

Miss Delia asks: "I am quite anxious to increase the flesh on my arms, limbs and body so that I will weigh about 25 pounds more than I do now. Will you tell me what to eat?"

Answer: Once or twice a day drink a pint of rich milk, into which you should beat one or two raw eggs and flavor to taste. Do this, and obtain of your druggist 3-grain hypo-nuclane tablets and take them as per directions with each sealed package. There is no treatment better than this, which invariably increases the weight permanently.

NOTE—If the reader does not find the information wanted in the questions answered below, just address a letter to Miss Claire Ainsworth, 40 Patterson Bldg., Dayton, O., inclosing self-addressed stamped envelope, and she will gladly advise o health and beauty problems. The artic and preparations mentioned are on sale all wholesale druggists, large retail department stores; or any accommod dealer can obtain them for you.

Mrs. T. C. asks: "Will you please repeat your formula for reducing superfluous flesh? I am very stout, and wish to reduce about 30 pounds."

Answer: I know of but one reliable formula and that is put up in tablet form in sealed tubes, with directions for home use. Ask for 5-grain phythyrin tablets. They are safe and effective.

Olga C. asks: "I hope you can advise me what to do for my hair and scalp. My hair is lifeless, splitting and falling out, and my scalp itches on account of a bad case of dandruff. Please advise me what to do?"

Answer: First shampoo your hair with gloriol shampoo and then apply plain yellow minyol about twice a week for several weeks. Use as per directions with each jar. This will cure the dandruff and itching, and destroy the disease germs at the roots of the hair. Then begin using daily a hair and scalp tonic made by dissolving one-half ounce of concentrated hairwand powder in a pint of soft water. This treatment is marvelously beautifying for any head of hair.

Mame R. asks: "My blood is in bad condition. I suffer with constipation and my face is broken out horribly with pimples. Please advise how to clear my complexion and purify my blood."

Answer: You must first rid yourself of constipation—a greater evil is not known—and to do this take 3-grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur), as per directions. For local treatment of the skin use the scientific treatment advised for "Mrs. C. B." above.

Miss Leila J. asks: "I would like to know how one can fill out hollows in the neck and develop the bust?"

Answer: You can accomplish your desire if you will obtain medicated [illegible] and use it persistently and regularly as a flesh nourishing massage. It requires time and thorough effort and vigorous patting and rotary massages with the finger tips, but results are sure if your health is good.

Violet asks: "Please tell me the name of the preparation to wave and curl the hair which I saw in your answers some time ago."

Answer: The name is gloriol [illegible] and it is very fine for anyone whose hair is straight or "stringy." All my friends use it and are delighted with it.

Mrs. O. M. asks: "Will you please give me a formula for darkening gray and faded hair and to increase its growth and luster?"

Answer: Obtain a 5-cent package of sage leaves or tea. Cover with a quart of water and simmer until reduced to a pint. Then strain thoroughly and add one-half ounce of hairwand powder, shake well and apply to the hair and scalp twice daily, and you will surely be delighted in a short while.—ADVERTISEMENT.

BROTHER AIDS GIRL WHO RAN AWAY TO NURSE AUSTRIAN

Follows to New York and Will Take Her to Europe to See Wounded Count.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Marie Henkel, who left her home in Chicago last Thursday to go to Austria to nurse her wounded sweetheart, Count Willie Feodor Hincz von Zagred, will sail next Tuesday. She had expected to take passage on the steamer Duca di Genova today, but could not obtain a passport in time.

Her brother, Frederick, who left Chicago yesterday with reinforcements to her slender financial resources, joined her today. He announced his intention of going to Austria with her. They now expect to sail next Tuesday on the Italian liner San Guglielmo.

Marie fled from her home in Chicago with borrowed money to go to the bedside of her wounded sweetheart in Austria. She had received a letter from the Count telling her he had been seriously wounded and asking her to send him something to remind him of her. She decided to go herself, and when her folks would not consent, pawned her jewelry and borrowed enough money from girl friends to take her to New York and buy a steerage ticket to Genoa and pay her transportation to Trieste.

Before leaving Chicago her brother said he would not try to bring her back, but would accompany her to Europe.

BELGIANS PLAN TO FORM A BENEVOLENT SOCIETY

Object Is to Succor Members of Race in War—10,000 in This Vicinity.

A call was issued yesterday by St. Louis Belgians for a meeting at Moose Hall, Grand avenue and West Pine street, next Sunday at 2 p. m., to organize a Belgian Benevolent Society.

The object of the proposed society will be to consider plans for the relief of the destitute families in Belgium. It is said there are about 10,000 Belgians in St. Louis and Missouri, and through the society the leaders of the movement hope to be able to get into touch with all of them.

The call for the meeting was issued by Albert Devroye, a native of Belgium, who has lived in St. Louis 12 years. His relatives lived in Brussels before the war. He has not been able to get word from them since early in August.

PRESIDENT INDORSES GERARD FOR SENATE

Writes Ambassador at Berlin That He Regrets to Lose His Services.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—A letter from President Wilson to James W. Gerard, Ambassador to Germany, indorsing his candidacy for the United States Senate, was made public here today by Ambassador Gerard's campaign committee. The President writes:

"I have been torn by conflicting desires in the matter of your candidacy for the United States Senate. I have deeply regretted that the Government should lose your services at Berlin, where you have distinguished yourself and yet, of course, I shall look forward with the greatest satisfaction to seeing you in the Senate."

CITY CLEANUP REMOVES 1570 LOADS OF RUBBISH

Week's Campaign Cost $2446, Most Economical Showing Since Annual Event's Inception.

Cleanup Week, ending yesterday, was the most successful yet conducted by the city, and the removal of 1570 loads of rubbish cost $2446, or $1.55 per load, the most economical record to date.

The city removed 1415 loads last year at a cost of $1.64 per load, and the cost per load the first time the city undertook the work was $2.02.

An unusual number of old bedsprings were in the rubbish last week, and city drivers found only comparatively few basements were cleaned up in anticipation of the collection.

This is the day of schemes and dreams, but every worker has a free and equal chance through Post-Dispatch Want Ads.

ELY'S CREAM BALM OPENS CLOGGED NOSTRILS AND HEAD—CATARRH GOES

Instantly Clears Air Passages; You Breathe Freely, Nasty Discharge Stops, Head Colds and Dull Headache Vanish.

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it—Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear. By morning! the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen mebrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake tonight struggling for breath, with head stuffed; nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dropping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear. ADV.

Y. W. C. A. TO START ACTIVE CAMPAIGN FOR NEW MEMBERS

"Downtown Club for Women" Has Grown So Much Scope Must Be Widened.

MORE FUNDS ARE NEEDED

Untrained Worker Association's Greatest Problem—Positions Found for 10,084.

The Young Women's Christian Association, 1411 Locust street, "downtown club for St. Louis women," has grown at such a pace that the officers, board of governors and trustees are planning to widen its scope by a financial and membership campaign which will begin Nov. 3 and continue to Nov. 13.

Miss Harriet Taylor, New York City, of the national board of the Y. W. C. A., chief executive of the foreign department of the association, and who has been for the past 18 months conducting finance campaigns throughout the United States, will direct the St. Louis movement.

To arouse interest in the coming campaign Miss Taylor will conduct a mass meeting at the association this afternoon at 4:45 o'clock. Her subject will be "The Y. W. C. A.—the World's Sisterhood." All St. Louis women are invited to attend. Miss Taylor is an entertaining speaker.

To Have Luncheon Monday.

Tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock there will be a meeting of the Field committee of the local board and the Finance Committee, followed by a luncheon. Mrs. R. H. Pasmore of Minneapolis, Minn., member of the national board, will be the guest of honor at the luncheon.

Tuesday evening at 6:30 o'clock a dinner will be given to the board, South Central Field Committee, the trustees and members of the press at the Y. W. C. A.

The campaign is being waged because of the urgent need of assisting the great army of unemployed women at this time. Every day there are appeals for help and they are filled whenever possible.

During the past two years, exclusive of clerical positions, the association's employment bureau has placed 10,084 women in situations.

The employment bureau of the Y. W. C. A., during the past two years, has co-operated with every commerical, civic, charitable, philanthropic, social service and religious organization in the city, as well as the private citizens and the large factories and mercantile houses in supplying help and finding employment for the unemployed. It is now the clearing house for the employer and the employe.

Mrs. Clara A. Coats, employment secretary, in speaking of the work of the employment bureau, said:

Untrained Worker a Problem.

"Our problem is the willing but untrained worker. The girl who is prepared to do one thing well is easily placed. We have our training departments—domestic science and arts, millinery, dressmaking, trained attendants, stenography, bookkeeping, etc.—but the girl's need is so urgent that she must have immediate assistance. It is this class that we must care for and help until she becomes skilled in at least one line of work.

"Whenever we place an untrained—in fact, all cases, trained or untrained—we follow up to see how they get along, but this is especially true of the untrained, and we urge her to take the advantage of the opportunities afforded by the association to become a skilled worker by attending the night classes, that she may better her condition. In this work we ask the help of every employer, of every citizen in St. Louis."

The Y. W. C. A. affords all women of the city social opportunities, through its various social clubs, spiritual uplift through its Bible class, recreation and physical development through its gymnasium and swimming pool, educational advantages through its classes and employment in all vocations.

DIAMOND JUBILEE TODAY OF LUTHERAN CHURCH

The seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of Trinity Lutheran Church, Eighth street and Lafayette avenue, will be celebrated today. Records have been lost or destroyed, but it is thought the church was founded earlier than 1839.

There will be four anniversary services. The Rev. Albert Brauer, son of the Rev. E. A. Brauer, one of the first pastors of the church, will preach in the morning. J. F. Schuricht, F. A. Uhlig and Mrs. W. Heinicke, who were members of the original congregation, will be guests of honor. Delegations from four congregations, which were directly formed from the Trinity Church, will attend.

The second service will be at 8 p. m. by Prof. Theodore Graebner, a grandson or the Rev. Mr. Schaller, who was pastor of the church from 1854 to 1872.

The third service will be held next Sunday, when Prof. Ludwig Fuerbringer, a grandson of Rev. O. H. Walther, the first pastor in the church, will give a historical sketch of the church. Trinity Church members founded the "Lutheraner," the official church paper of the Missouri synod.

The church at present has no pastor, the Rev. A. R. G. Hanser having accepted a call to Brooklyn last spring. Prof. W. H. T. Dau of Concordia Seminary has been acting pastor. A call has been extended to the Rev. W. Richter of Jefferson City.

320 ACRES OFFERED TO MONTANA HOMESTEADERS

Secretary Lane Doubles Allotment to Get Settlers on Fort Peck Reservation.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—A special inducement to homesteaders to settle more than 1,000,000 acres of land recently opened to public entry in the Fort Peck Indian reservation, Northwestern Montana, Secretary Lane today invoked use of the enlarged homestead act, permitting tracts of 320 acres each, instead of 160, to be filed upon.

Large areas of these lands, however, are so situated that no water is available at reasonable cost for irrigation work.

REHEARING ASKED IN LIGHT CONDUIT CASE

Missouri Valley Realty Co. in Motion Attacks Attitude of Public Service Commission.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 17.—The Missouri Valley Realty Co. today filed with the Public Service Commission a motion for rehearing in the Cupples Station Light, Heat and Power Co. case, which was dismissed last week on the ground the commission had no right to interfere with the laying of conduits between Fourth and Eighth streets along Washington avenue.

The motion filed by the Missouri Valley Realty Co., which is understood to represent the Union Electric Light and Power Co., declares the construction placed upon the Public Service act by the commission in refusing to interfere, renders the commission of doubtful benefit to the public.

MISSOURI RANKS SIXTH IN LIME PRODUCTION

Twenty-Seven Plants in State Valued at $1,500,000, Output in 1913 $734,009.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 17.—A bulletin of the Bureau of Labor Statistics states that Missouri now holds sixth rank for lime manufacturing, the 1913 output amounting to 161,770 tons worth $734,009. The 27 Missouri plants, credited with this amount of lime manufactured for last year, turned out products worth about $950,000.

Three plants located in Greene County produced lime and shipped surplus limestone worth $330,000. In Ste. Genevieve County four plants reported shipments worth nearly $167,000, in St. Louis County $130,207.

The lime producing plants of Missouri have invested in them nearly $1,500,000.

MOTHER! REMEMBER "SYRUP OF FIGS" IS THE IDEAL LAXATIVE FOR A CHILD.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "physic" that mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing give "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child tomorrow. It should be the first remedy given as it always does good, never any harm.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—ADV.

Brilliant November Opera Outlook ✱ Drama Now in St. Louis

St. Louis Opera Season Is Promiseful of High-Class Opera at Popular Prices

Repertoire and Casts for San Carlo Company's November Engagement Are Genuinely Attractive—Distinguished "Guest" Stars and All Leading San Carlo Singers Will Be Heard—Opera Committee's Complete and Satisfying Plans Now Announced.

PRIMA DONNA "GUESTS" WITH SAN CARLO OPERA

MLLE GERVILLE_REACHE.

REGINA VICARINO.

Florencio Constantino, Jeanne Gerville-Reache and Regina Vicarino, Great "Guest" Stars, to Appear in Their Most Successful Roles — Antola, Vaccari, Sciaretti, Adaberto, Modesti, Zawner and Other San Carlo Principals, Effectively Cast.

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS.

THREE weeks from tomorrow the two weeks' engagement of the San Carlo Grand Opera Company, under the auspices of the St. Louis Grand Opera Committee, begins at the Odeon and all indications point to its development into one of the most thoroughly satisfying seasons known here for many years.

The St. Louis committee has worked to this end with fine enthusiasm and ability, and its selection of the San Carlo Company, under Fortune Gallo's direction, for the season of 1914 is is to be commended. This organization of sincere artists sang at the Olympic Theater last year and won high and well-deserved praise. Its performances at popular prices were of admirable quality, challenging comparison with the several high-priced companies heard in St. Louis of late seasons. Now, according to the newspapers of the Eastern cities where the San Carlo singers recently have appeared, they are "giving $5 opera at $2 prices." In addition to their own notable stars heard last year in St. Louis, they also will present three distinguished "guest" principals—Signor Florencio Constantino, regarded by many authoritative critics as a formidable rival of Caruso; Mlle. Jeanne Gerville-Reache, the great mezzo-soprano, who so splendidly sang and acted the role of Braengane in "Tristan and Isolde," as produced by the Chicago-Philadelphia Grand Opera Company at the Coliseum several seasons ago, and Mme. Regina Vicarino, the American prima donna declared by European opera lovers to be the greatest living Violetta in "La Traviata," the opera in which she will be heard during her approaching St. Louis engagement.

The Grand Opera Committee, with pardonable pride, feels that, in this excellent company, with its own distinguished principals and the reinforcement of three famous "guest" stars, an augmented chorus and enlarged orchestra, all at popular prices, it is offering grand opera entertainment very much in advance of anything St. Louis has yet heard in this noble field.

The Grand Opera Committee's announcement of the repertoire and casts for the Odeon season, as given below, constitutes a dependable promise of genuinely worthy opera worthily presented. The list of "guest" stars and principals of the San Carlo company is undeniably attractive.

We shall hear Constantino twice, in "Rigoletto" and "Aida;" Mlle. Gerville-Reache twice, in "Carmen" and "Trovatore;" Mme. Vicarino twice, in the two performances of "Traviata;" Mme. Vaccari seven times, in "Rigoletto," "The Barber of Seville," "Tales of Hoffmann," "Carmen," "The Masked Ball," "Lucia," and "Martha;" Antola nine times, in "Rigoletto," "Cavalleria," "Pagliacci," "Traviata" (twice), "Tales of Hoffmann," "Carmen," "Lucia," and "Martha;" Sciaretti four times, in "The Barber of Seville," "Tales of Hoffmann," "Lucia," and Martha;" Modesti three times, in "Aida," "The Masked Ball," and "Trovatore;" Mme. Adalberta three times, in "Cavalleria," "Aida" and "The Masked Ball;" Mme. Zawner six times, in "Rigoletto," Cavalleria," "Aida," "The Masked Ball," "Trovatore" and "Martha," and Agostini four times, in "Cavalleria," "Traviata" (twice) and "Carmen."

This is an inviting prospect.

Saturday evening, Nov. 21, at 8 o'clock, Odeon reserved for another event. See newspapers for announcement of special performance.

It will be noticed with peculiar interest that Signor Giuseppe Angelini, famous as "the scoreless maestro," will conduct all performances.

In addition to its announcement of the repertoire and casts, the Grand Opera Committee also issues an explanatory leaflet for the enlightenment of those opera-goers who wish to make an intelligent choice in their purchase of seats covering a full or half-season attendance.

Series "A" of the committee's arranging will include the entire engagement of 12 performances as now announced. Series "B": Monday evening, Nov. 9, "Rigoletto;" Thursday evening, Nov. 12, "Traviata;" Saturday afternoon, Nov. 14, "Tales of Hoffman;" Monday evening, Nov. 16, "Carmen;" Wednesday evening, Nov. 18, "Lucia;" Saturday afternoon, Nov. 21, "Martha."

Series "C": Wednesday evening, Nov. 11, "Cavalleria" and "Pagliacci;" Thursday afternoon, Nov. 12, "Barber of Seville;" Friday evening, Nov. 13, "Aida;" Tuesday evening, Nov. 17, "Masked Ball;" Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 18, "Traviata;" Friday evening, Nov. 20, "Trovatore."

The attractive scale of prices for this inaugural season of "popular opera" is: Series "A"—Boxes, seating six, $180; orchestra, $24; orchestra circle, $18; balcony, rows 1 to 6, $12; balcony, row 7, $6. Series "B" and "C"—Boxes, seating six, $90; orchestra, $12; orchestra circle, $9; balcony, rows 1 to 6, $6; balcony, row 7, $3.

Of the San Carlo company's own principals, a number already have appeared in St. Louis with the utmost distinction, establishing for themselves a large and enthusiastic following. They also highly have commended themselves to the favor of opera-goers in other American cities and, as well, are of conceded repute in foreign opera houses.

Angelo Antola, excellent baritone and finely dramatic actor, a prime St. Louis favorite, especially in the title role of "Rigoletto," as the Toreador in "Carmen," as Alfio in "Cavalleria," and as Tonio in "Pagliacci," has won fame in Italy and other European countries, in South America and on our own opera-loving Pacific Coast. Edvige Vaccari, coloratura soprano, sometimes called "the second Tetrazzinni," is of established reputation in the United States and abroad. Ester Adaberto, dramatic soprano, is a former prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York. Carolina Zawner, mezzo-soprano, sang with notable success at the Covent Garden Grand Opera in London. Salvatore Sciaretti, lyric tenor, also comes from the Metropolitan Opera Company. Alessandro Modesti, baritone, possesses a noble voice, is an actor of rare power, and was one of the leading favorites of the San Carlo company's engagement in St. Louis last season. Natale Cervi, basso, hails from the Opera Comique in Paris and is a singer and actor of sincere artistry.

It seems to me that St. Louis confidently may count upon hearing very excellent opera indeed when the San Carlo company comes to the Odeon next month.

DANDRUFFY HEADS BECOME HAIRLESS

Scalp Dries — Chokes Out the Hair and Prevents Its Growth.

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will be silky, fluffy, lustrous, soft and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—ADV.

Emotional Star and Musical Comedians Now in St. Louis

RAYMOND HITCHCOCK, EDWARD METCALFE and GEORGE ROMAIN in "THE BEAUTY SHOP" OLYMPIC.

HELEN WARE WITH 'THE REVOLT' NOW STAR AT SHUBERT

Raymond Hitchcock in "The Beauty Shop" at Olympic—Other St. Louis Playbills.

HELEN WARE in "THE REVOLT" SHUBERT—

HELEN WARE, in "The Revolt," Shubert. New emotional drama by Edward Locke, author of "The Climax," and "The Case of Becky." Said to give Miss Ware an exceptional opportunity for strong and appealing work.

The play's story deals primarily with the problem created by a busy husband's neglect of his wife and the wife's rebellion against this state of things. Its scenes are laid in New York and a lavishly picturesque production is promised.

Next week, Joseph Santley in "When Dreams Come True."

RAYMOND HITCHCOCK in "The Beauty Shop." Olympic. Big Astor Theater musical comedy success of last season in New York.

The piece is said to provide its star with a wealth of the clean, crisp and clever comedy in which he is at his best, and to be full of laughs from start to finish. Its music also is declared to be uncommonly pleasing. Stunning showgirls, handsomely costumed, a captivating chorus and dainty dancers are heralded. The original New York scenic setting is promised.

Next week Rock & Fulton in "The Candy Shop."

"LITTLE LOST SISTER." American. Return engagement of Edward E. Rose's heart-interest play made from Virginia Brooks' novel. It tells the story of an unsophisticated country girl lured to a big city by false impressions, of the shame that there befalls her, and of her return home to love and forgiveness.

"THE ROSE MAID." Park. Pleasing musical comedy, its score by Bruno Grenichstaedten, its book by Harry B. and Robert B. Smith. Louise Allen, soubrette, in the title role, and Mabel Wilber, the new prima donna, will compete for honors. Both are fitted with attractive songs, "Roses Bloom for Lovers," the theme number of the piece, falling to Miss Allen.

Carl Haydn has several important tenor solos. Roger Gray, leading comedian, is effectively cast. The play's story concerns the debts and love affairs of the young Duke of Barchester (Haydn), who, as heir to wealthy Sir John Portman, has got into the clutches of the money lenders. Its happy ending is cleverly brought about.

"THE SPENDTHRIFT." Shenandoah. Porter Emerson Browne's strong drama of the ominous situation created by a young wife's extravagance. Admirably presented by The Players, with Marion Ruckert and Mitchell Harris in the leading roles.

VAUDEVILLE. Columbia. Bill headed by the distinguished dramatic star, Henrietta Crosman, in "One Word," a curious playlet, in which neither of the two players speak more than one word, yet which is said to tell a strong and interesting story.

VAUDEVILLE. Grand. Bill headed by Max Bloom and his company of 22, also his renowned horse, Becky, in "The Sunny Side of Broadway," a 60-minute musical comedy.

VAUDEVILLE. Hippodrome. Bill headed by Dave Duprez, "the international comedian."

BEN WELCH'S NEW SHOW. Princess. Will present a musical farce entitled "The Old Clothes Man," a satire of the San Francisco Panama Exposition entitled "Frisco, 1915," and bright vaudeville. Songs by Irving Berlin and Ted Snyder. Ben Welch in a new monologue.

TAYLOR'S TANGO GIRLS. Standard. Will present a burlesque entitled "The Tango Dancers," and a clever vaudeville olio. Company includes Allen and Arnold, Bertha Rich and others, with Gladys Sears in the feature act.

MERRY BURLESQUERS. Gayety Richy W. Craig's company, with Craig as principal comedian, and Dorothy Blodgett as prima donna. Will present entertaining burlesque and vaudeville specialties.

BURTON HOLMES. Odeon. "Scotland." Tuesday night only. Second of annual series of five successive Tuesday night travelogues. Will show a "tramorama" view—taken from a moving street car—of Glasgow's quaint and busy streets; the man-made River Clyde; coaching through the Trossachs, cruising on the Caledonian Canal, on Loch Lomond, views from Gretna Green to Inverness, the great North Bridge, everyday life in Edinburgh, intimate motion pictures of King George and Queen Mary, and glimpses at the mobilization of Scottish regiments.

Next week, "Ireland."

JACOB P. ADLER in "Michael Strogoff." New Grand Central. Photoplay. Tuneful music and lighter films complete the program.

"IRELAND A NATION." Garrick. Shows in motion pictures the stirring history of Ireland from 1798 to 1914. Great events and great characters strikingly represented. Irish songs and music during the performance.

MARGUERITE CLARK in "Wildflower." West End Lyric. Photoplay version of Mary Germaine's novel. Marguerite Clark's first appearance in motion pictures.

"THE HOUSE OF TEMPERLEY." Juniata. Photoplay version of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's gripping story.

FORBES-ROBERTSON COMES NOV. 9.

Sir Johnstone Forbes-Robertson will begin his positively last engagement in St. Louis at the Shubert Theater on Monday evening, Nov. 9, the engagement being for one week, with Wednesday and Saturday matinees. His repertoire will be 'Hamlet," Monday night and Wednesday matinee; Kipling's "The Light That Failed," Tuesday and Saturday nights; "Passing of the Third Floor Back," Wednesday night and Saturday matinee; Bernard Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra," Thursday and Friday nights.

A Message to Thin, Weak, Scrawny Folks

An Easy Way to Gain 10 to 30 lbs. of Solid, Healthy, Permanent Flesh.

Thin, nervous, undeveloped men and women everywhere are heard to say, "I can't understand why I do not get fat. I eat plenty of good, nourishing food." The reason is just this: You cannot get fat, no matter how much you eat, unless your digestive organs assimilate the fat-making elements of your food instead of passing them out through the body as waste.

What is needed is a means of gently urging the assimilative functions of the stomach and intestines to absorb the oils and fats and hand them over to the blood, where they may reach the starved, shrunken, run-down tissues and build them up. The thin person's body is like a dry sponge—eager and hungry for the fatty materials of which it is being deprived by the failure of the alimentary canal to take them from the food. The best way to overcome this sinful waste of flesh-building elements and to stop the leakage of fats is to use Sargol, the recently discovered regenerative force that is recommended so highly by physicians here and abroad. Take a little Sargol tablet with every meal and notice how quickly your cheeks fill out and rolls of firm, healthy flesh are deposited over your body, covering each bony angle and projecting point. Judge & Dolph, Weipert Drug Co., Raboteau, Wolff-Wilson Co., Johnson-Enderle-Pauley 6 stores and other good druggists have Sargol, or can get it from their wholesaler, and will refund your money if you are not satisfied with the gain in weight it produces as stated on the guarantee in each package. It is inexpensive, easy to take and highly efficient.

Caution—While Sargol has produced remarkable results in overcoming nervous dyspepsia and general stomach troubles, it should not be taken unless you are willing to gain ten pounds or more, for it is a wonderful flesh-builder.—ADV.

Management Announces Innovation With Rock and Fulton in "The Candy Shop."

For the week beginning Sunday evening, Oct. 25, the Olympic management announces "The Candy Shop," a big and successful musical comedy which has played elsewhere at a $2 orchestra-seat rate, at a price of $1 for the best orchestra seats during the St. Louis engagement.

"If the size of 'The Candy Shop's' audiences indicates strong popular approval of this innovation," says Manager Walter Sanford, "I feel quite sure that many $2 and $1.50 attractions booked at the Olympic this season will lower their scale to the $1 rate. It all depends upon the public's response to this first venture."

"The Candy Shop" company is headed by William Rock and Maude Fulton, formerly among the brightest of vaudeville headliners and successful stars in musical comedy of late years.

Among the capable people cast are Daphne Pollard, long identified with the famous Pollard Opera company of Liliputians; Al Shean, who scored a New York success in the original company presenting "The Rose Maid;" George Baldwin, of grand opera repute; Frances White, a clever ingenue with an exceedingly sweet voice; Bessie Franklyn, Florence Morrison, Alfred Girard, Ted Burns, Bessie Naker, Ida Gold and Jane Grant.

A big, attractive and well-drilled chorus is promised. The play's two acts and four scenes are laid in New York and Coney Island.

The welcome movement toward lower theatrical prices seems also to have the indorsement of at least one New York manager. At the present moment John Mason, heading a distinguished company in "Big Jim Garrity," said to be a gripping high-class melodrama, is playing at the New York Theater in the metropolis, under A. H. Woods' management, at $1 for the best seat in the house.

LURID MELODRAMA OF EUROPEAN WAR ON LONDON STAGE

"In Time of War" Tells Blood-and-Thundery Story Full of Exciting Thrills.

"In Time of War," an up-to-the-minute melodrama of the present great European conflict, now is being presented in London to enthusiastic audiences.

Its story is full of conventional "thrills." Diana Squires, before her marriage to Capt. Russell Squires, in charge of the British wireless code, had a foolish love affair with Richard Bellairs, a German spy in disguise. He insulted her after her marriage and her husband wounded him in a duel. Capt. Squires is suddenly called to the front. Bellairs reappears, with certain love letters of her writing, seeking to blackmail her into giving up the secret code of the British wireless service. When she refuses there is a struggle, during which Capt. Squires returns. He accuses her of an "affair" with Bellairs and then goes back to war, hoping for death.

Diana follows him as a Red Cross nurse, accompanied by her maid, who turns out to be a German Princess serving as a spy in association with Bellairs, who in reality is a German Baron. Diana becomes head nurse in an army hospital, where the mortality among the wounded English soldiers is so great that she is charged with poisoning them, and her husband finds it necessary to accuse her at headquarters.

In the nick of time, however, he discovers the German spy maid poisoning the water used in the hospital. She signals a German aeroplane to come to her rescue, but the bomb dropped by the aeroplane kills her instead of the English at whom it was aimed. Capt. Squires then is reconciled to his wife and all ends happily.

One of the characters in the play, it is stated, is a certain Prince Siegfried, a German, "whose stage nom-de-guerre so thinly veils a most notorious monarch that his appearance was greeted with howls from a loyal British audience on the play's opening night."

The Best Laxative to Use for Children

When your baby is cross and fretful instead of the happy, laughing little dear you are accustomed to, in all probability the digestion has become deranged and the bowels need attention. Give it a mild laxative, dispel the irritability and bring back the happy content of babyhood.

The very best laxative for children is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, because it contains no opiate or narcotic drug, is pleasant tasting and acts gently, but surely, without griping or other distress. Druggists sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle. For a free trial bottle write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 451 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

ASKS DISSOLUTION OF INTERNATIONAL SUNSHINE SOCIETY

New York Attorney - General Says Running Institutions for Profit Violates Charter.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—An application by Attorney-General Parsons of New York State for the dissolution of the International Sunshine Society was filed today in the County Clerk's office here. The application alleges that the society has violated its charter in maintaining for profit a sanitarium and a home for blind babies.

The maintenance of the Arthur Home Attorney-General charges, has been violated by the society by the maintenance of a sanitarium and a lodge at Bensonhurst, L. I., which were run for profit.

The maintenace of the Arthur Home for Blind Babies at Summit, N. J., it is alleged, is also in violation of the society's charter.

This charter, according to the application, authorizes the society simply to "incite its members to the performance of kind and helpful deeds and thereby spread the sunshine of happiness."

The society was organized March 9, 1900.

WOMEN TAKE OFF HATS AND MUSIC IS BETTER

Chicago's Symphony Orchestra's New Rule Introduced at Opening Concert.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—For the first time in the 24 years of its existence the Chicago Symphony Orchestra yesterday opened its annual concert season in orchestra hall before a hatless audience. Conductor Frederick Stock, as he waved the baton wore a satisfied smile. He said the quality of the music was greatly improved.

"Trying to produce real music withh a field of velvet and beplumed hats acting as a deadening blanket is out of the question," he explained.

"Then also think of the man or woman who has to sit behind towering chapeaux and have the music sifted through them. With the hats out of the way the music will be much better."

This year the trustees of the Orchestral Association took the matter firmly in hand. On each ticket was printed the following:

"The purchaser of this ticket accepts the same subject to the rules of the house, including the rule requiring the removal of hats."

REVENUE MEN IN RAID FIND OLEO BEHIND PIANO

1300 Pounds of Product Seized at 4452 Cote Brilliante and 1711 North Taylor.

Internal revenue officers surrounded the building occupied by the Indiana Creamery Co. at 1711 North Taylor avenue at 6 o'clock Friday night, broke down the door and captured 1000 pounds of oleo, a quantity that was in process of manufacture and some coloring material.

A raid also was made on the Famous Creamery, 4452 Cote Brilliante avenue. A bulldog on the porch opposed their entrance, but Mrs. Edward L. Hedegarde, wife of the proprietor, at their request, tied up the dog. In the basement they found oleo being manufactured and a quantity of coloring matter. In the parlor, behind the piano, they found 300 pounds of oleo in tubs.

Warrants will be asked for against Hedegarde and against Charles Strauo, proprietor of the Indiana Creamery Co.

GRANDPARENTS THREE TIMES IN THREE DAYS

NOBLEVILLE, Ind., Oct. 17.—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Watson of Lafontaine experienced grandparenthood three times in three consecutive days recently.

The stork's first stop was at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Watson, where a daughter was left.

On the following day a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Watson, and on the third day a girl baby arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Job Watson.

RECIPE TO STOP DANDRUFF

This Home Made Mixture Stops Dandruff and Falling Hair and Aids Its Growth.

To a half pint of water add:
Bay Rum.......................1 oz.
Barbo Compound.........a small box
Glycerine ....¼ oz.

These are all simple ingredients that you can buy from any druggist at very little cost, and mix them yourself. Apply to the scalp once a day for two weeks, then once every other week until all the mixture is used. A half pint should be enough to rid the head of dandruff and kill the dandruff germs. It stops the hair from falling out, relieves itching and scalp diseases.

Although it is not a dye, it acts upon the hair roots and will darken streaked, faded, gray hair in ten or fifteen days. It promotes the growth of the hair and makes harsh hair soft and glossy.—ADVERTISEMENT.

Bad Blood

Hatred of the Nations for One Another.

This European war was born of the hatred caused by earlier warfare—it will engender other wars between the same nations in the future. The sons yet unborn will carry this hatred in their blood to blaze into warfare when the spark is touched by Kings or Statesmen who are yet in infancy.

It's bad blood that makes your liver sluggish and the same bad blood causes your stomach muscles to lose their elasticity and become flabby and weak, and that means indigestion.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, purely vegetable and free from alcohol or narcotics, is not a secret remedy, for all its ingredients are printed on wrapper.

Take it as directed and it will search out impure and poisonous matter in the stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys and drive it from the system through the natural channels.

It will penetrate into the joints and muscles, and dissolve the poisonous accumulations. It will replace all the bad blood it drives out with rich, pure blood full of vital force. It will furnish you with the kind of blood that increases energy and ambition, that puts the entire body in such perfect physical condition that brain or muscles know no fatigue.

It will clear the skin; eczema, pimples, rash, blotches will dry up and disappear; boils, carbuncles and other evidences of tained blood will pass away, never to appear again.

Get Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery at any medicine dealer today, in either liquid or tablet form, as you prefer. It's the one great blood-maker and purifier that all weak or run-down people ought to start to use at once. If you want good blood, good health and clear skin, get a supply today.—ADV.

GRAY HAIR RESTORED BY NATURAL MEANS

Don't Use Dyes. They May Harm. Let the Action of Air Bring Back Natural Color.

These gray strands that streak your hair and all too convincingly remind your friends of your advancing years, will positively and surely yield to the gentle, harmless, restoring influence of Hay's Hair Health. You simply moisten the hair with this wonderful effective preparation and the natural color begins at once to come back.

Hay's Hair Health is not a dye—it restores color by NATURAL FORCES. It contains good old-fashioned remedies, which strengthen, up-build and revitalize the hair, and with them is an element which so prepares the hair that when it is exposed to AIR it comes back to the color that nature intended.

You don't have to use deleterious and destroying drugs—you can let so harmless and wholesome a thing as the AIR YOU BREATHE help you to get rid of gray hairs you now have and KEEP OTHERS FROM COMING IN.

No matter how gray you may now be; no matter what else you may have used, begin at once using the NATURAL restorative—Hay's Hair Health. It routs dandruff, freshens dull, lifeless hair. It makes the hair YOUNG looking, brings back its lustre, softness and luxuriance. If it fails, druggist will refund price. 25c, 50c and $1.00 at Drug Stores or direct upon receipt of price and dealer's name. Philo Hay Spec. Co., Newark, N. J.—ADV.

STOPPED HIS DRINKING

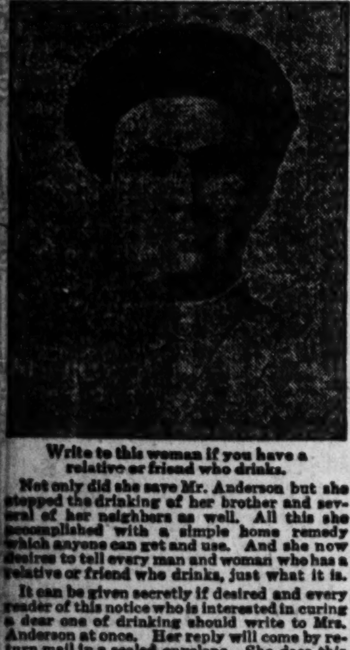
This Wife and Mother Saved Her Husband Over Ten Years Ago

SHE WILL GLADLY TELL YOU HOW

FREE

Write to Her Today. Send No Money. She Has Nothing To Sell

For over 20 years James Anderson of Hillburn, N. Y., was a confirmed drunkard. His case was about as bad as it could be, but a little over ten years ago his devoted wife, after years of trying, finally succeeded in stopping his drinking entirely.



Write to this woman if you have a relative or friend who drinks.

Not only did she save Mr. Anderson but she stopped the drinking of her brother and several of her neighbors as well. All this she accomplished with a simple home remedy which anyone can get and use. And she now desires to tell every man and woman who has a relative or friend who drinks, just what it is.

It can be given secretly if desired and every reader of this notice who is interested in curing a dear one of drinking should write to Mrs. Anderson at once. Her reply will come by return mail in a sealed envelope. She does this gladly, in hopes that others will be benefitted as she was. One thing she asks however, and that is that you do not send money for she has nothing to sell. Her address is 511 Hill Ave., Hillburn, N. Y

NOTE: This offer should be accepted at once by all who have dear ones who drink. In fact, every one who has to contend in any way with drunkenness should know about it. Therefore, if you do not write Mrs Anderson yourself CUT THIS NOTICE OUT and mail it to a friend who could use her advice. And even though you do answer it, MAIL IT TO SOMEONE ELSE who you think would like to know what Mrs. Anderson used. In other words, let this notice reach as many as possible for Mrs. Anderson will reply to every letter, no matter how many she receives.

FIRST MASS AND BLESSING IN NEW CATHEDRAL TODAY

Archbishop Glennon to Be Officiating Prelate at Catholic Ceremony at 10:30.

ELABORATE PROGRAM

Gregorian Music, Processions and Ecclesiastical Splendor to Mark Occasion.

The blessing and first mass in the new Cathedral, Lindell boulevard and Newstead avenue, will be held at 10:30 this morning with all the ecclesiastical splendor and ceremony of the Roman Catholic Church attendant upon such occasions.

Archbishop Glennon will be the officiating prelate, assisted by 300 churchmen and seminarians who will participate in the elaborate program of Gregorian music which will be rendered under the direction of Camille M. Becker, Cathedral parish organist.

Archbishop Glennon told a reporter yesterday he hoped to have the new structure consecrated by next year. The great altar will be installed by that time, and the edifice paid for, as required before consecration takes place.

The Rev. Father Francis Gilfillan, pastor of the Cathedral parish, made the final preparations for the celebration of the pontifical high mass. About 30 church dignitaries will assist in the celebration, while the seminarians will lend volume to the ancient chants.

Will Seat 3500 Persons.

Two thousand persons can be seated in the pews, and 1500 more in chairs in the galleries. Pew holders will enter by the side doors, and others from the Lindell boulevard entrance. Services will be conducted from the temporary altar installed until the arrival of the $160,000 altar now being built in New York, the gift of W. C. McBride of 29 Washington terrace.

Preceding the mass will be the blessing by the Archbishop. This will consist of three processions, which will pass from the rear down the epistle side and up the gospel aisle, the Archbishop sprinkling holy water the while.

Bishop J. J. Hennessy will be celebrant of the mass, with the Right Reverend Monsignor Joseph A. Connolly assisting.

Total Estimated Cost $3,000,000.

The cost of the cathedral to date is placed at $1,500,000. The estimated cost when fully completed, in about 10 years, will be about $3,000,000. The structure was designed by George D. Barnett in the Byzantine style of architecture.

Today's musical program at the cathedral follows:

Introitus—"Terribilis est ....Gregorian
Students of Kenrick Seminary.
Kyrie—Three-part Male Chorus and Solo Trio ....Charles Gounod
St. Louis New Cathedral Choral Society.
Gloria—Three-part Male Chorus and Male Trio ....Charles Gounod

REMODELING OF KANSAS STATE PRISON URGED

Commission Recommends Setting Aside $100,000 for Work and Plans Wage Reforms.

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 17.—Reconstruction of the entire Kansas State Penitentiary, with the exception of the new twine plant, was urged by the advisory commission recently appointed by Gov. Hodges to investigate needed improvement, in a report presented to the Governor today.

Several years' time should be devoted to the reconstruction of the prison, the commision says, and the Legislature is urged to make an appropriation of $100,000 to begin the work.

A graduated wage scale for prisoners is one of the reforms urged by the commissioners.

"We would recommend," says the report, "a minimum wage of 5 cents a day for every prisoner and a maximum wage of 30 cents, the amount between the minimum and maximum to be determined by the Board of Correction and the Warden."

TO MARK QUIET ZONES

Street Signs Near All Hospitals Will Warn Against Noise.

Quiet zones established by ordinance more than a year ago about every hospital in the city, public or private, will be marked by street standards placed by the Street Department this week.

The ordinance makes all streets and alleys immediately abutting the grounds of a hospital a quiet zone, and the penalty for making a disturbing noise of any kind is arrest and a fine. Director of Streets Talbert has prepared signs to mark all street corners affected by the ordinance.

What the Moving Picture Does.

Lecture on Lutheran Missions.

The Rev. Philip Wambsganss of Fort Wayne, Ind., will give two illustrated stereopticon lectures on Lutheran missions, Tuesday and Wednesday nights. The first will be at Zion's Hall, Twentieth and Benton street, and the second at Holy Cross Hall, 3630 Ohio avenue.

MAY-STERN & CO.

For This Week, We Announce a Special Demonstration and Sale of Our Newest Victor Overdraft Heater

"An Entirely New Idea in Heating Stove Construction"

The best Soft Coal Stove in the world— it converts every ounce of fuel into heat and distributes it in the room and not up the chimney—on sale this week at the special introductory price of only

$14.50

Terms $1.00 Cash—and $1.00 a Month

$1.00 CASH $1.00 A MONTH

Get your Victor Heater NOW. Be ready when the cold weather comes.

EVERY man and woman in St. Louis—who has any intention of buying a new heater this season—should make it a point to visit May-Stern's this week—and see this wonderful new Victor Overdraft Heater. Frankly—there is nothing on the market that can compare with it—and you owe it to yourself to become acquainted with its many points of superiority.

Victor Stoves Make Comfortable Homes.

The New Victor Overdraft Heater

Is exactly as shown in the illustration—it is handsome in appearance—constructed in the finest manner throughout, richly nickel trimmed and possesses more unique features than any other heater that has heretofore been presented to your notice.

Burns Hard or Soft Coal, Coke, Wood or Slack

The grates, the drafts and the entire construction of this stove are so scientifically perfect that it will burn any kind of fuel—and not only that—it will get more actual heat out of every pound of fuel than any other stove on the market.

Burns the Smoke and Consumes the Gas

Every other stove but this allows half the coal to escape up the chimney in the form of smoke or gas—the patented construction of this stove permits it to utilize as fuel all the gases and combustible elements of the coal—makes this stove practically smokeless and explains why it consumes about half the fuel needed by any other stove.

Heats the Floor

This is the only soft coal stove made that heats the floor of the room. The inverted conical base radiates the heat so every part of the floor, as well as the room, receives direct heat waves. This is even better than a base-burner which only sends heat to the floor directly under the stove.

Holds Fire 24 to 36 Hours

Just as the speed of an engine can be regulated by the throttle, so can the rate of combustion of this stove be regulated by its drafts. The fuel can be made to burn fast or slow—and the fire can be kept going for twenty-four to thirty-six hours without touching the stove or adding fuel.

To Appreciate This Heater

You must call and see it for yourself—note the interior construction—and permit the demonstrator in charge to explain to you its many wonderful features. It is the only stove of its kind on the market—and is well worth seeing.

Our Special Price—$14.50

In order to introduce this wonderful Heater into the homes of this city we offer it this week at this special low price of $14.50—and on terms of $1.00 cash and $1.00 a month. Visit our store this week—see this wonderful stove in operation.

Good Stories Told in Washington by or About Men of Note.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.

AT a recent political dinner in Washington, where statesmen and diplomats shed the burden of discussing grave questions of the hour and turned to talking of sweet sopranos and impassioned tenors, Senator John Sharp Williams of Mississippi inaugurated the usual period for spinning yarns with the following anecdote:

"Some time ago a man named White was rambling along a boulevard when he met his friend, Black, whose morose, troubled features showed plainly he was absorbed in deep, serious thought. He was wearing an expression like four-ply sadness.

"'What in the world is the matter, old man?' asked White, wonderingly. 'You look as if you had stacked up against some kind of hard disappointment.'

"'I have, Jim,' was the sorrowful response. 'I have just discovered that my wife can't sing.'

"'Great Scott, man!' exclaimed White, 'that shouldn't distress you a bit. Why, you are to be congratulated!'

"'You don't understand, old fellow,' said Black, with a forlorn, prolonged sigh. 'She thinks she can.'"

Barchfield Tells How Papa Decided to Pay Chauffeur

THE subject of sliding over difficult financial situations was being discussed when Congressman Andrew J. Barchfield of Pittsburg recalled the story of Papa Smith.

Papa Smith was seated in his luxurious den one evening wondering how he was going to juggle the money market to make his assets and liabilities meet, when his beautiful daughter imperiously walked into the room.

"Papa," she remarked, with a defiant air, "I have decided that unless you buy me that $5000 necklace I will elope with the chauffeur!"

"My darling child!" joyously exclaimed the old man, extending his hands towards the fair one. "Come right into papa's arms!"

"Oh, papa!" was the pleased response of the daughter, yielding to her father's embrace, "do I really and truly get the necklace?"

"No, my dear," answered Papa Smith. "You get the chauffeur. I owe him eight months' salary."

Volstead Recalls a Timely Comparison Made by Youth

CONGRESSMAN ANDREW J. VOLSTEAD of Minnesota was at a social affair the other evening and the talk turned to the happy faculty some people have of saying the right thing at the right time. He told the following story as an illustration:

Young party named Charles, so ran the story, was greatly enamored of a girl called Maybelle. Night after night he joined the jubilee on the side porch, and eventually came to the proposing point.

"Dearest," he murmured in a slow waltz voice, as he grasped her hand, "I love you devotedly, and beg the privilege of laying my fortune at your feet."

"Your fortune!" exclaimed Maybelle, some surprised. "I didn't know you had a fortune."

"It isn't a very large fortune, dear," softly responded Charles, "but beside those tiny feet of yours it will look like a real Rockefeller lump."

Oakly Curtis Tells How Jake Foiled Wife's Economy Plan

OAKLY S. CURTIS, Governor-elect of Maine, told the following story during a recent visit to Washington:

[illegible] few weeks ago Jake Snyder and his wife [illegible] a trip to the seashore, and after seeing the moving pictures and buying salt-water taffey and various other things, the Snyder capital faded away.

"'Gee, Sallie!' remarked Jake, as the train puffed its way across the meadows, 'we are not breaking away too soon. I have got just 4 cents left.'

"'That's all right, Jake,' soothingly replied mother. 'We will be fixed as soon as we get home. The morning we came down here I hid a $10 bill under a compote in the china closet.'

"'Yes, I know,' said Jake, a little sighfully. 'I found it just before we started.'"

Ohio Governor Finds He Has Name That Belongs to Negro

GOV. COX of Ohio told recently of a hunting trip he made in Kentucky. While in the mountain district he met a typical Southern negro, whose name was also Cox.

"How is it," inquired the Governor jokingly, "that your name is Cox? Up in my States only white folks have that name."

After rolling his eyes around once or twice, the negro replied: "I ain't never jest heard how the white folks did get to using our name."

Tommy Unreasonable, Jimmy Told Mother as He Ate Second Cake

CONGRESSMAN JAMES T. HEFLIN of Alabama, who always has a good one up his sleeve, told this one the other evening at a somkefest, when the topic drifted to the wonderful ways of youngsters:

Hearing a sound like fierce sobbing in the kitchen of her suburban home, the other day, a mother hastened to investigate and found Tommy deep in sobful distress. Close by stood brother Jimmy, two years older.

"Jimmy," demanded the mother, looking from one to the other, "what's the matter with your brother, Tommy?"

"He is crying," explained Jimmy, "because I am eating my cake and won't give him any."

"That's not nice," the mother said, reprovingly. "Is his own cake finished?"

"Yes, ma'am," answered Jimmy, "and he cried while I was eating that, too."

Texas Heckler Answered Too Well Sheppard's Question

MORRIS SHEPPARD, one of the youngest [illegible]tors, ow[illegible] his election as successor to [illegible] W. Bailey to the prohibition vote which, when counted, swept Sheppard's opponent out of the race. Sheppard is a hard-shell prohibitionist, and while he was campaigning made prohibition talks wherever and whenever he could. The following colloquy took place in a village in Northern Texas:

"Yes, my friends," Sheppard said, "there are many excuses for the glass. The sick man says he must have his glass to make him well. The shivering taxi man must have his glass to make him warm. The sweating mechanic must have his glass to make him cool.

"But they lie, friends. Don't believe the working man who says he can't work without his glass. I defy anybody to mention to me a workingman who cannot work as well and better without his glass as with it."

A voice in the back of the hall made itself audible:

"I can tell you one!"

"I defy you to do so," said Sheppard. Then the voice observed:

"The glazier can't do without his glass."

Sheppard continued his oration at a decided disadvantage.

Golf Sometimes Tiresome Even to Those Who Do Not Play It

A NUMBER of statesmen were gossiping in the lobby of a Washington hotel one night recently when the topic turned to golf and the enthusiasm of the average player. Senator Albert B. Fall of New Mexico unfolded the following:

One evening at an elaborate social affair a young man, who was an enthusiastic golfer, was introduced to a beautiful girl, and later, when seated together amidst the palms and flowers, he began an exhaustive dissertation on his favorite game.

"The only objection that I have to golf," remarked the beautiful girl at length, "is that at times it becomes a trifle wearisome."

"Why, Miss Smith," exclaimed the young man, with a look of surprise, "I understood you to say that you don't play the game!"

"Neither do I," was the joltful rejoinder of the charming one, "but I have friends who talk about it continuously."

Campbell's John Henry Took Unfair Advantage of Rivals

SPEAKING of craftiness the other evening, Congressman Philip P. Campbell of Kansas told of the great head possessed by a man named John Henry.

Some time ago John Henry bouquet for a young woman his heart, and carrying th where she was stopping, [illegible] them to her room.

"And still they're comin'" as he took the bouquet. " ler wot has sent her fl

HATS OFF! SALUTE CHILDREN'S GRAND ARMY OF LEAGUE!

Again Has It Whipped Grim Death and Saved the Little Ones of the Poor.

BREAKS ITS 1913 RECORD

Milk Fund Totals $4486.57 and Total League Membership Is 2616.

The Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund, established and maintained to save the babies of the city's crowded tenement districts from sickness and death, due to the poison of impure milk, today closes its tenth season so successfully as to create a new record for the Children of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk League, through whose splendid efforts the entire fund now virtually is raised.

The Pure Milk Fund total for the season of 1914 now just ended reaches the imposing sum of $4486.57, surpassing by $477.16 the great fund raised by the hard-fighting girls and boys of the League season of 1913.

The membership of the Pure Milk League this season reaches a total of 2616, which is an increase of 539 over the total League membership of last summer.

From the beneficent fund thus raised by the young folks of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk League the payments of the St. Louis Pure Milk Commission's milk bills for June, July, August, September and October are made as follows: June, $425.55; July, $502.87; August, $623.91; September, $537.89; October, $200. The total of these bills is $2290.22. The only payment still to be made is that for October, which falls due on Nov. 1.

The payments of the ice bills of the Free Ice and Sick Diet Circle of the King's Daughters are made as follows: June, $484.40; [illegible] $465.12, August, $399.90; September, [illegible].02; October, $300. The total of these bills is $2116.44. The only payment still to be made is that for October, which falls due on Nov. 1.

The grand total of the milk and ice bills paid for the five months named is $4406.66. This leaves a balance in the fund of $79.91, which also will be used for the good purposes for which the fund was raised.

The victorious Children of the League have good reason for prideful rejoicing over their magnificent achievement during the summer now just ended.

Again they have fought at hand-grips with grim old Death in the tenements—and again they have driven him away from the little ones of the poor, whose lives he claims as his because they are weak and defenceless and at his mercy unless some champion stands between them and him.

The Grand Army of Children of the League is this rescuing champion of the little ones of the poor.

Thanks to the larger fund which they raised this past summer, they have enabled the St. Louis Pure Milk Commission to maintain 18 pure milk distributing stations in various crowded sections of the city—the greatest number yet operated by the Pure Milk Commission during the entire 10 years of its lifesaving service among the babies of the tenements.

Not one of these pure milk distributing stations has been closed on any day of the summer of 1914.

Nor has there been any discontinuance of the medical and feeding clinics, at each of which a member of the staff of physicians associated with the Pure Milk Commission examines each baby, prescribing the precise formula of modified milk needed for its individual case and, also, instructing mothers in the all-important matter of baby-feeding.

And not one tenement mother has been denied the pure milk which she sought for the saving of her baby's life.

Similarly, too, the larger fund raised this past summer by the Children of the League has enabled the Free Ice and Sick Diet Circle of the King's Daughters to broaden the scope of their own noble service, faithfully performed—that of distributing free ice to tenement mothers and the sick poor.

And again, as last year, the splendid work done by the Children of the League now gives St. Louis the lowest baby death-rate of any large city in this country.

With the establishment of this magnificent record the girls and boys of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk League now terminate their "Save the Babies!" campaign of 1914.

Their great and unselfish army, the Grand Army of Children of the League, is the most glorious army now in existence anywhere in this world—bar none.

It is an army that saves life, not an army that destroys life.

And the lives it saves are those of the weak and helpless, the imperiled babies of the poor, who have no other defenders.

Take off your hat and salute this Grand Army of Children of the League!

All honor to each and every little soldier in its ranks!

KNOX DECLARES WILSON HAS ACTED AGAINST GERMANY

Former Senator Criticises Administration for Sealing Up German Wireless Station.

MEXICAN VIEWS AIRED

Republican Hearers Are Told That Failure to Recognize Huerta Caused Bloodshed.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 17.—Philander C. Knox, former United States Senator and Secretary of State, at a Republican meeting today made caustic criticism of the present administration and its Mexican policy.

At the outset Knox had occasion to quote Theodore Roosevelt on the "tyranny of the minority,' 'and had this to say about the former President: "I am proud of the achievement of the party during his administration; I can only regret that as a great national asset, his strength is not being conserved for future contests with the common enemy, whose incompetent administration of national affairs has rendered anaemic the young giant nation of the world upon the threshold of his greatest opportunity."

Criticises Democratic Policies.

Knox criticised the Democratic party for holding the Republican party responsible for certain situations in connection with American foreign affairs. No party, he said, "has the right to imperil the equilibrium of our international relations by subjecting them to the rough and perilous course of domestic politics."

"No finer tribute could be paid to the Taft administration of our foreign affairs," Knox continued, "than did President Wilson in his message to his first regular session of Congress. 'The country,' Mr. Wilson said, 'I am thankful to say, is at peace with all the world.'

"The Democrats prattle about peace, yet they have the distinction of beginning a war upon a famished and distraught neighboring people. William H. Taft, barring only the notable work of Theodore Roosevelt, in the termination of the Russo-Japanese war, did more for world peace than any man of this generation."

He stated that all the bloodshed with which Mexico has been cursed during the past 18 months was due to the failure to recognize the Huerta Government and to the removal of embargo on the sale of war material to Mexican bandits.

"But it is concerning the maintenace of our neutrality during the European conflict," said Knox, "that the administration registers the loftiest heights of self-satisfaction. Indeed, here they even seem to surprise themselves with their own prowess and utterances which they make regarding this neutrality ring with the thought 'we didn't think we could do it.'

Partisan View of European War.

"Of course, the fact that there is no conceivable way, short of our gross misconduct, by which we could have injected ourselves into the present conflict, is overlooked in these self-satisfying contemplations.

"Our positive action has at times approached dangerously near to open partisanship. At the outbreak of the war we took, as to certain German wireless stations, an attitude uncalled for under the rules and principles of international law. We practically sealed up the German wireless station and coincidentally the cables connecting Germany and the United States were clipped. Thus was Germany isolated, while the allies had complete lines of communication between America and Europe. It is true that the administration blustered about controlling cables of the allies and imposing upon them the same restrictions which it had imposed upon German communication, yet every telegraph messenger boy of any intelligence knows of the great cables running from Nova Scotia to Europe, the American terminals which can be reached from the United States by telegraph, telephone and mails, over which the executive has neither power nor control. I am unwilling to believe that this was intended as a partisan act in favor of the allies and yet, unfortunately for us, there is much in the situation that gives ground for such a charge by the German Government."

VOTERS WHO HAVE MOVED MAY REGISTER THIS WEEK

Election Commissioners Will Enroll Citizens Tomorrow, Wednesday and Friday.

Voters who have moved since Sept. 17 will have three opportunities this week to register in the wards in which they now reside.

Election Commissioners will keep their office in the city hall open tomorrow. Wednesday and Friday night until 10 o'clock for the accommodation of voters.

Next Wednesday voters, who were absent from the city or ill on last registration day, may have their names placed on the election books by visiting the Election Commissioners' office.

Next Friday and Saturday the Judges in the Circuit Court will hear appeals from decisions of the Election Board.

HEADACHES

Thousands of men and women suffer from headaches every day, other thousands have headaches every week, and still others have headaches occasionally, but not at regular intervals. The best Doctor is often unable to find the cause of many of these headaches, and in most other cases, knowing the cause, he does not know what will remove it, so as to give a permanent cure. All he can do is to prescribe the usual pain relievers, which give temporary relief, but the headache returns as usual, and treatment is again necessary. If you suffer from headaches, no matter what their nature, take Anti-kamnia Tablets, and the results will be satisfactory in the highest degree. You can obtain them at all druggists in any quantity, 10c worth, 25c worth or more. Ask for A-K Tablets.

SICK-HEADACHES

Sick-headache, the most miserable of all sicknesses, loses its terrors when A-K Tablets are taken. When you feel an attack coming on, take two tablets, and in many cases the attack will be warded off. During an attack take one A-K Tablet every two hours. The rest and comfort which follow can be obtained in no other way.

Genuine A-K Tablets bear the ꓘ monogram. At all Druggists. —ADV.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system.

They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after-effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or disagreeable effects of any kind.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint with the attendant bad breath.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O.

The persons who believe in benefiting by the knowledge and experience of others are wisest—"canniest," as the Scotch say. They will let the experienced agent handle their property, and will direct that he keep it listed in the Post-Dispatch Real Estate column.

Girlish Complexion Now Easily Acquired

"A skin of blended snow, cream and rose" is the way an Ohio correspondent describes her newly acquired complexion. She is one who has adopted mercolized wax in place of cosmetics, massage, steaming and other methods. Many who have tried this marvelous wax report that its effects are quite different from those of any other treatment. It produces a complexion of exquisite girlish naturalness, rather than one bearing evidence of having been artificially "made over." One that is indeed "Nature's own," the result of gradually absorbing dead particles of surface skin, permitting the younger, healthier skin beneath to show itself and giving its pores a chance to breathe. Mercolized wax, procurable at any drug store in original one-ounce package, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

I have also had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have mislaid the formula, here it is: 1 oz. powdered saxolite, dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel.—"Natalie" in the Woman Militant. —ADV.

A Single Application Will Banish Objectionable Hairs

(Aids to Beauty)

Here is a home treatment for removing hairs that is quick, painless and inexpensive: With some powdered delatone and water make enough paste to thickly cover the objectionable hairs, apply and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be left soft, clear and hairless. This treatment will not mar the skin, but to avoid disappointment, be careful to get real delatone.—ADV.

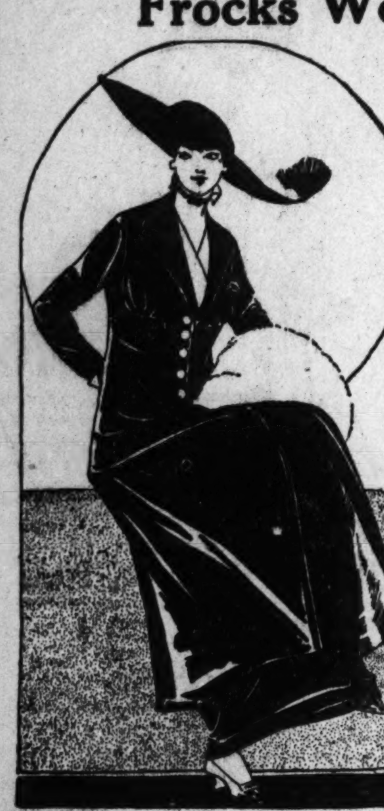
This Great Store Is Brimful of Everything That You Will Need for Winter

The cooler days of the past week were responsible for the greatly increased demand for warmer apparel and other Fall and Winter merchandise. This week that demand will increase, and nowhere can your wants be supplied to greater satisfaction than at Vandervoort's, where all departments are completely ready with the largest and best assorted stocks in their history. Let us demonstrate these facts Monday.

A week from next Monday, October 26th, will see the opening of the Horse Show, and it is claimed that it will be the largest and best Horse Show ever held in St. Louis.

Women who contemplate attending the show and will need suitable attire for the occasion will find at Vandervoort's everything that is correct for either afternoon or evening wear.

You Will Be Charmed With the Many New Frocks We Have Added to Our Line



While on Monday we shall feature some exceptional values in Street and Afternoon Frocks—a number of which are listed in this advertisement—please do not lose sight of the fact that we have made special preparations to supply proper gowns for wear at the coming Horse Show. Your needs, whatever they are, can be supplied most satisfactorily.

The models we are showing are entirely too numerous to attempt to describe and, consequently, we content ourselves by describing a few, as examples.

$29.50 for the Frock We Illustrate

The Frock shown in the illustration is of black satin in the so-much-liked tailored Redingote effect and is made on semi-Empire lines. It has a white faille collar and cuffs, while jet buttons add a distinctive touch. It is an unusual value at $29.50

Other Street and Afternoon Frocks

We are featuring a special group of some unusually attractive Satin and Crepe Afternoon Dresses, among which you will find the most desirable colors and styles of the season. These are priced at $39.50

One lovely Afternoon Frock—just received—is of broadcloth with bodice and underskirt of self-colored velvet and a shirred velvet panel back. Fur collar and cuffs complete this model which is priced at $59.50

Our display of Serge Dresses, for street and afternoon wear, is especially large and attractive, and the prices range from $12.75 to $35.00

A Special Dancing Frock at $59.50

An exceptionally charming Dancing Frock is of plaited chiffon in coral pink. It features the high Empire lines and has dainty iridescent trimmings and a touch of fawn-colored velvet. This garment is priced at $59.50

Extra Special We have assembled, for Monday's selling, a number of broken lines of Women's Crepe, Satin and Taffeta Dresses, in medium colors and black. These range in value up to $35.00, but they will be offered, while they last, at $14.75

Milton Player-piano at $475

—the Piano That Everyone Can Play

Every home should have music. It rounds out the education of the child, it helps to make pleasant the long Winter evenings and makes the home so attractive that the young will not seek pleasures elsewhere. In many homes no one plays the piano, hence there is no music.

Every home without music and every lover of music should see our popular-priced

Milton Player-piano at $475

Its simplicity of construction, its graceful case outlines, its beautiful finish and its wonderful tone will appeal to you.

No instruction is necessary to play. Simply sit down to the piano, insert a roll and begin to pump, and immediately the music is produced.

We also sell the Stratford Player-piano at $370.00, and on terms, if desired, of $2.00 a week.

Also the old favorites—Vose, Fischer, Haines Bros. and Chickering Player-pianos.

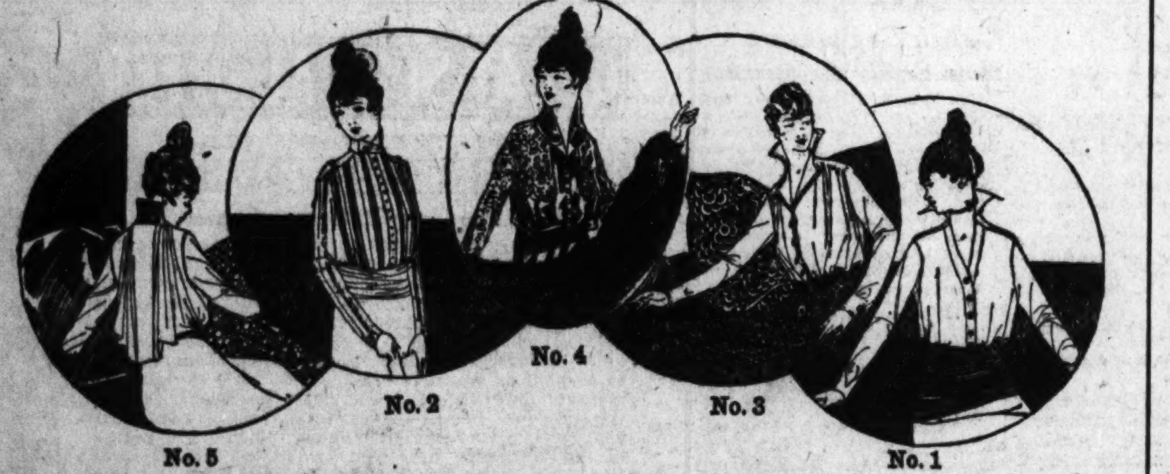
Note These Five New and Inexpensive Fall Blouses



The assortment of new Fall Blouses that we are showing at this time is exceedingly extensive and every need can be supplied. For tomorrow we are featuring five of our very inexpensive models, and we are illustrating, as well as describing them.

No. 1—A neat, but inexpensive Waist, made of crepe de chine, with a flat collar and the new, long sleeves with turnback cuffs. Price $2.95

No. 2—French Batiste Blouse showing a small yoke, which is daintily hemstitched, a standing collar of cream satin, cuffs to match and fastened down the front with pearl buttons. Price $3.00

No. 3—A very attractive Crepe de Chine Blouse has the popular Napoleon collar and revers finished with silk braid, and long sleeves with cuffs finished to match the collar. Price $5.00

No. 4—For semi-dress wear we are showing a pretty blouse of soft cream lace made over white chiffon, with collar, vestee and lower part of bodice of brown or navy satin. This model has long sleeves with French cuffs of satin. Price $6.00

No. 5—An unusually attractive Blouse is fashioned from a splendid quality of Georgette crepe. It shows the new, loose drape in the back and has an effective standing collar and cuffs of black velvet. Price $7.50

$1.50 and $2.00 Silk Stockings at 98c

We shall have ready for sale tomorrow morning, just 600 pairs of women's all-silk Stockings which have come to us from one of the largest and best-known manufacturers of Silk Stockings in the world.

One-half of the lot is black, while the remainder is made up of bronze, taupe, gray, white and some of the popular shoe shades.

An early selection is desirable, as none of these stockings can be duplicated at this price after the assortment is broken. Consequently both present and future needs should be supplied now. If you wish to purchase for gift purposes, each pair will be placed in a neat white box, if desired.

Regular $1.50 and $2.00 values. Sale price, while they last, 98c

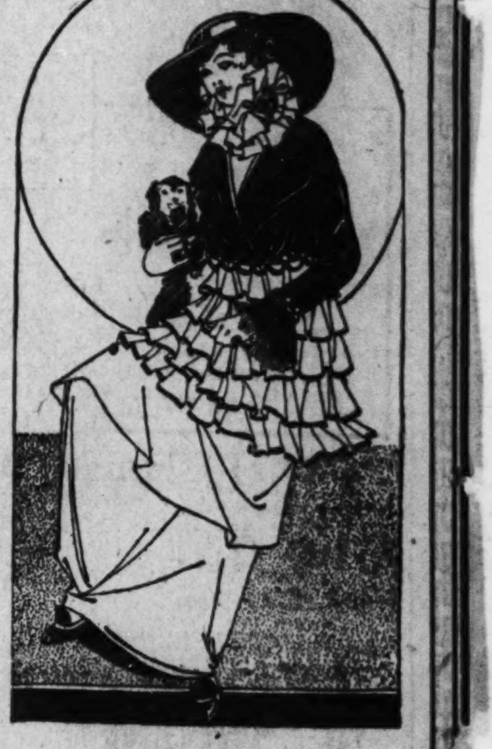
We Cannot Begin to Tell You of the New Suits We Have Assembled for You



We cannot speak too highly of our present showing of Women's Suits. It is, we believe, the most elaborate and comprehensive display we have ever made and we feel satisfied that anyone—whatever their taste or means may be—can find just what they want, at the price they wish to pay.

If you are ready to buy a new suit, by all means give us the privilege of at least showing you just what we have.

Our Line of Popular-priced Suits

Our line of Popular-priced Suits is unexcelled and includes all of the latest and most becoming styles, among which are: the short back, military coat, Redingote and Cossack effects.

These garments are of broadcloth, gabardine, serge, poplin and wide-wale materials in navy, brown, green, black, etc. Some are semi-tailored, others are trimmed with fur, caracul cloth, velvet, braid and self-trimmings; some have the Colonial collar.

The skirts are fashioned on straight lines with yoke, or with plain or plaited tunics. Prices $25.00 to $60.00

Fine Two and Three-piece Suits

An unusually handsome assortment of Two and Three-piece Suits is being shown with coats that are short, long and in the Redingote effects. The skirts show the yoke and tunics.

Some of these suits are most effectively trimmed with fur, passementeries, etc. The materials used are broadcloths, broadtail cloth, velvet and chiffon velvet.

The suit that we illustrate is priced at $125.00, and we have others which range upwards from $47.50

We Are Specializing in Suits for Women Who Require Extra Sizes—Prices Begin at $15.00

Our Yearly Half Price Sale of Cut Glass Begins Tomorrow and Offers Phenomenal Values

Once a year, in October, for the past three years, we have been able to offer to the public of St. Louis—at EXACTLY ONE-HALF PRICE — the accumulated odd pieces from one of the greatest cut glass factories in America.

The sale this year has been eagerly awaited by many of our customers. Those who have attended these sales in the past have made it a point not only to supply their individual needs, but also make holiday purchases.

Many pieces are the original designs of the originator, only one of which is made, many are samples of next year's designs, while others have accumulated a few pieces at a time because of over-production.

Please bear this in mind, every piece is perfect, and all are cut on pure lead blanks, each piece bearing that distinctiveness of style which has made our Cut Glass Department second to none in the West, and which has gained us so many friends.

During this sale you can purchase a Nappy that is worth $1.00 for as little as 50c, or a magnificent 14-inch Punch Bowl for $25.00, which would be very reasonable at $50.00.

"RANK" CAUSE OF FIGHT

Two city employes came to blows in front of the city hall yesterday. They were Aaron Eaton, night janitor in the city hall, and William Hill, also a negro, messenger in the Coroner's office. They were arrested.

The trouble arose over a question of rank. They had business at Police Headquarters and both started to go into the elevator at the same time. Hill insisted that as Coroner's messenger he was superior to a janitor and therefore first in line, but Janitor Eaton insisted he had the right of way. They called each other names and later exchanged blows.

Corns Quit, Pains Stop, With "Gets-It"

Quit Plasters, Salves and What-Nots.

After using "GETS-IT" once you will never again have occasion for asking, "What can I do to get rid of my corns-" "GETS-IT" is the first sure, certain corn-ender ever known. If you have tried other things by the score and will now try "GETS-IT," you will realize this glorious fact.

You probably are tired sticking on tape that won't stay stuck, plasters that shift themselves right onto your corn, contraptions that make a bundle of your toe and press right down on the corn. Put two drops of "GETS-IT" on that corn in two seconds. The corn is then doomed as sure as night follows day. The corn shrivels. There's no pain, no fuss. If you think this sounds too good to be true try it tonight on any corn, callus, wart or bunion.

Why "Suffer-Yet" With Corns? Use "GETS-IT." They'll Vanish!

EYES TROUBLE YOU?

TRY THIS SIMPLE RECEIPT.

We all know some home remedy for our minor troubles, and by the use of these remedies many a doctor's bill is saved and doubtless many a life.

How few know what to do when their eyes become tired and ache, or feel dry and inflamed from abuse and overuse? In the morning your eyes feel rough or sticky or they trouble you when you read. What do you do? Most of us rush off and get glasses (perhaps at some cheap store where no skill is used in fitting our eyes, which we very often do not need at all. Thousands are wearing misfit or unnecessary glasses, which they might better discard and other thousands can, with a little care, probably so strengthen their eyes that glasses might never be necessary. Here is a free receipt that may be relied upon to give comfort and to help the eyes of some people; it is harmless and has the enthusiastic endorsement of thousands who have used it:

5 Grains Optona (1 tablet).
2 Ounces Water.

Use as an eye wash night and morning, or oftener if possible. It makes most eyes feel fine, quickly allays irritation, brightens the eyes and sharpens the vision. Many who have used it no longer feel the need of glasses; many others have ceased to fear that they will soon be obliged to wear them. Get the Optona tablets from your nearest druggist and prepare the solution at your own home.—ADV.

Radway's Ready Relief

Frank Mala, 420 6th St., New York, writes: "My wife suddenly fell very sick with influenza. I called in the doctor, but he failed to help her any. We have no time to be sick. So I became my own doctor, and with Radway's Ready Relief and Pills, I gave her according to Radway's directions, and she went back to work two days later."

COLDS AND COUGHS

Apply the Relief to the throat and chest until the surface smarts and reddens. Give Radway's Pills in such doses as will thoroughly cleanse the bowels. For a sudden cold take a large dose Radway's Pills and a teaspoonful of Relief with a teaspoonful of molasses, in a tumbler of hot water. Retire at once to bed. In the morning the cold will be gone.

ST. LOUISAN PUT THROUGH BILL FOR FIRST SUBMARINE

England and Germany Quickly Followed Congress' Action in Building Vessels.

DEWEY FAVORED MEASURE

He Supported W. D. Vandiver in Futile Fight for Purchase of Holland Patents.

The development of the submarine boat, which is playing such an important part in European naval warfare, was made possible by the work of a St. Louis man, who, as a member of the Naval Affairs Committee of Congress in 1899, was principally responsible for the appropriation to build the first submarine ship.

This St. Louisan is Willard D. Vandiver, United States Assistant Treasurer. As a member of Congress from the Fourteenth District for several terms he took the lead in fighting for appropriations for submarine construction. Soon after the first American submarines were constructed and put into service England sent inspectors to the United States to study plans and specifications, and soon afterward began building under-the-sea ships. Germany quickly followed, and then France.

Sub-Treasurer Vandiver told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday the story of the fight he made for appropriations for submarines and how Admiral Dewey was the only naval officer of any importance who rendered any service in this direction.

"The effective use of the submarine by Germany in this war bears out a prediction I made on the floor of Congress, in the fight for the appropriation to build the first ship, that the under-the-sea boats would eventually drive the big battleships from the ocean," said Vandiver.

First One Invented by Holland.

"The first real submarine war vessel was invented by a Baltimore man named Holland. He got together enough money to build an experimental boat, which he brought to Washington to demonstrate to Congress. As a member of the Naval Affairs Committee, I spent a day on the Potomac River watching the maneuvers of this fighting craft.

"Admiral Dewey was with the committee. After seeing how the submarine performed, he said that if two of them had been in Manila Harbor he would not have dared enter with his fleet. Dewey was then the great naval hero of the Spanish-American War, having but a little more than a year before destroyed the Spanish fleet in Manila Bay.

"The members of the committee were so impressed with the submarine that the late Amos Cummings of New York introduced in the committee the next day a bill to authorize the construction of 20 of these ships. Admiral Dewey had given us his opinion that with four of these boats operating in New York Harbor it would be impossible for the navy of any nation to make a successful attack upon that city. He also declared that he believed the submarine was the best possible vessel for coast defense.

Naval Officers Scorned the Idea.

"All the other important naval officers were strongly against the submarine idea. They laughed at the suggestion that an under-the-sea boat could be of any service in warfare. But we had seen the wonderful demonstration given by Holland, and we were convinced that the submarine was bound to become an important adjunct to the navy.

"When the matter was brought up in Congress we found that the shipping and armor plate interests were all against it, as well as most of the naval officers. I advised Cummings to reduce the number of submarines asked for from 20 to four. After a hard fight in Congress we succeeded in getting an appropriation of something less than $500,000 for the construction of one experimental submarine. The next year we obtained an appropriation for two more and the year after for two additional, bringing the fleet up to five. By that time the European nations were beginning to build submarine fleets.

Advocated Purchase of Patents.

"I advocated, in Congress, the purchase of the patents of Holland, so that the United States Government could control the manufacture of submarines. I also advocated that this Government guard the submarine as a secret, so that other nations would not know how to build them.

"But with the naval officers, the armor plate manufacturers and the shipping interests all against us, we were not able to put this plan through. The submarines of the European nations were constructed generally upon the plan of the American model.

"The first of the Holland type of submarines built by this Government cost about $500,000 each, and the later ones about $750,000 each. The big battleships, which are so easily destroyed by the submarines, cost from $7,000,000 to $10,000,000.

"In my investigations of the submarine subject, I found that many unsuccessful efforts had been made to construct a practical under-the-water boat. It was impossible to build a successful ship until an electric storage battery had been developed with sufficient power to operate the machinery of the boat.

Monitor's Inventor Met With Delay.

"Holland, the inventor of the submarine, died several years ago. Cummings is also dead.

"It is a coincidence that when Capt. Ericson invented the Monitor for the purpose of pitting it against the Meramec he also had great difficulty in getting Congress to appropriate money for the construction of the ship. A wealthy friend told him to go ahead and build the ship, and if the Government did not pay for it, he would do so. The United States thus became the first nation to use the ironclad warships."

Vandiver served three terms in Congress, and afterwards became Insurance Commissioner of Missouri under Gov. Folk. He was appointed sub-treasurer by President Wilson last spring.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Resigns.

Homer Hall, Assistant United States District Attorney, resigned today, after acting as assistant to Arthur L. Oliver, who was appointed District Attorney Aug. 19 last. Hall will begin a general practice with Charles A. Houts in the Pierce building.

YOUTH DRIVING AUTO TRUCK RUNS DOWN MAN

Sees Passerby Aid Victim, Drives On, Later Is Given to Police by Employer.

Theodore M. Steinmetz, 51 years old, of 4209 Etzel avenue, was run down at noon yesterday by an auto truck. It was being driven toward Academy walk in an alley between Delmar and Washington boulevards by Frank Pfeiffenberger, 22 years old, of 6150 Etzel avenue. The truck is owned by the Olive Grocery Co. of 4069 Olive street.

Steinmetz was taken to the city hospital. He has scalp wounds and probably internal injuries.

Pfeiffenberger stopped the truck immediately after the accident and jumped to the ground. When he saw Steinmetz was being aided by a passerby he mounted his seat and drove to the grocery store, where he was employed, and reported the matter to his employer, Morris Epstein. Epstein started to take him to the Page Boulevard Station, but later turned him over to a policeman met at Sarah street and Maryland avenue. Pfeiffenberger is held at the Newstead Avenue Station.

New Church Edifice to Have Services.

The Nuelson German Methodist Episcopal Church will hold its first service in its new edifice at Pestalozzi street and Pennsylvania avenue this morning, with Sunday school at 9:15. All services at this church will be in German, except the night sermon by the pastor, Dr. Kurt Franz. Services are held on the first and third Sundays of each month.

A RECORD SHATTERING SALE OF WOMEN'S APPAREL

THE record-breaking warm weather during the past few weeks has demoralized business to such an extent that manufacturers throughout the country are overstocked and willing to accept anything that looks like money for their merchandise. Our buying for cash policy came forward at this time—manufacturers, knowing our policy, notified us of their overstocked conditions, and allowed us bargains, the likes of which we have never before known, and, tomorrow, we will give you the benefit of our fortune, by inaugurating the greatest price shattering sale ever undertaken.

HAIR TURNING GRAY OR FALLING? JUST MIX SAGE TEA AND SOME SULPHUR

It's Grandmother's Recipe for Dandruff and Restoring Color to Hair. Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and luster to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also cures dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays skilled chemists do this better than ourselves. By asking at any drug store for the ready-to-use product—called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound"—you will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Some druggists make their own but it's usually too sticky, so insist upon getting "Wyeth's" which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is the best remedy for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and to stop falling hair.

Folks like "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" because no one can positively tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly, says a well-known downtown druggist. You dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This requires but a few moments, by morning the gray hair disappears and after another application or two is restored to its natural color and looks even more beautiful and glossy than ever.

FIRST SYMPHONY CONCERT WILL BE PRESENTED NOV. 6

Executive Committee and Board of Managers Decide to Open the Season.

$4000 YET TO RAISE

Seat Sale Is Large and Future Donations Are Expected to Make Up the Fund.

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will open its season at the Odeon the first week in November, according to a decision made Friday at a joint meeting of the Executive Committee and the Board of Managers of the St. Louis Symphony Society at the Wednesday Club. It was found that between $4000 and $5000 still remained to be made up of the guarantee fund, but members of the two boards agreed that it was possible to accomplish this through the season seat subscriptions and by additional donations, and James E. Smith, president of the society, gave out the announcement that the first concert will be given Nov. 6.

Preparations for a season have been going on tentatively during the orchestra rescue campaign, and now that the committee sees its way to finance the season all contracts are closed and preliminary work was finished yesterday.

The concerts will be given as usual in groups of two weekly symphony programs the first three weeks of each month from November until April, with a weekly Sunday afternoon popular program during the same period, the first symphony pair being scheduled for Friday and Saturday, Nov. 6 and 7, and the first "pop" concert Nov. 8.

All Soloists Contracted For.

The list of artists who will appear as soloists at the Friday and Saturday concerts, all of whom were contracted for last summer, is said to be the most notable ever presented in St. Louis. Arthur J. Gaines, manager of the orchestra, has received assurances from the American managers of all of them that each will reach St. Louis at the appointed time despite the European war. These artists are Marie Sundelius, dramatic soprano, who created such a furore when she sang with the orchestra last season; Olive Fremstadt of the Metropolitan Opera; Ferruccio Busoni, the Italian pianist; Fritz Kreisler, Leo Slezak, tenor; Willy Burmester, violinist; Carl Friedberg, pianist; Arrigo Serato, violinist; Olga Samaroff, pianiste; Maggie Teyte, soprano of the Boston Opera; Ossip Gabrilovitsch, pianist, and Josef Lhevinne, pianist.

Manager Gaines has received from Conductor Max Zach a forecast of the program which will be given in the course of the symphony series and which is of exceptional interest. Zach was greatly hampered in his work of selecting new compositions this summer in Europe because of the war, and several of the works he bought have not yet been received, and are not likely to reach America this season.

Season Seat Sale Large.

Among the compositions not heretofore played by the orchestra will be the Roparts Fourth Symphony, Haydn's "Culprit Fay"; "Symphonic Variations," by Oldberg; a fantasy on the popular Wallon theme by Theodore Ysaye, brother of the famous violinist; "Vilion," by Wallace; "Roumanian Rhapsody," by Enesco, and Bossi's "Intermezzo Goldoniani."

Some of the old favorites which will be played early in the season are Dvorak's "New World Symphony," Beethoven's "Eroica" symphony, Schubert's Tenth symphony, the overture to "Tannhauser," the overture to Mozart's "Magic Flute," Tschaikowsky's overture-fantasy to "Romeo and Juliet" and Weber's overture to "Euryanthe."

In spite of the practical stoppage of season seat sales during the guarantee fund campaign the receipts from this source to date are about $1400 in advance of the amount at the same date last year and, with this start and the fine offering the orchestra is making in its programs and soloists, Manager Gaines expects to see the season open with the largest subscription sale on record.

War Causes Reduction in Price of the Welsbach Mantles.

Because of the foresightedness of Sidney Mason, president of the Welsbach company, in being "prepared for war in times of peace" the concern is now in a position to make sweeping reductions in the cost of its gas mantles, for which it claims a softer and brighter light than any other gas apparatus. A year ago President Mason foresaw the present war. His mantles up to that time were made in Germany after part of the material had been shipped to Germany and Austria. Now he has the material that was used in these countries stored in the United States in sufficient quantities to manufacture mantles for years to come. By this shrewd move the company is in a position to give the public the benefit of the reduced price.

PIANIST TO WEAR KHAKI

Alice Nielsen Will Sing at Concert in Cotton Gown.

Rudolph Ganz, the Swiss pianist, who will appear in recital with Alice Nielsen, American soprano, at the Odeon, next Saturday evening, has no cotton clothes to wear at the concert, but is willing to don his Swiss army field uniform of khaki, or a suit of white flannels.

Miss Nielsen has planned to start a cotton dress movement for stage folk by wearing an all-cotton gown at the concert in St. Louis, and Gans was asked what he could do to assist in that direction.

Miss Nielsen has requested all Southern women in the audience to wear cotton dresses.

SOUSA TO BE AT COLISEUM

John Philip Sousa, the noted band leader, will lead an orchestra of 300 pieces at a benefit concert which will be held in the Coliseum on Dec. 1, under the auspices of the Musician's Mutual Benefit Association.

The proceeds of the concert will be added to the pension fund, created during the past year. Sousa's solo cornetist, Herbert P. Clarke, has assured the officers of the association that he will attend and play several of his selections.

Church Addition to Be Dedicated.

The new addition to the Jesus Church, Twelfth and Victor streets, will be dedicated at 8 o'clock tonight. Col. Hassendeubel and Meumann's Posts, G. A. R., will present an American flag.

GHOST'S HELP FOR NEPHEW 44 YEARS LATE, COURT SAYS

Suit for Farm Based on Alleged Revelation of Ancient Will Fails.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DANVILLE, Ind., Oct. 17.—A ghost obtained judicial notice by the Supreme Court in a decision in the case of Jasper Cravens against his mother, Adaline Barker Cravens, for the possession of a farm.

Jasper Barker, uncle of the plaintiff and brother of the defendant, was killed in battle at Marietta, Ga. Mrs. Cravens held title to her brother's farm without any question as to the validity of the claim. Forty-four years after the soldier was killed his ghost appeared to Jasper Cravens, the nephew, it is alleged, and revealed a will bequeathing him the property which was in possession of Enoch Scotten, a neighbor, Barker's comrade during the war. Cravens called on Scotten, who produced the document, saying the soldier had made it on his deathbed and he had forgotten its existence.

On the strength of this will suit was brought for possession of the farm, which lies in the southern part of Hendricks County. The jury upheld the ghost-discovered will and gave the farm to the son. The Supreme Court reversed the lower court, holding that under the statute of limitations appellee had lost his right to recover. In dealing with the ghost phase of the case the Court said:

"While it may have been the intention of the uncle to bestow upon the appellee the real estate, yet if he had the power to appear to the nephew and disclose the existence of the will, his failure to make the facts known for 44 years has effectually barred the nephew's right to recover."

UNIFORM LAWS IS CONFERENCE TOPIC FOR THE GOVERNORS

DUNNE ON THE PROGRAM

Extradition, Conservation and Control of Corporations Special Subjects.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 17.—Greater uniformity in the laws of the various states affecting the business of corporations is one of the ends sought by the Governors' conference, which meets in Madison Nov. 10 to 14. Two of the six papers to be read at the meeting deal with the question of uniformity of legislation.

Gov. Charles R. Miller of Delaware will discuss "Uniformity of Laws Fixing the Conditions to Be Met by Foreign Corporations Before Doing Business in a State," and Gov. Edward F. Dunne of Illinois will discuss "Uniformity of Safety and Sanitation Laws for Places of Employment." Other subjects on the program for discussion are:

Report of Committee on Rural Credits. Gov. Emmet O'Neal of Alabama, chairman.

"State Control of Natural Resources. Gov. William Spry of Utah.

"Extradition." Gov. S. V. Stewart of Montana.

"Submission of Governor's Recommendation in Bill Form." Gov. Frank M. Byrne of South Dakota.

Authority of Influence.

"The Governors' conference is a unique institution in our political life," says Secretary C. M. Riley. "It exercises no legislative powers, nor can the organization lay down an administrative rule that has the force of law. Its directing powers are those of influence and persuasion only. While President Wilson was yet Governor of New Jersey and a member of the Governors' conference, he said: 'We are setting up, outside the sphere of the Federal Congress, a new instrument of political life, national in its character, scope and intention; an instrument not of legislation but of opinion, exercising the authority of influence, not of law.'

"The 'drive business away bogie' has discouraged and will continue to discourage individual states in their efforts to enact much needed humanitarian legislation. This is not because industry objects to rigid regulation and public supervision, for the employer is not indifferent to the health and safety of his workers. But the opposition to regulation and supervision has its origin in the fear that the regulated and supervised industry will be burdened with an expense which will make it impossible for it to compete with similar industries in other states where there is no regulation or supervision. Something of the same objection arises in connection with questions of taxation and conditions to be met by corporations before they are allowed to do business in other states. No one questions that uniformity of legislation will remove these objections.

Can Bring Uniformity.

"The Governors' conference is an ideal organization to bring about uniformity. When the Governors of the various states have reached an agreement as to the general scope of law on any subject, each executive then can recommend to the Legislature of his state the passage of such laws or such amendments as are needed.

"The abolition of the Reno divorce colony may be cited as an instance of what may be accomplished by this movement for uniformity in state laws. Gov. Tasker L. Oddie of Nevada in a paper read before the Governors' conference on 'Uniformity of Marriage and Divorce Laws,' declared that he would recommend changes in the Nevada laws on this subject.

"Gov. Oddie kept his word, his recommendations were followed, and the Reno divorce colony is no more. These are but samples of the necessity for uniformity in State legislation. There are many others which have not been referred to.

"It is argued that uniformity is quite impossible because even though a uniform law is adopted, within a short time succeeding legislatures will so amend it as to destroy the uniformity. There is some force to the argument. However, we can have substantial uniformity. The permanency will depend wholly upon the soundness of the proposition. If the Governors' Conference becomes an initiating force in the establishment of uniformity of laws along lines where uniformity is desirable and necessary, it will be through its members, the Governors. These same members, through the veto power and otherwise, will be a great force in the interest of maintaining the uniformity once it is established. This is one of the things that the people expect of the new type of executive of which President Wilson is our foremost example. The Governor should have and exercise the powers that the people think he has.

"It is argued also that we cannot have uniform safety and sanitation laws for places of employment because what would be a reasonable rule or law for Wisconsin would be entirely inapplicable to conditions in Texas or Maine. But this argument fails when the plan of an administration commission to administer the law is put forth. Under this plan the Legislature lays down the general rule, 'All places of employment shall be maintained in a safe and sanitary condition.' The commission lays down the detailed rule which must be reasonable in the light of all attending and existing conditions and circumstances."

Sons of Revolution to Meet Dec. 5.

The annual meeting of the St. Louis Chapter, Sons of Revolution, will be held Dec. 5. Members of the Society of Colonial Wars will be invited. Dr. James A. Campbell, A. L. Shapleigh and Dr. H. N. Spencer will nominate officers for the next year.

WOMAN TRIES TO STOP OLD SPANISH PRISONER SWINDLE

Attempt to Defraud Resident of Fulton County, Illinois, Starts Extended Inquiry.

PROOF FOR U. S. CONSUL

Those Who Laid Trap Hope to Hear of Arrest of Men Behind the Game.

FAIRVIEW, Ill., Oct. 17.—It may remain for a Fulton County woman to work out plans for breaking up the notorious Spanish prisoner swindle which has lured so many American dollars across the water and which appears to thrive, despite the frequent exposure in the newspapers of this country. Thanks to the persistency of Mrs. Edwin Clarkson, the promoters may be given a long imprisonment.

The necessary evidence was forwarded this week to the Spanish authorities and all that remains for them to do is to make the arrests. The trap has been cleverly operated and there can be no escape if the officers abroad are not in connivance with the swindlers, as has been charged.

The swindle is a familiar one but frequently lands a gullible victim. No one knows how the names and addresses of candidates for swindling are obtained. That the system is crude is evident from the fact that letters frequently come for men who have been dead for a number of years.

A letter addressed to Edwin Clarkson of Fulton County was opened by his widow. The epistle stated that if the recipient would forward the sum of $800 to Spain, he would become the possessor of a fortune estimated at $30,000 to $40,000, and, in addition, the beautiful daughter of the writer would be sent to America for adoption by the legatee of the fortune.

Trap for Swindlers.

Mrs. Clarkson thought it was her duty to procure the arrest of the swindlers and consulted lawyers concerning the best means of obtaining evidence. After considerable discussion, a course of action was decided upon and, after three months' interchange of letters in which the United States Consul at Valencia co-operated, the plan is laid bare. If there is no hitch, a wholesale series of arrests is assured and the swindle probably given its quietus.

The first letter received by Mrs. Clarkson was dated June 23 and was written from Castle Port, Murcia, Spain. The writer, who signed himself Luis Campos, claimed to be a prisoner of war in the castle and stated that when he was imprisoned his portmanteau, containing a certificate of $145,000 on a London bank was siezed and held by the authorities. According to the story, the certificate was enclosed in a secret pocket of the portmanteau and no one connected with the military prison knew of its existence.

The only thing necessary to obtain possession of the portmanteau and likewise the certificate, was to pay the court costs, which a later letter reported to be $800.

Tells of Daughter.

Campos narrated that he had a daughter, aged 15, who was a student in the Anglo-Spanish college at Elma. He also asserted that the Clarkson family was distantly related to his deceased wife, who was formerly Miss Mary Clarkson. Campos was very solicitous that Clarkson should take the girl into his home and care for her as his own child. In return, one-fourth of the $145,000 would be turned over to the foster father.

All that was required of Clarkson was to send the $800 to pay the court costs and transportation of the daughter and a priest, Ramon Obad, who would accompany her to this country. In a subsequent letter, Campos referred to the priest as Jose Villegas. The writer also stated that Campos was in very poor health and might die at any time. The letter implored Clarkson to take good care of the girl.

Aug. 20 came a letter from Jose Villegas Garrido, inclosing some scrawls, purporting to be the dying entreaty of Campos to look after his daughter and stating that Clarkson had been appointed guardian of the girl and her property. The priest also specified the hour when Campos died in the fortress and stated that the writer had been appointed testamentary executor in order to have a legal representative of the fatherless girl before the court of law.

He also wrote that he would be required to appear before the court to obtain the release of the portmanteau and Clarkson was urged to send the $800 at once.

The next letter came from the alleged daughter. This epistle was black-bordered and signed by Emily Campos Clarkson. It was written from the Colegio, Anglo-Espanol, and was quite pathetic. Her photograph was inclosed. The girl expressed pleasure over the idea of coming to the United States to make her home.

Must Have Money.

The next letter from Villegas announced that he had arranged with the court to obtain the portmanteau, but if the money was not received within 10 days it would be sold at auction. A copy of the will of Campos was inclosed, bearing various seals and imprints, giving it an official bearing.

Believing that everything was ready for the grand coup, Mrs. Clarkson, this week, mailed all of the correspondence to the American Consul at Valencia and also sent registered letters to the swindlers, one going under the name of Jose Villegas, the alleged priest, the other to an alleged brother-in-law, Manual Pla Milego at Castelion.

The Consul was informed concerning the plans arranged and it will be a simple matter for the authorities to camp at the postoffice until the swindlers call for the letters.

THIS IS LAST DAY TO SEE SPECIAL ART COLLECTION

Part of Paintings Now at City Museum Are to Be Sent to Chicago Institute.

The Art Institute of Chicago has drawn upon the City Art Museum for a number of pictures in the fall exhibition of selected paintings by American artists, and today will be the last day for the public to see this great collection intact.

This is because the canvases in question were given for the St. Louis exhibition only on consent that they should be shipped to Chicago in time for the annual opening at the Art Institute. The rivalry among exhibiting museums in the important art educational centers of the country, in the effort to secure the most important new samples of the national art, each year, is intense.

The rest of the collection, however, will remain on view until the end of October.

The City Art Museum's current exhibition of American paintings by leading artists of the day is regarded as the most impressive display of national art yet shown here. Nine galleries are occupied, and there are nearly 200 canvases, many of them large, "important" examples.

Paintings by Hawthorne, Woodbury, Hassam, Symons and others have been talked of for purchase from the city tax fund, for addition to the permanent collections of the City Art Museum.

One of Charles W. Hawthorne's pictures, "Adoration," has made an especially strong impression in St. Louis art circles. It is much more than a passing achievement of clever brushwork. It is a powerful interpretation of the theme, a beautiful and significant color arrangement and a work of consistent symbolism. It impresses the student with its properly subordinated originality. The composition is extremely simple. A young mother holds an infant, while peasant folk bring offerings of fish. The treatment is rich, and powerfully suggestive.

ANARCHIST TO LEAD RADICALS IN NEW CAMPAIGN IN CITIES

Alexander Berkman Says Demonstrations Will Be More Violent Than Last Year.

TO MAKE PLANS AT BALL

Asserts Unemployed Must Do More Than March Into Churches and Ask for Food.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—"When delegates from all the revolutionary bodies in New York and surrounding States get together at the anti-military ball in the Lenox Casino, next Saturday, plans for the winter campaign of the army of unemployed in New York City will be matured. I will run this unemployed campaign myself. The one last year was not half radical enough and it died out after a few feeble movements."

So said Alexander Berkman, anarchist, to a reporter for the Post-Dispatch.

"Do you mean," Berkman was asked, "that you will direct the army of unemployed from an office, or do you mean that like Tannenbaum, you will get out and lead the army in person?"

"I will lead them myself," said Berkman, smiling. "Why not? They've got to be more radical if any good is to come of the movement. Their protest won't amount to any more good than it did last year, which wasn't much, if they don't do something more violently radical than march into a church or two and get themselves arrested for asking food and shelter.

"Tannenbaum went to jail. I am perfectly willing to go again to jail if it will do any good for the cause."

"Just what do you mean by being more radical," Berkman was asked.

"I can't say just now," he said. "Definite plans will be made at the antimilitarist ball, and, of, course, that revolutionary body which has the most delegates present will control the situation. I confidently expect that the antimilitarist league will be in charge."

He said that "Big Bill" Haywood would attend the ball if possible and that Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, Carlo Trasca, Joe Etter and all the other I. W. W. firebrands will be on hand if nothing prevents. Tannenbaum will get out of jail in time to help plan for this year's campaign.

"The new organization will bring home to the people just what the real situation is among the workers," Berkman said. "It will be extended to every big city in the country and delegates representing every state will attend the first meeting.'

$382,948 CLAIM AGAINST BUSCH ESTATE ALLOWED

Award Is Made on Agreement in Favor of Mr. and Mrs. Johannes Kluehn of Berlin.

A claim of $382,948 was allowed yesterday by Probate Judge Holtcamp against the estate of the late Adolphus Busch in favor of Mr. and Mrs. Johannes Kluehn and their five children, living in Berlin, Germany. It was presented by George A. H. Mills, one of the attorneys for the Busch heirs.

It was stated that the claim was the balance due on an agreement entered into between the late brewer and Mr. and Mrs. Kluehn Aug. 15, 1909, at Wiesbaden, Germany, in relation to the exchange of some securities.

The Kluehn children are Mrs. Lily Gronewaldt, Mrs. Elise Geyl, Mrs. Louise von Ziegeser, Edna and Peter Kluehn. Edward A. Faust, one of the executors of Busch's will, had waived on the claim. This enabled it to be allowed without a contest.

FARMERS OPPOSE STATE LAW AIMED AT SINGLE TAX

Campaign Against Constitutional Amendment Would Save Referendum and Initiative.

A campaign among the farmers of the State against Constitutional Amendment No. 1 has been started by E. W. Solomon, President of the Farmers' Educational and Co-Operative Union. From headquarters at Bernie, Solomon is sending out literature appealing to the farmers to defeat the proposition because it will practically kill the initiative and referendum in Missouri.

The amendment is ostensibly aimed at the single tax, but goes much further and prevents any kind of tax reform, as well as prohibiting any proposition being submitted oftener than once in five years. New provisions are made for the filing of petitions which are full of "jokers." These "jokers" will effectually destroy the initiative and referendum in the State.

The farmers' organizations of the State actively assisted in the passage of the initiative and referendum amendment in 1908. They were also bitterly opposed to the single tax two years ago, but as between killing the single tax or losing the initiative and referendum, Solomon believes a majority of the farmers would prefer to save the initiative and referendum. He points out that there is no danger from the single tax, anyway, since it was buried under a majority of 425,000.

The farmers' organization is co-operating with the National Popular Government League at Washington, of which the National Farmers' Union is a member. The Missouri branch of the National Popular Government League also is conducting a vigorous campaign against Constitutional Amendment No. 1 through its county committees. Other organizations actively opposed to the amendment are the State Federation of Labor, the Socialist Party of Missouri, the Civic League of St. Louis and civic and commercial organizations in Kansas City and St. Josepn.

The organizations in the cities point out that a large city vote against the amendment must be obtained to offset prejudice in its favor already aroused in the country districts through the single-tax fight two years ago.

LIGHT COMPANIES NOT TO MERGE PROPERTIES

Cupples Station Head Says Plant Is Not for Sale and Will Remain Independent.

There is no probability of a merger of the electric light companies in St. Louis, as forecast by W. A. Layman, president of the Wagner Electric Co., in a speech before the City Club, according to Hugo Wurdack, president of the Cupples Station Light, Heat and Power Co., a rival of Union Electric.

Layman's speech was made a very short time after the Missouri Public Service Commission had rendered a decision favorable to the Cupples company in a fight that was being made upon it by Union Electric. The Public Service Commission held that the Cupples company had a right to use the conduits in St. Louis.

Wurdack has written a letter to Layman stating the Cupples company was not for sale, and that it intended to stay in the St. Louis field as an independent distributer of electricity. The company operates the Railway Exchange Building plant, which supplies service to a large business district, including Washington avenue from Fourth street to Eighth street. Its rates are about 25 per cent lower than Union rates.

Wurdack stated that a reasonable amount of competition in large cities was a necessary incentive to reasonable rates, good service and economy.

UNION OF METHODIST CHURCHES IS FAVORED

Resolution Is Introduced in Marionville Conference by St. Louis Minister.

The Rev. B. F. Chrissman, district superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal Church conference of St. Louis, introduced at the annual conference of that church, now in session at Marionville, Mo., a resolution, which was passed, favoring the union of the Methodist Episcopal Church with the Methodist Episcopal Churcn South.

The resolution states that a proposition for union already has been submitted by the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and pledges the Methodists of the St. Louis conference to work for the speedy consummation of the union.

FOR A SOUR STOMACH, INDIGESTION, GAS OR DYSPEPSIA—PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN.

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; your head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take Pape's Diapepsin, and in five minutes you will wonder what became of the indigestion and distress. Millions of men and women today know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps the stomach regulated and they eat their favorite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin, which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it digests food and sets things straight so gently and easily that it is astonishing. Please don't go on and on with a weak, disordered stomach; it's so unnecessary.—ADV.

JOPLIN WOMAN IS RESTORED BY WONDERFUL STOMACH REMEDY

Mrs. Hillman Took Treatment Two Years Ago—Has Been Well Ever Since.

Mrs. Ida Hillman of Joplin suffered from stomach ailments for twelve years. She followed the advice of several expert physicians and took a great deal of medicine. Two years ago she discovered Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy—and she has been well since. Mrs. Hillman took but a few doses. She writes:

"I suffered with stomach trouble almost twelve years. I tried many doctors, but received no help until, while in Cleveland, Ohio, I read your notice in a paper and concluded to try Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy. Since then I have felt like a new woman.

"I took only four bottles, but that was all that was needed to make me well. It has been almost two years and I have had no return of my trouble."

Similar accounts of the remarkable results of the use of Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy came from all parts of the country. It clears the digestive tract of mucoid accretions and poisonous matter. It brings swift relief to sufferers from stomach ailments, liver and intestinal disorders. Many declare it has saved them from operations; many are sure that it has saved their lives.

We want all people who have chronic stomach trouble or constipation, no matter of how long standing, to try one dose of Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy—one dose will convince you. This is the medicine so many of our people have been taking with surprising results. The most thorough system cleanser ever sold. Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy is now sold here by Judge & Dolph and Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., and druggists everywhere.—ADV.

IF KIDNEYS FEEL LIKE LEAD OR YOUR BACK IS ACHING, TAKE SALTS AT ONCE

We all eat too much meat, which clogs up the Kidneys, and they need a flushing, else we must suffer.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—ADV.

To My Swedish Friends Everywhere

I Wish to Say That Peruna Is the Best Household Remedy In the Whole World.

Mrs. Elin Malmgren, 133 Frederick St., West Manchester, N. H., writes: "Every spring and fall for eleven years, I have been troubled with catarrh in my throat and nose and hoarseness, and I am very pleased to state that at last I found a medicine, Peruna, from which I received great benefit, and I will hereafter use and recommend it. I always keep it in my house in case of sickness. I recommend your medicine to all my friends and every sufferer, as an excellent medicine for colds and for building up strength. We have many Swedish friends in Boston who use Peruna and think a great deal of it. If all the Swedish people in this country could know what an excellent family medicine your Peruna is I am sure they would have it in the home."—ADV.

COACHING RACE TO BE BIG FEATURE OF HORSESHOW

Alfred G. Vanderbilt Will Drive His Famous Team in Marathon Through Streets.

WOMEN TO RIDE JUMPERS

Expert New Yorkers Will Compete With Others in Event for First Time Here.

Preparations for this year's horse show which will be held at the Coliseum from Oct. 26 to 31, inclusive, are nearly complete. Entries to date give assurance that it will be the best in point of number and quality of entries that St. Louisans have had an opportunity to see. The management of the St. Louis Horse Show Society, completely reorganized and under the direction of Adolphus Busch III, has spared no pains or expense to get the best attractions to be had in the horse world, for all classes, from ponies to coach horses and from high school saddlers to the big, speedy, cross-country hunters and jumpers.

In addition to filling the regular show ring classes special events have been arranged to make the show more interesting.

A four-in-hand race, or coaching Marathon, from Forest Park through the streets to the Coliseum will take place one afternoon during the show. An exhibition of military chargers and jumpers from the United States Army School of Equitation at Fort Riley will be given each day.

Women Will Ride Jumpers.

A number of classes of high jumpers and cross-country hunters, something not seen here for a number of years, will be shown and among them are several classes for jumpers ridden by women, a thing absolutely new to St. Louis. In these some of the noted women riders of the East like Miss Belle Beach of New York, who will ride Alfred G. Vanderbilt's jumpers in the ladies' classes, Miss M. Louise Thompson of Rye, New York, who will ride the Fox string of jumpers from Philadelphia in events for lady riders; Miss Harris of Chicago and Miss Zion of Indianapolis and others who have never appeared at a St. Louis show before, will compete.

The coaching Marathon will be the spectacular feature of the show, because it will take place in the open streets and conclude by a drive around the show ring in the Coliseum. Three New Yorkers, with famous coach teams, are coming to this event. First to enter was Alfred G. Vanderbilt, who is bringing his famous gray coaching four and his red, black and white coach, which are as well-known in Europe as in New York; B. F. S. Gregory, whose four recently at White Plains did a mile in 3 minutes and 14 seconds and Emil Selig, the picture film man, whose coach and four traveled the Marathon distance of 6 miles in 36 minutes and 31 seconds, the coach and seven passengers making a load of over 4000 pounds. To meet the Easterners, the Western entries, so far, are Val Crane of Wild Rose Farm, St. Charles, Ill., who will drive his great four, Lord Rose, Rose Lad, Reade Rose and Winter Rose, which made such an impression at last year's horse show, and Miss Loula Long of Kansas City. Miss Long has not designated her four. She probably will drive her entry herself.

Army Riders Will Take Part.

The military feature will be afforded by a string of nine horses from the Government School of Equitation at Fort Riley, Kan. These will be handled by officers from different cavalry and artillery regiments. At the head of the string will be the great Chiswell, the horse that carried off the cavalry horse honors of the international cavalry horse trials at Stockholm, Sweden, two years ago, during the Olympic games.

A bigger local class of harness and saddle horses has been entered this year than formerly, a protest by 10 members of the St. Louis Riding Club in an anonymous letter against the entry and riding of Col. Paul Brown on the ground that he ought to be classed as a professional having stimulated other members, who do not want to be classed as of the 10 kickers, to enter their horses. Among these are D. B. Aloe, president of the riding club; L. W. Childress, Fred G. Kersting, Fred Freund, George E. Thomas, Arnold Stifel and D. Witbeck.

Liberal With Prize Money.

There are six classes for harness and saddle ponies, one for polo ponies, also four military events and a number of others for draft horses, mules and local horses. Championships are offered for the roadster, heavy harness horse, three-gaited saddle horse and hunter. The association has been most liberal in its prize money, the first, second and third awards in all classes being purses of substantial size.

The officers of the show are: Adolphus Busch III, president; Julius S. Walsh Jr., vice-president; Frank L. Donovan, secretary and treasurer; W. S. Blitz, managing secretary; Morris McDougall, assistant secretary; vice-presidents, F. H. Britton, Paul Brown, B. F. Bush, Samuel C. Davis, William Drosten, Thomas W. Garland, Lyman T. Hay, Merritt H. Marshall Jr., William C. McBride, J. G. Miller, Robert E. Nolker, D. C. Nugent, M. Shoenberg, George W. Simmons, Lieutenant-Colonel D. S. Stanley, Charles A. Stix, Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Reginald C. Vanderbilt, Melville L. Wilkinson; directors, Adolphus Busch III, C. F. Blanke, Paul Brown, Frank L. Donovan, Thomas W. Garland, Lyman T. Hay, Clarence H. King, Edwin A. Lemp, Edward Magnus, William C. McBride, Louis J. Nicolaus, Lieutenant-Colonel D. S. Stanley, U. S. A.; Julius S. Walsh Jr.; Executive Committee, Adolphus Busch III, Col. Paul Brown, Frank L. Donovan, Thomas W. Garland, Lieutenant-Colonel D. S. Stanley, U. S. A.; Julius S. Walsh Jr.

Offices and headquarters are maintained at the Hotel Jefferson, where all correspondence should be addressed. Headquarters of the Bit and Bridle Club are also at the Jefferson.

LIVING CHEAP IN PARIS

Prices Have Not Increased, Man Writes Brother Here.

Henry J. Benjamin, musical director of the Olympic Theater, has received a letter from his brother, Isaac Benjamin, a leading photographer in Paris. Among other things Benjamin writes:

"I understand United States merchants have raised prices. What a disgrace. Think of it. We are in the midst of war and were never living so cheaply. The Government did not permit any augmentation of prices and, in fact, everything has been greatly reduced in price."

HERPICIDE WILL SAVE IT GOING!!
HERPICIDE WILL SAVE IT
GONE!!!
TOO LATE FOR HERPICIDE

Falling hair, primarily due to dandruff, conveys the first notice of approaching baldness. This first notice is frequently received with nothing more than a feeling of annoyance. If the warning is unheeded, the second notice brings it to you in no uncertain manner that total baldness is all but there.

When this second warning excites nothing but regrets for past neglect, it isn't long until you reach the stage when you may cease to worry. You need a wig.

No amount of worry, neglect or regrets ever saved a hair. You best pay attention to the first notice and remember this advertisement.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

DESTROYS DANDRUFF, STOPS FALLING HAIR

Herpicide saves the hair and also many vain regrets and unpleasant recollections. It is reliable. Having been before the public for more than ten years, the users of this valuable scalp prophylactic are now counted by the thousands.

If you want first hand information concerning the merits of Newbro's Herpicide, ask some of your friends or acquaintances about it. They know, they use it and you may prefer their word to ours.

The greatest force at work boosting Herpicide sales today is the recommendation from one friend to another—the word of mouth testimony.

Newbro's Herpicide was the first remedy compounded in harmony with the scientifically proven germ theory of dandruff. Dandruff causes the hair to fall out. Herpicide is known everywhere as a dandruff eradicator and hair saver.

The Doctor's Advice

by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Ellwood Sts., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initial or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

Miss Adele writes: "My hair is combing out, my scalp itches and dandruff is very annoying, and I want something to cure these conditions."

Answer: For hair and scalp troubles I have never found anything to equal the beneficial results of a thorough treatment of plain yellow minyol. It is cooling, cleansing and invigorating, and thousands now use it regularly as a hair and scalp tonic.

Henry J. C. writes: "Something seems to be wrong with my system and I don't know what it is. I have huge puffs under my eyes, my eyes are bloodshot in morning and my feet and ankles are swollen. Sometimes I have chills and feel weak and tired most of the time."

Answer: Your eliminating organs, such as liver and kidneys, are in need of treatment. Begin taking balmwort tablets at once. Get them in sealed tubes with full directions of any well-stocked druggist.

C. M. C. asks: "Please relieve me of a coated tongue, foul breath, headache, constipation and general ill health."

Answer: If habitually constipated, you should take three-grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur) and arouse the organs which eliminate waste material from your body. These tablets purify the blood and improve the health by acting on the liver, kidneys and bowels. Obtain in sealed tubes with full directions.

John C. L. writes: "I find my natural strength and nervous system failing me. I do not recuperate as of yore. My food and rest seem not to benefit as they should. Am weak, despondent and unable to perform the duties which were assumed earlier in life, while my ambition for work and pleasure is slowly going."

Answer: I think a powerful, harmless tonic and nervine medicine will rejuvenate and restore the functions of digestion, assimilation and elimination by invigorating the nervous system. Obtain three-grain cadomene tablets, packed in sealed tubes, and take as per directions accompanying.

Miss Bertie L. asks: "What remedy can you recommend to reduce obesity safely? I want to reduce about thirty pounds."

Answer: I rely on five-grain abolene tablets as being the most effective and convenient treatment to reduce abnormal fat. Druggists supply this in sealed tubes with complete directions. After the first few days a pound a day is not too much reduction.

Mrs. M. D. D. asks: "Do you think it is possible for me to increase my weight from 97 pounds to about 125 pounds?"

Answer: Yes, I believe that the regular use of a special tonic tablet will do this for you, as it has for thousands of others. Ask your druggist for three-grain hypo-nuclane tablets in sealed package with full directions. Take them for several months to get the full benefit.—ADVERTISEMENT.

Sore Teeth Foul Breath

Discolored, Sore Teeth, Gum Disease and Foul Breath Yield Quickly to This Home Treatment.

You can save the teeth nature gave you, make your mouth healthy and escape the tortures of the dental chair by following this new treatment at home. It is simple, easy and pleasant. Besides, it is painless and cannot possibly harm you in any way.

Thousands of mouths like this are seen every day. The trouble is known as Pyorrhea or Riggs Disease. These soft, discolored, bleeding, foul-smelling and receding gums, loosened and sensitive teeth can be made firm, strong and healthy by this simple Home Method.

FREE BOOK TELLS HOW

Stop Despairing! Don't Give Up Hope of Saving Your Teeth

A simple home treatment which we are placing before the public will bring you the relief and comfort you desire. Stop spending money with dentists who do not help you. Don't waste your money on drug store remedies that are invariably, as you know, disappointing.

Write to us today and learn more about this painless, speedy, inexpensive remedy that you can use at home, so there will be no further need for you to undergo the long, painful or expensive dental treatment. Bridges, Crowns and False Teeth are unsightly and rarely satisfactory, and through this treatment of the causes of bad and sensitive teeth, gum disease and foul breath they should be unnecessary.

If you are suffering with Pyorrhea or Riggs Disease, gingivitis, receding gums, elongated or loose teeth; soft, discolored or spongy gums; if your breath is foul; if your teeth pain while eating; if you are subject to bad tastes—then, for your own sake, send for Dr. Willard's book and learn how easy his method is—how painless and speedy—how this simple remedy quickly and permanently gives sound, healthy teeth.

Just sit down NOW and write us for this free book. A few minutes will convince you that Dr. Willard's common-sense, simple Home Remedy is what you are looking for. Don't wait. There is no pain connected with it. We have received scores of letters from people saying they would have given hundreds of dollars had they known of Dr. Willard's Home Treatment in time. To Cure Catarrh Purify the Blood Reason It Out—Where Does It Start the Mucus From?

Innumerable catarrh sufferers have cured themselves by purifying their blood with S. S. S. Catarrh often invades the entire system before it chokes the nasal passages. It becomes so chronic and extensive that the stomach, liver, kidneys, bronchial tubes and most of the glands are involved without such serious conditions being realized. Catarrh may be the result of some serious blood trouble of former years, and this is only one of the many peculiar effects of impure blood. Now S. S. S., in its influence upon the mucous surfaces, causes those catarrhal secretions to be changed or converted into a substance easily, quickly and naturally expelled from the body. It so changes this mucus that it is not the ropy, clogging stuff that plugs the nose, chokes the throat, causes severe bowel trouble, upsets the stomach and contaminates the food just entering the blood. It is often difficult to convince catarrh sufferers that chronic cough, chest pains, gagging, fetid breath and other symptoms are only the local evidence of deep seated trouble. Get a botle of S. S. S. today and try it. You will get good results, real benefit and soon be aware of a gradual cleaning up and a check to the progress and dangers of catarrh. Avoid substitutes. S. S. S. is prepared only by The Swift Specific Co., 61 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. They conduct a medical department for free advice that is worth while consulting. —ADV.

MONKEY TIGHTLY HUGS PATROLMAN ON STREET

A policeman's uniform looked good to "Murphy," a monkey, yesterday. In fact, it looked so good that he jumped upon the shoulders of a patrolman and hugged him so strenuously that the policeman could not shake him off.

"Murphy's owner, Mrs. L. W. Reed of 2208 Park avenue, tried to asphyxiate him last spring when his jealousy of a parrot caused him to turn things topsy turvy in the Reed household. Failing to kill him with gas, Mrs. Reed gave him to the Forest Park Zoo.

While "Murphy" was at the Zoo he fell in love with one of the blue-uniformed keepers. A few weeks ago Mrs. Reed took him back home.

Friday night "Murphy" escaped from the house and all night long was kept a prisoner in a hallway at 2105 Park avenue by two dogs. Yesterday morning when he saw Patrolman Eugene Gonzales coming down the street he evidently thought the policeman was his old friend, the zoo keeper, and sprang between the dogs to the shoulders of Gonzales. The dogs charged on the patrolman, who managed to fight them off with his club.

CHILD IS CRUSHED TO DEATH BY PIANO SHE TRIES TO PLAY

Rickety Instrument Had Been Left Leaning Against House in Ninth Street Alley.

Florence Schuman, 7 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Schuman, 1723 South Eighth street, was crushed to death by a piano which fell over on her in the alley in the rear of 1726 South Ninth street, yesterday afternoon. The child's neck was broken.

The piano formerly belonged to Frank Bisson of 3105 South Seventh street, who formerly lived at 1726 South Ninth street. When he moved away from there, two weeks ago, he did not consider the piano, a decrepit square affair, worth moving, and left it, with the legs removed, leaning against the house at the alley end of a side passageway to the court.

Mrs. Schumann had dressed the child to take her on a visit to Mrs. Ted Guller at 1726 South Ninth street, and the child had been playing with Harry Kruse and Harry Cole, neighbor boys, in a vacant lot next door. When her mother was ready she went to the alley and called Florence. The child answered and started through the passage way toward the alley, but stopped when she came to the abandoned piano and pounded on the keys.

Mrs. Henry Kruse, standing on her porch at 1720A South Ninth street, saw the piano topple over on the child. An instant later Mrs. Schuman came to the passage way to see why her daughter delayed. She saw the overturned piano and the feet of the child protruding. She screamed and Mrs. Marie Brown of 1723 South Eighth street helped her lift the piano.

The child was carried into the house and a doctor called. He said her neck had been broken and death was almost instantaneous.

GERMAN SATURDAY CLASSES TO BE OPENED

Instruction Will Be Given in Five Schools Beginning This Week.

The German Saturday classes, which have been in existence for the last five years, will reopen next Saturday, in the following schools: Blair, St. Louis and Rauschenbach avenues; Clark, Union and Fairmount avenues; Rose Fanning, Grace and Fairview avenues; Garfield, Jefferson avenue and Wyoming street; Hodgen, California avenue and Henrietta street.

Instruction in the German language is given in these schools every Saturday morning from 9 to 12. The schools will be conducted upon the same plan as in former years. No tuition fee is fixed, but it is held necessary that all parents of the children attending contribute to the fund, so that the work can be continued. All cash received is used for the maintenance of the schools and towards paying the deficit for the past school year.

The instruction is given under the auspices of the German School Society by the board of directors, which consists of the following: O. J. Gossrau, president; Louis W. Brimmer, first vice-president; Jul. T. Muench, second vice-president; R. von Muenchhausen, secretary; John Gewinner Jr., treasurer; Theodore Schmid, chairman Finance Committee; Dr. F. O. Sturhahn, chairman Educational Committee; P. O. Sommer, chairman Entertainment Committee; Ed Devoy, E. C. Buechel, Charles W. Holtcamp, Ernst Krohn, Theodore Lange, Ed L. Preetorius, Carl Retzer, Otto F. Stifel, A. O. Weigelt and Dr. Charles H. Weinsberg.

CHAUNCEY I. FILLEY 85 YEARS OLD YESTERDAY

St. Louis Patriarch, and One-Time Political Leader, Writes Memoirs for Historical Society.

Chauncey I. Filley, in former years the Republican leader of St. Louis and Missouri, was 85 years old yesterday. Many of his old friends called at his home, 4109 Westminster place, to congratulate him and talk over with him the political battles of other days. Except for a birthday dinner with relatives, there was no formal observance.

Those who called found him still vigorous of mind and body and looking little older than 20 years ago, except that his hair and beard are white.

He told them he had lived in St. Louis 64 years and a month and felt like he might live many years yet. He spends much of his time w[illegible]ing his recollections of the politi[illegible] history of the city and State. H[illegible]es not expect to put this in the [illegible] of a book, but will turn it over to the Missouri Historical Society.

WOODMEN INITIATED

At a public initiation Friday night at the Woodmen of the World Camp, 4456 Delmar boulevard, 2379 new members were inducted into the two branches of that order by Mrs. E. B. Manchester of Omaha, supreme guardian of the national organization, assisted by Mrs. C. M. Kelly of St. Louis, grand guardian of Missouri; Mrs. H. Loomis of St. Joseph, district manager, and Mrs. Ada Schmitt of Kansas City, district manager.

The candidates were from the various camps of the Woodmen of the World and the groves of the Woodmen Circle, which is the women's auxiliary. There were 1300 women and 1079 men initiated. W. S. Hughes, district manager of St. Louis, and supreme guardian of Missouri, was master of ceremonies.

Enjoy these maple treats

You are doubtless enjoying Towle's Log Cabin Syrup on your waffles and wheat cakes — on your hot biscuits and fritters — but are you enjoying the scores of other dishes made delightful with

TOWLE'S LOG CABIN CANE AND MAPLE SYRUP

Makes Home, "Sweet" Home, Indeed

Wheat Fritters

Three eggs, one and one-half cups of milk, three teaspoons baking powder, a little salt, and flour enough to make a stiff batter, somewhat thicker than the usual batter cakes. Drop into hot lard and fry like doughnuts. Serve with Towle's Log Cabin Syrup.

Log Cabin Sugar Cookies

Three cups Towle's Log Cabin Syrup, one cup butter, four eggs, one cup milk, flour, two teaspoonfuls baking powder.

Warm the syrup in enameled sauce pan until it melts butter. Add yolks of eggs well beaten, one cup of milk and finally enough flour into which two teaspoonfuls of baking powder has been sifted. Roll into soft dough. Add whites of the eggs beaten stiff before putting in the last of the flour. Roll out, cut in desired forms and bake in moderate oven.

Paul Jones Pudding

Bread, one and one-half pints milk, one-half cupful Towle's Log Cabin Syrup, one cupful sugar, two eggs, two tablespoonfuls orange juice. Place bread, buttered both sides, around edge of pudding dish. Beat up eggs, add other ingredients, pour over the bread. Cook in slow oven two hours and serve with cream.

Maple Cake Filling

Cook for five minutes one-fourth cup of Towle's Log Cabin Syrup, three-fourths cup of sugar, one egg, one grated tart apple and one grated lemon rind and juice. When cold add vanilla to suit taste.

Try the recipes at the left. They are tried and true. No other syrup suits that sweet tooth like Log Cabin, and it's guaranteed pure and full measure.

Sales of Same Bonds Have Been Made at Between 80 and 90—Howe the Only Man Opposing Repeal of Company's Loop Franchise.

Howe's Letter Telling of His Big Interest in Southern Traction

JEPTHA D. HOWE,
Attorney and Counsellor,
Suite 1110-1111 Bank of Commerce Building,
St. Louis, Missouri.

Judge Francis M. Wright,
Judge, United States Court,
Danville, Illinois.

Dear Judge Wright:

Mr. Joseph Dickson Jr., attorney at law, of this city, who represents very large creditors and bondholders of the Southern Traction Co. of Illinois, has just informed me that Mr. Wilbur E. Crane, receiver, has or is about to tender his resignation to the court.

I own, as you are aware, $330,000 worth of the bonds of the company and have been its general attorney for some time and was present before your honor at the time of the appointment of the receivers.

I have heard rumors in this matter and have discussed it with Mr. Frederick Essen, who is also a large bondholder as well as a large creditor and we are of the opinion that the resignation of Mr. Crane, who has been the managing and operating receiver, would be disastrous to the property and all interested.

We desire to request that you take no action on the resignation of Mr. Crane until we have an opportunity to appear before the court with the receivers and discuss with the court a number of matters which seem to be causing some friction in the management of the property, with the hope that complete harmony might be established and the best interests of the property conserved.

Mr. Crane is thoroughly acquainted with all of the conditions surrounding the property at this time and having been in active management, it would be very detrimental to have him step out at this particular time. I am mailing a copy of this letter to Mr. Lowes, attorney for the receiver.

Mr. Dickson and myself are both leaving the city tonight for a short time. Mr. Dickson will return on the 12th inst. Will you be good enough to have your clerk notify me where and when after that date we can meet the court with the receivers so that we can let them know in time to all be present.

Respectfully yours,
JEPTHA D. HOWE.

St. Louis, Mo.,
July 1, 1914.

A Post-Dispatch reporter, examining the records of the receivership of the Southern Traction Co. of Illinois at Danville yesterday, found a letter from Jeptha D. Howe of St. Louis to United States District Judge Wright in which Howe stated that he was the owner of $330,000 of bonds of the traction company and that Frederick Essen, Republican boss of St. Louis County, was also a bondholder and creditor.

Howe was the only person to appear before the Railroads Committee of the City Council last week and protest against the repeal of the 50-year loop franchise of the Southern Traction Co. He represented himself as attorney for the company and did not reveal his own financial interest.

A bond expert who recently examined the contracts made by the Southern Traction Co. with its promoters found one by which Howe was to be paid $5000 cash for his services as attorney in aiding in procuring the franchise and $300,000 additional in bonds of the company if the franchise were granted. There was also another contract, by which the company guaranteed to redeem or resell the bonds given to Howe at 90 cents on the dollar. According to the bond expert, Howe would have received $275,000 in cash if his bonds had been disposed of according to the terms of this agreement with the company.

When Howe was asked one day last week by a Post-Dispatch reporter what fee he got for his activities in behalf of the Southern Traction Co., declined to give the figure.

Essen Tells How Howe Got Bonds.

Essen was attending a political meeting at Mehlville, in St. Louis County, last night when a reporter talked with him ove rlong-distance telephone.

Essen said he did not know the exact amount of Southern Traction bonds Howe had received for getting the St. Louis franchise, but he thought $330,000 worth was about the amount. He said he was vice-president of the company at the time, but the deal was made without his knowledge. He said Howe and Hampden D. Mepham, the president of the company, engineered the deal.

"My connection with the Southern Traction Co. was a business and not a political one," said Essen. "I own between $25,000 and $50,000 of the bonds, which I paid for with money advanced from time to time. It can be seen that I, living in the county, would not have had political influence in the city of St. Louis.

"I put up my money when the company had a franchise in St. Louis, East St. Louis and Belleville. There was no 'padding' about me—I mean I did not put up $1 and ask for $2. I think the Southern Traction Co. can develop Southern Illinois like the McKinley System developed Northern Illinois, but these are not the best times for promotion."

Hampden D. Mepham, one of the promoters of the Southern Traction Co. and its president until it passed into the hands of the receivers, was asked by a Post-Dispatch reporter last night how Essen and Howe came to be bondholders in his company. He said:

"I have no explanation whatever to make. There has been too much pub-

After a week of bleak and gloomy weather, during which 3.79 inches of rain fell, the sun has at last succeeded in turning the flank of the cloud-army and will resume the offensive today and tomorrow. This is the latest bulletin from the Weather Bureau's headquarters.

It is promised that the rain and chill temperatures will be driven entirely from the field, and that there will be at least two days of warm and brilliant sunshine.

Official forecast for St. Louis and vicinity: Fair Sunday and Monday; warmer Sunday.

Germans Have Mined the River Scheldt Near Antwerp.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 17.—The Germans, according to the Handelsblad, have laid mines in the River Scheldt near Antwerp. Skippers bound for Antwerp have been requested to ask instructions how to proceed at Hansweert, a port in the estuary of the Scheldt.

CRUISER HAWKE SANK TOO FAST TO LOWER BOATS

By Associated Press.

ABERDEEN, Scotland, via London, Oct. 17, 11:25 p. m.—The attack on the British cruiser Hawke, which was sunk yesterday by a German submarine, came as a great surprise to those aboard the cruiser, according to the survivors who have arrived here.

Nothing was seen to indicate the presence of a submarine until after the explosion, when the periscope of the boat was detected moving away at some distance. The Hawke sank in five minutes, and hundreds of men, some in cork jackets and others hanging to pieces of wreckage, were scattered about in the water.

"I was on the forenoon watch," said one of the stokers, "and we were enjoying ourselves. Someone was singing and the others had joined in the chorus when the Hawke was struck. The ship vibrated violently and immediately started to cant over. When I reached the deck the captain was calling 'It's everybody for himself.'

"I jumped overboard and managed to keep afloat, although the water was bitterly cold, until picked up by the only boat that there was time to launch. For a time we rowed around, picking up men, but the boat was soon overcrowded, and beyond throwing our lifebelts to the men in the water, we could do no more. A Norwegian steamer came up and picked up a few men, but for the large majority she was too late."

The man evidently was suffering severely, and kept repeating "all my pals are gone." Another survivor said: "The torpedo must have struck the magazine, for there was a terrific explosion, and the ship rose as if she had gone on a rock. Everything was dust, and the fittings went flying everywhere. Boats and rafts were rendered useless, even if there had been time to launch them.

"We never saw the submarine," said one man, "until after the explosion when something like a broomstick appeared above the water."

The crew was composed for the most part of Irishmen, as the Hawke was stationed at Queenstown at the outbreak of the war.

Still another survivor said it was impossible to man the guns, owing to the heavy list, though an attempt was made to do so. The captain, the commander and a midshipman were on the bridge They disappeared when the ship took her final plunge.

Maj.-Gen. H. I. W. Hamilton, Former Right Hand Man of Kitchener, Is Killed

LONDON, Oct. 17.

A CASUALTY list of the British expeditionary forces in France, dated Oct. 14, reports the death of Major-General Hubert I. W. Hamilton and 10 other officers and the wounding of 25 officers.

Major-General Hubert Ion Wetherall Hamilton commanded the Third Division of the British field troops and was mentioned in the official dispatches of Field Marshal Sir John French to Earl Kitchener early in September. He was twice military secretary to Lord Kitchener and was Kitchener's right hand man in South Africa and India.

LINER NOORDAM STRIKES A MINE; 7 PERSONS HURT

Steamer Plying Between New York and Rotterdam Damaged in English Channel.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 17, 11:16 p. m.—The Holland-America liner Noordam struck a mine today in the English Channel, according to a dispatch to Reuter's Telegram Co. Seven persons aboard the Noordam were injured.

The Noordam is steaming slowly to Nieuwe Waterwag, Hook of Holland, according to late advices to Lloyd's from Amsterdam.

Noordam Left New York on Oct. 6 With Only 90 Passengers.

The Noordam is of 7978 tons net, and 550 feet long. She was built at Belfast in 1902. On her previous eastward trip she was diverted from her course by a British warship and taken to Queenstown, where 188 German and Austrian reservists were taken off.

LIGHT CRUISER AND FOUR DESTROYERS REPRESENT ENGLAND

French Left Wing Reports Progress—British Troops Capture Position Southwest of Lille—Soldiers and Marines Repulse German Attack on Ypres Canal.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The British navy has accounted for four more German destroyers, which were engaged and sunk off the Dutch coast this afternoon by a British cruiser and four torpedo boat destroyers.

The admiralty announces that the British loss in the engagement was one officer and four men wounded. The damage to the British destroyers was slight.

The announcements adds:

"There are 31 German survivors, prisoners of war."

According to an announcement made by the secretary of the British admiralty, the British vessels in the action were the light cruiser Undaunted and the torpedo boat destroyers Lance, Lennon, Legion and Loyal.

The Undaunted was commanded by Captain Cecil H. Fox, who commanded the cruiser Amphion, which, after sinking the German armed cruiser Koenigin Luise, was itself destroyed by a German mine, Aug. 6.

Thus the British sailors have taken speedy revenge for the sinking of the British cruiser Hawke by a German submarine Thursday.

The sinking of the four warships today makes six torpedo boat destroyers sent to the bottom by British gun fire since the beginning of the war, or seven, counting the torpedo boat destroyer sunk by the submarine E-9. The score in the naval operations, without counting converted merchantmen, such as the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse and the Cap Trafalgar, now favors the allies, which have sunk four German cruisers and six German torpedo boat destroyers, while there have been unconfirmed reports of the sinking of several Austrian destroyers in the Adriatic Sea.

The Germans have sunk eight British cruisers and one Russian cruiser, while Australia has lost a submarine by accident. The Russians also claim to have sunk two German submarines, but this the Germans deny.

Up to this afternoon, Berlin had not heard officially of the sinking of the British cruiser Hawke, which seems to indicate that the submarine which accomplished it has not returned to port.

The Admiralty has announced additional survivors of the Hawke, consisting of Lieutenant-Commander Rosoman and 20 men, who were saved by a raft. This increases the number of survivors to 73. The complement aboard the Hawke in ordinary times numbered 550, but it is reported that it was only 400 at the time of the disaster.

The survivors escaped in a single boat, which they managed to launch, and being later picked up by a Norwegian steamer, were brought to Aberdeen by a steam trawler this morning. Their small boat was so overcrowded that nothing could be done to save the men who were floating in the water.

The periscope of the attacking submarine, they said, disappeared immediately after the explosion.

The British cruiser Undaunted, which led in the sinking of the four German destroyers, is of 3800 tons and carries two 6-inch and six 4-inch guns. The destroyers that accompanied the cruiser have each an armament of three 4-inch guns and an equipment of four 21-inch torpedo tubes in pairs. The destroyers are 250 feet in length and have a speed of 29 knots an hour. Each carries 100 men.

As the German destroyers carry from 60 to 85 men each, the statement that there are 31 survivors from the crews of four of these craft would indicate that more than 200, possibly more than 250, were lost.

Germans Are in Possession of Practically All of Belgium

BERLIN, Oct. 17, by wireless to Sayville, L. I.—According to announcement made in Berlin, German troops in the vicinity of Ostend have reached the North Sea and fighting is going on as far to the west as Dunkirk (a fortified town of 50,000 or more on the Straits of Dover, 40 miles northwest of Lille, and the northernmost town of France).

Belgium today appears to be almost completely in German possession. The French and British troops are reported as cut off on all sides, particularly around Ypres (18 miles northeast of Lille).

German headquarters in Berlin expressed the belief that large numbers of Belgian soldiers, fleeing before the Germans, have cast off their uniforms and put on civilian clothes, preferring to be captured in this attire That the men composing the garrison at Antwerp fled in a great hurry is proved by the quantities of cast-off uniforms, especially of the British Royal Naval division, found by the German soldiers.

Antwerp suffered little by the bombardment. The people are now quiet and glad that the days of terror are over. A mob already had begun plundering the city before the Germans arrived.

French Report Progress on Left Wing

PARIS, Oct. 17, 11:46 p. m.—Military movements are progressing with more rapidity in the north of France than when the allies were forced to advance foot by foot, with the aid of pick and shovel, in order to push the Germans back from their strongly entrenched positions along the rivers Schrape, Somme, Oise and Aisne.

The allies today advanced rapidly and the British troops carried the independent position of Fromelles, to the southwest of Lille after hard fighting.

A corps of French sailors, whose services were not required with the fleet, acting as infantry, came into action and displayed qualities which enabled them to repulse a strong German attack near Ypres.

The sailors also distinguished themselves on the eastern wing, where, after a trying night march, they gained a position in the woods, and at daybreak surprised a large body of Germans, on whom they inflicted serious losses, capturing detachments of cavalry and infantry, with quantities of supplies and ammunition.

Tonight's official communication says:

"On the front there has been only cannonading.

"On our left wing progress continues. The British troops have captured Fromelles, to the southwest of Lille.

"On the Ypres Canal to the sea, our soldiers and marines have repulsed a German attack."

> In Belgium, the German troops occupying Belgium, have not crossed the line running from Ostend to Thourout to Roulers to Menin. There is relative quiet along the greater part of the front.
> On our left wing there has been no change. In the region of Ypres, on the right bank of the Lys, the allied troops have occupied Fleurbaix, as well as the immediate approaches to Armentieres.
> In the region of Arras and also in the vicinity of St. Mihiel we have continued to gain ground.

London Sees the War Brought Nearer to England Each Day

LONDON, Oct. 17, 10 p. m.—Each day brings the war nearer home to England. Today there was the naval battle off the Dutch coast, while on land the German troops reached the coast of Belgium, less than 70 miles from Dover. They are about to attempt a march southward to Dunkirk and Calais, which are even closer to the English coast.

It is here in West Flanders across the French frontier in Pas de Calais that the heaviest and most important fighting is now going on. The allied line in the region runs from a point on the coast which has not been disclosed. For the moment Arras is the scene of the most persistent fighting. The Germans are trying to break through to the Calais railway while the French are attempting to push the German front to the northeast.

In this fighting the French appear to have met with some success as they announce that they have occupied Fleurbaix and also have taken the immediate approaches to Armentieres. At Arras they claim that they are continuing to gain ground.

The fighting has only commenced in this district, however, for the Germans who would consider it a great victory to reach the coast of France and hold the "pistol at England's head," have brought up strong reinforcements and will strive with all their might to achieve this object.

The official report issued this afternoons says that no events of importance have happened, but as they await important victories before making any announcement, this does not mean there has been no fighting.

The allies also can bring up reinforcements both by land and sea and have been doing so, which makes it certain that a great battle must be fought before either side gives ground. The allies will be assisted by the British ships when the fighting reaches points near the coast.

Along the center, which now stretches from Roye to the Meuse, there appears to have been a lull in the fighting, which means, of course, that although the artillery has been busy as ever, neither side has attempted any attacks.

Around St. Mihiel, south of Verdun, where the Germans are hanging onto the little strip of the River Meuse which they succeeded in crossing and from which the French have been trying for weeks to drive them, the battle has been almost continuous.

Away down in Alsace, which is seldom mentioned in the official reports, there has been fighting which, however, both French and German statements ignore. Twice during the week reports have come from Basel that the Germans have been defeated in Alsace and now an unofficial account from Berlin says that the fortress of Belfort has been attacked with mortars.

Both Berlin and Paris express the greatest confidence in the outcome of the battle in the east and west.

According to wounded German officers, who are prisoners in England, it is said, Gen. Sixt von Arnim had succeeded Gen. von Kluck in command of the right wing of the German army in France, two days previous to the battle of the Marne.

One of he German officers credited with this story is Lieut. von Arnim, described as a nephew of the General, who is in a hospital at Netley.

The Telegraph's correspondent at Sluis, Netherlands, 10 miles northeast of Bruges, reports that the Germans occupied Ostend without resistance.

The Belgian troops retired to France. The German forces in Belgium are now in touch with their main army, whose right wing rests on Veurns, the westernmost town in Belgium near the North Sea and 26 miles west-southwest of Bruges, and 35 miles northeast of Lille.

Mines and the stopping of neutral steamers are causing much annoyance to neutral countries. Following the example of Germany and England, Russia is now sowing mines in the Baltic, while the Germans are said to have placed the dangerous machines in the Scheldt, which is Dutch water. The Adriatic also has been mined and the Italian fishing industry virtually brought to an end.

The Scandinavian countries and Holland are the chief sufferers from the searching of neutral ships, for these ships now are being stopped by both British and German warships.

Turkey is keeping her army mobilized at great cost and to the detriment of trade and commerce, which are practically at a standstill. Although the crops are good, famine is feared in the Armenian provinces and the Patriarchate is sending commissions to America and other countries to collect funds for the benefit of the sufferers.

Germany, it is said, has sent money to Constantinople, but it is considered doubtful that she will be able to supply all Turkey's wants at such a time as this.

Antwerp People Invited to Return, but Few Are Going

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Freiherr von Huehne, the new German military commander of Antwerp, today published a proclamation saying a dispatch to the Reuter Telegram Co. from Amsterdam stating that he expects the population to remain calm and refrain from all excesses. Otherwise, he said, the severest military measures would be taken.

The municipality of Antwerp also issued a proclamation, urging Belgian citizens to return to the city and explaining in detail the many regulations adopted by the authorities for the maintenance of order.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The Amsterdam correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Co. reports that passenger traffic between Rotterdam and Antwerp has been reopened for the repatriation of Belgian fugitives. The first steamer left Rotterdam today with only 85 passengers, most of whom were women.

Fighting Reported in German Colony of Kamerum.

PARIS, Oct. 17.—The Havas Agency has received a dispatch from Barcelona saying that travelers arriving from Africa at Las Palmas, in the Canary Islands, report that there has been heavy fighting between German and English and French troops in Kamerun, the German colony of West Equatorial Africa. Dispatches from Bordeaux last month said that on Sept. 21 a French gunboat took possession of Coco Beach in Kamerun.

Bomb Falls! Parisians Shrug Their Shoulders and Walk On

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Harry La Montague, the polo player and brother-in-law of Nicholas Murray Butler, reached London today from Paris on his way to New York. He says:

"The inhabitants of Paris are returning by hundreds, and with characteristic French adaptability have apparently grown used even to Zeppelin raids. Last Wednesday I saw scores of persons look up at airships which dropped 18 bombs, killing four persons. They just shrugged their shoulders and walked on.

"Most of the Americans are getting out of the city, although there are some who say they will stick it out for reasons of business or love of adventure. All my horses have been taken by the French Government."

Papers Issued by German Spies in Switzerland Suppressed

LONDON, Oct. 17.—A dispatch to the Standard from Geneva says: "From the beginning of the war the Swiss authorities knew that a small army of German spies had entered the country, keen on obtaining French and English news at any price, but they were treated with contempt. Recently, however, these spies became emboldened and began to abuse Swiss neutrality. Under Swiss names they started publishing one-page newspapers in German in different towns and receiving all news by special wires at great expense from Berlin. They offered the news for nothing to Swiss papers, which declined unanimously.

"Severe measures have been taken in the last few days against these spies. Many have been simply escorted across the German frontier and firmly requested not to return. Others have been given notice to leave within three days, while their papers have been suppressed."

Germans Make Arrest in British Consulate in Berlin.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—"According to reports reaching here from Berlin," telegraphs the Exchange Telegraph Co.'s correspondent at The Hague, "German police have entered the British consulate in Berlin, where the British Relief Committee has been working in co-operation with the American Embassy, and arrested everyone on the premises. No explanation was given.

"Westong, secretary of the consulate, and his assistant will be held in custody until the end of the war."

New Fulton Jail Opens.

HICKMAN, Ky., Oct. 17.—The new Fulton County jail, which has just been erected at a cost of $13,000, was accepted a few days ago by the County Judge and the jailer, Charles Murchison, has moved in and taken charge, transferring the prisoners from the branch jail at Fulton to this jail.

GERMANS FIGHTING DAY AND NIGHT TO CROSS THE VISTULA

Battles South of Warsaw Continue—Guns and Prisoners Reported Taken by Kaiser's Troops Near Schirwindt — Czar's Soldiers Repulsed at Lyck.

RUSSIANS ARE BEATEN BACK IN HUNGARY

Budapest Says Great Invading Force Has Been Reduced to 4000 Men and Small Forces in the Forests Surrender Without Resistance.

By Associated Press.

PETROGRAD, via London, Oct. 17.—According to Russian information, the Germans are making a "demonstrative" advance near Mlawa, northeast of Warsaw, which is intended to fill the gap between the East Prussian front and the main front, which extends north and south on a line across Russian Poland.

The German army, by continuous maneuvering under heavy artillery fire, and with day and night outpost fighting, still is endeavoring to feel out possible chances to cross the Vistula.

Refugees from that neighborhood say that, until three days ago, all German attempts to cross the river had been repulsed with heavy losses. The Germans found the river too wide for pontoons and numbers perished in attempting to ford it.

Poles in that region are said by refugees to be hampering the German advance by destroying all shelter and provisions, leaving waste the land for the invaders.

Nine hundred Austrian prisoners arrived today at Nehita, Siberia.

Germans Report the Capture of Some Russian Guns.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—An official announcement from the German general headquarters, according to a Berlin dispatch to the Reuter's Telegram Co., received via Amsterdam, says:

"In the Province of Suwalki the Russians yesterday were inactive. A number of prisoners were captured near Schirwindt and some guns were taken. The battles near and south of Warsaw continue."

Another dispatch to Reuter's, from Amasterdam, says the following message has been received from Budapest by way of Berlin:

"The Russians, who were driven out of Marmares yesterday, were beaten near Rapova, where they had occupied entrenchments. The Russians fled in the direction of Koeresmezoe (a Hungarian village in the County of Harmaros). They were pursued by the Austrians.

"The Russian force is now reduced to 4000 men, the last fragment of the great army which penetrated Hungary. Small forces may still be in the forests, but they surrender without resistance when caught."

Vienna Reports Russian Troops Driven Back in Hungary.

VIENNA, via Amsterdam and London, Oct. 17.—It was announced officially in Vienna today that the fighting continued Thursday along the entire battlefront from Stry and Sambor—both to the southeast of Przemysl and to the mouth of the River San. The announcement said:

"In Marmaros-Sziget, Hungary, the enemy has been pursued by Austrian detachments which have occupied Palis.

"In the valley of the Black Bistrica, the Russians are retiring. Our troops have followed them to Zielona."

The River Bistrica and the town of Zielona are in Galicia, close to the Hungarian frontier and to the northeast of Marmaros-Sziget.

Russians Repulsed at Lyck, 8000 Prisoners Taken, Says Berlin.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The German Embassy today received the following wireless from its Foreign Office at Berlin:

"Official headquarters report that the Russians tried on Oct. 14 to reoccupy Lyck, but were repulsed, and that 8000 prisoners, one gun and three machine guns were taken.

Col. Golejewski, Russian military attache here, issued a statement today reasserting the accuracy of a dispatch from Petrograd, dated Oct. 13, made public by him last night, stating that the Austro-German troops along the Vistula and in Galicia had been forced to take the defensive all along the line.

The statement declared that dispatches quoting an official announcement from Petrograd as saying "the Austro-German forces had assumed the offensive along the whole line," were erroneous as a result of hurried translating.

Przemysl Making Determined Defense —Sortie Fails.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 17.—The Russians, who have purposely left the Germans the role of attackers, have compelled them to abandon that role over a great portion of the front south of Przemysl.

Reports from Kieff represent the garrison at Przemysl as making a determined and brave defense. Up to the moment of the investment, tens of thousands of peasants were compelled at the point of the revolver and rifle to work on additional lines of defense. The Russian advance, however, was so rapid that these defenses were left incomplete.

The fortress is said to be well supplied with cannon and ammunition, but to be very short of food. A desperate sortie made recently was driven in with terrible losses.

The state of Russia's mobilization is known only at headquarters, but everyone realizes that a good deal of it is not begun, to say nothing of completion. On the other hand, whatever troops Russia has called up, have appeared with the celerity of volunteers eager to get to the front, but there is still a large part of Russia which has not yet been called up at all. Furthermore, even of those vast areas which have been drawn upon, not all the trained men have yet been summoned to the colors. They are being called up by years as they are wanted.

Berlin Reports Troops Before Warsaw; Loss of Guns Denied.

BERLIN, Oct. 17, by Wireless to Sayville, L. I.—In the Eastern arena of the war the situation is described as favorable in reports given out here today. These say:

"Troops are before Warsaw. Russian reports of capture of German guns are untrue. Polish population of Warsaw has been maltreated by the Russians. There have been many arrests and executions. The Polish and Jewish inhabitants of this district are now aware of the Russian defeats in East Prussia and South Poland and are receiving the Germans and Austrians as liberators."

New Zeppelins Can Remain in the Air an Indefinite Time

LONDON, Oct. 17.

A DISPATCH to the Standard from Geneva says: "For the past fortnight, Count Zeppelin has been paying flying visits to Friederichshafen, sometimes remaining a day or two supervising the construction of two new Zeppelins, which will be ready shortly. Work on them is continuing night and day, and the staff of men was doubled yesterday. Any foreigner approaching the sheds is promptly arrested.

Engineers and workmen are openly boasting that the more powerful new Zeppelins can remain in the air indefinitely.

German Howitzers Wreak Terrible Havoc on French

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—What the effect of the German field howitzers' fire can be, when directed upon troops in close formation is described in the letter of a German officer, published in the Cologne Gazette, and which reads, in part, as follows:

"On Aug. 22, at 8 p. m., just as we were about to go into quarters, a fight developed suddenly. Before we knew what had happened, we were in the thick of it. It was a quick victory. The French were badly thrashed. That night we slept in a ditch along the highway with the starry night for a blanket. The cold was mean.

"On the following day matters proceeded. The French were retiring on the road to Sedan. Following them we saw terrible scenes. This was especially true of a stretch of straight road running through a forest. Here two French field artillery regiments had been annihilated. The pieces stood in the road in marching order; the horses —six to each piece—lay dead in the traces as if struck by lightning. Near them were scattered the dead officers and men.

"There were 28 pieces of artillery, and all their crews dead. The thing happened in 10 minutes. Capt. Wilhelm is responsible for this fine piece of work. He surprised the French with his field howitzers at a range of 300 meters. The Captain was shot in the chest, but he could tell us the story. One of the French officers, who happened to be a short distance away from the artillery, and who was wounded, told us that the experience was enough to rob anybody of his senses.

"I will never forget the awful picture. For two kilometers (a mile and one-third) nothing but pieces of artillery, corpses and the cadavers of horses."

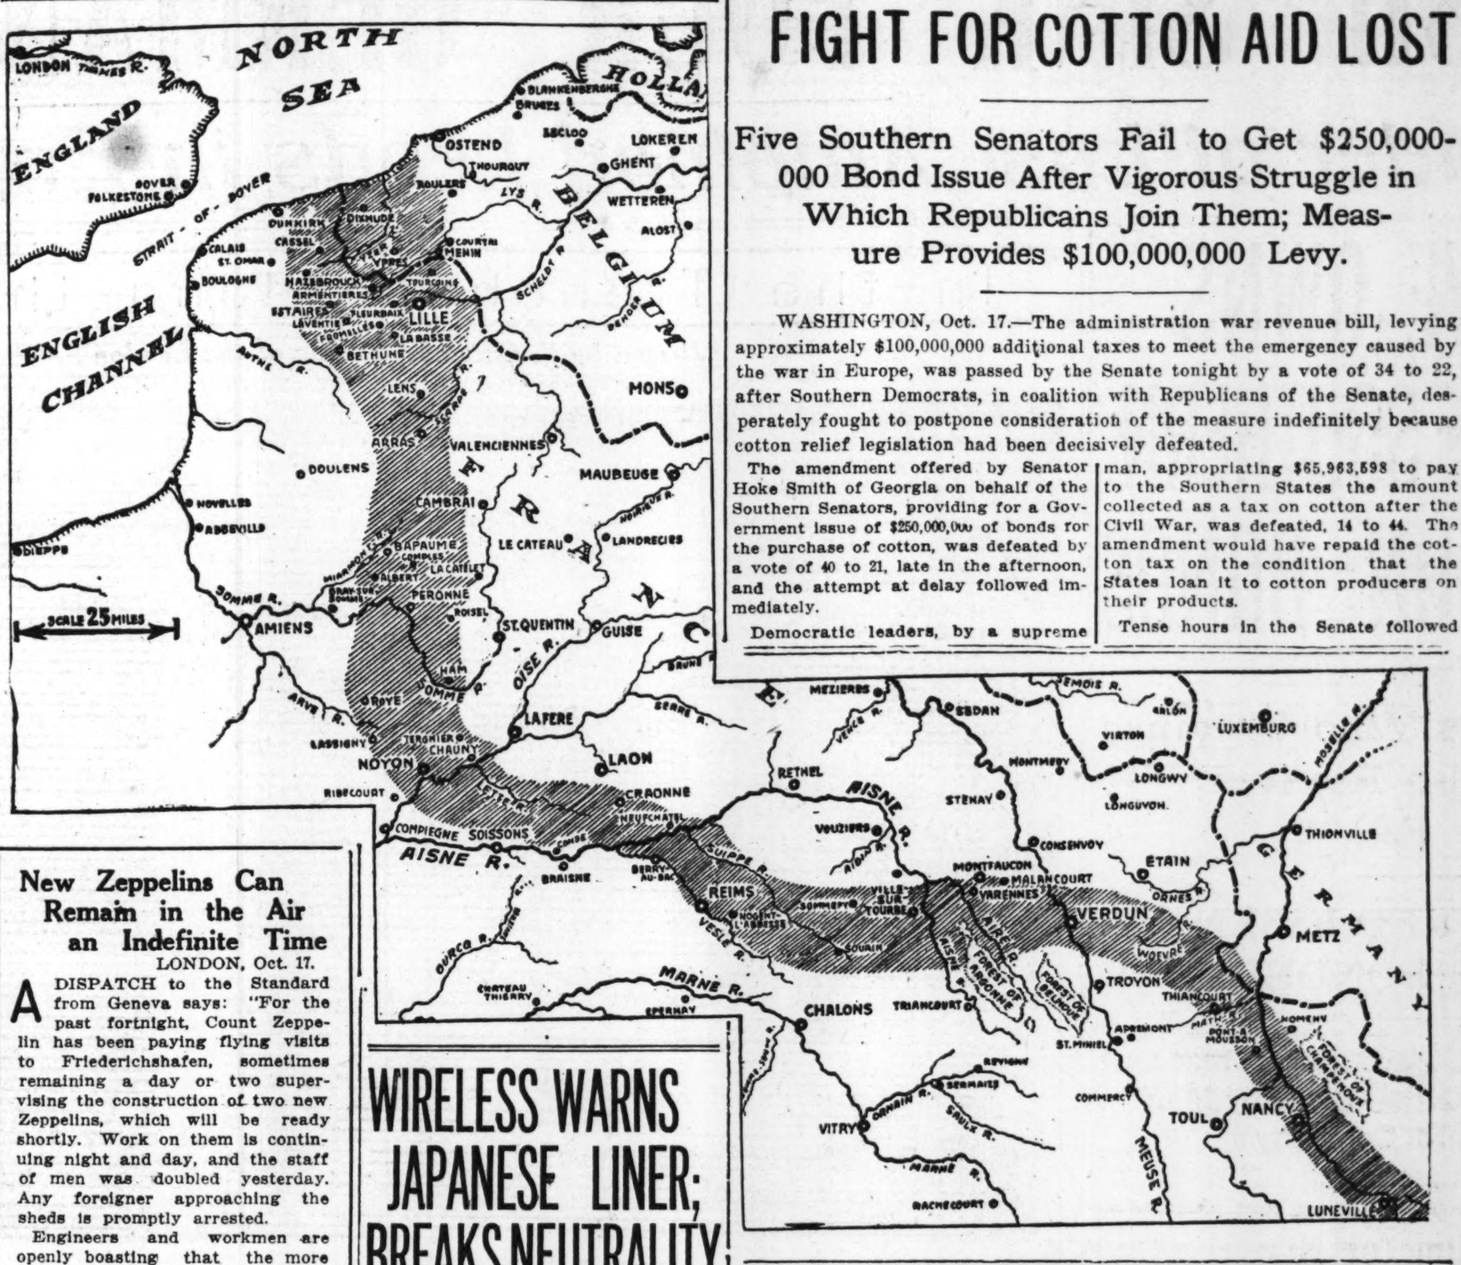
Battle Line From Border to the English Channel



WIRELESS WARNS JAPANESE LINER; BREAKS NEUTRALITY

Message as to German Warship Caused Washington to Order Station Closed.

By Associated Press.

HONOLULU, Oct. 17.—Officers and passengers of the Japanese liner Shinyo Maru, wharved here today, 18 hours overdue from Nagasaki, gave conflicting accounts of the voyage.

Officially the delay was due to bad weather. Elsewhere it was understood that the big liner had been warned by wireless of the arrival here yesterday of the German gunboat Geier, and slowed down until she could get in touch with the battle cruisers Kongo and Tsukuba, which are said to have been convoying her.

The arrival of the Geier was made known by the Marconi Wireless Co. during the temporary absence of the naval censor, and, when Rear Admiral Moore reported the message to Washington, it was regarded there as such a breach of neutrality that the new station was ordered closed until a satisfactory explanation was forthcoming. The company resumed service today.

No Intentional Violation, Opinion of Admiral Moore.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Acting Secretary Roosevelt yesterday ordered Rear Admiral Moore, commandant of the naval station at Pearl Harbor, to close the wireless station within 24 hours unless the management gave a satisfactory explanation of the making known by wireless of the arrival of a German gunboat, which the department regarded as a flagrant violation of neutrality.

In transmitting the company's statement today Admiral Moore expressed the opinion that there had been no intentional violation of neutrality.

British Protest Against Sailing of Mazatlan Unavailing.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 17.—C. White Mortimer, British Vice-Consul here, made an unavailing protest to United States customs officials here today against the sailing of the steamer Mazatlan with a cargo which was alleged to be contraband of war and intended for the German cruiser Leipsig.

Mortimer asked that the vessel be denied clearance papers, but John B. Elliott, Collector of Customs, declared that the cargo was consigned to neutral Mexican ports, and he could not withhold clearance. The Mazatlan sailed today.

Some French Merchants Are Still Buying German Products

PARIS, Oct. 17.—French, British and Russian commercial houses, seduced by prospect of gains, are doing business with German manufactuers, it was intimated today in a statement by Arthur David Manett, president of the French Chamber of Commerce. Commenting on the sequestration of German and Austrian property by the French Government, he said:

"The boycott against German products, intelligently practiced, can contribute powerfully towards shortening the war. The fight, however, must be carried on not only against German and Austrian houses with a penalty to such, but against their intermediaries, the Italians, Swiss, Dutch, Americans, British, Belgians, Russians and also the French, who are being seduced by prospects of gain."

WAR REVENUE BILL PASSED BY SENATE, VOTE 34 TO 22; FIGHT FOR COTTON AID LOST

Five Southern Senators Fail to Get $250,000,000 Bond Issue After Vigorous Struggle in Which Republicans Join Them; Measure Provides $100,000,000 Levy.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The administration war revenue bill, levying approximately $100,000,000 additional taxes to meet the emergency caused by the war in Europe, was passed by the Senate tonight by a vote of 34 to 22, after Southern Democrats, in coalition with Republicans of the Senate, desperately fought to postpone consideration of the measure indefinitely because cotton relief legislation had been decisively defeated.

The amendment offered by Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia on behalf of the Southern Senators, providing for a Government issue of $250,000,000 of bonds for the purchase of cotton, was defeated by a vote of 40 to 21, late in the afternoon, and the attempt at delay followed immediately.

Democratic leaders, by a supreme effort in the climax of the cotton fight, gathered their faltering forces, and spurning them on with eloquent appeals for party solidarity, defeated the coalition by a vote of 32 to 25 in its move to postpone action indefinitely. Senators Clarke of Arkansas, Smith of Georgia, Smith of South Carolina, Vardaman and White, were the Democratic Senators who fought to the end and voted with the Republicans to postpone action.

Five Fight to Last Ditch.

Despite urgent pleas of Senators Williams, Stone, Shively and James, who demanded united Democratic support for a Democratic measure fostered by the administration, these five Southern Senators, under a storm of oratorical denunciation, persisted to the last ditch, in their determination that the bill should contain cotton relief provision.

The passage of the bill foreshadowed the end of the long-drawn-out session of Congress. The tax bill will go to the House on Monday and will be sent to conference. An agreement on the measure between the two houses probably will be reached by the middle of next week.

The vote on the revenue bill followed party lines with one exception, Senator Lane of Oregon, Democrat, voting against it.

Immediately after its passage, the Senate, on motion of Senator Simmons, insisted upon its amendments and asked a conference with the House. Conferees named were Senators Simmons, Williams, Stone, McCumber and Clark of Wyoming.

The cotton relief amendment, proposed by the Senators from the cotton states and defeated by a vote of 21 to 40, provided for an issue of $250,000,000 of three year, 4 per cent Government bonds, in denominations of $10, $20, $50 and $100 to be used to purchase from producers 5,000,000 bales of cotton at not more than 10 cents a pound.

It provided the cotton would be held by a cotton board, composed of the Secretary of the Treasury, the Postmaster-General and the Secretary of Agriculture until 1916, unless the price meantime went to 11 cents. All of the cotton would be disposed of during 1916 and 1917.

A tax of one-half cent a pound on all cotton grown and sold in 1916, and if necessary a tax of one cent a pound on the 1917 crop would be levied to repay to the Government the bonds and all expenses incidental to the handling of the cotton.

Vote on the Amendment.

Those who voted for the cotton relief amendment were:

Republicans: Borah, Clapp and Jones.

Progressive: Poindexter.

Twenty-one Democrats voted against it. They were:

An amendment proposing a $500,000,000 bond issue to be used by the Secretary of the Treasury in stabilizing the price of grain during the European war, proposed by Senator McCumber was voted down.

The amendment would have authorized the Secretary of the Treasury to prohibit or allow the importation of grains to insure the stabilizing process.

The amendment of Senator Overman, appropriating $65,963,598 to pay to the Southern States the amount collected as a tax on cotton after the Civil War, was defeated, 14 to 44. The amendment would have repaid the cotton tax on the condition that the States loan it to cotton producers on their products.

Tense hours in the Senate followed the announced determination early in the day of Southern Democrats to make an effort to hold up action on the war revenue bill should the cotton amendments be defeated. Administration leaders, and even President Wilson were notified of the situation. Postmaster-General Burleson went to the capitol and was closeted with several of the leading Southern Senators who were planning the coup. His influence and that of others was said to have prompted some of the Senators to change their minds.

Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia, in moving to lay ths war tax bill on the table, declared "the Senate has defeated a measure vastly more important than the war revenue bill." Senator Bryan of Florida made the point of order, sustained by the Vice-President, that the motion was out of order because the Senate had agreed yesterday to bring about final disposition of the bill tonight. When Senator Vardaman of Mississippi, then had moved that the Senate indefinitely postpone action on the war revenue bill, and a rollcall was about to be taken, Senator Williams of Mississippi, himself a champion of the cotton bond amendment arose and arraigned his colleague. From a position in front of the Democratic seats he faced the Southern Senators and spoke with feeling, declaring that responsibility for the welfare of the entire country would rest upon them if their effort should succeed.

"If there be Democrats here, said he, "who in this threatening hour to the Government will now join hands with the opposite party to defeat this necessary revenue legislation, the responsibility will rest upon them. Do you believe the Democratic party will permit five or six gentlemen to stultify the party and starve the Treasury? Do you imagine you can win anything for your cause by that? I warn you that you cannot.

"If you attempt to hold up the best interests of the entire nation in order to get assistance in an effort for aid that already has been denied by an overwhelming majority of the Senate, I prophesy that you will be tired of your position after it has been before the country for a few weeks.

"It is no wise thing for a few men to overturn the fiscal policy of their party. It is still less wise for them to hold up the needed revenues of their country.

"The country will justify proper opposition from the Republican party to Democratic issues, but it will not justify playing mere politics with the Delilah that cuts off the Democratic Samson's hair."

Senator Clarke of Arkansas and Vardaman of Mississippi strongly defended their position. Senator Vardaman declared he wished to do nothing to starve the treasury, "but if the United States is going to lay the heavy hand of taxation on people groaning with indigence and poverty, it can't lay it upon my people with my consent."

Senator Stone of Missouri appealed to what he termed the "recalcitrant Democrats," whom, he asserted, had agreed in party conference to vote for the war revenue bill.

"If these recalcitrant Democrats," said Senator Stone, "are going to repudiate the action of the Democratic conference and undertake to defeat a measure which they were pledged to support and shall succeed in their effort, we shall stay here until something else is done to relieve the abnormal and unexpected pressure upon the treasury.

"This Democratic House and Senate would be recreant to its duty if this motion should be adopted and we should go home whipped by a coterie of recalcitrants who would hold the Democratic party up to contempt and bring the Democratic administration, glorious in achievement up to this hour, into serious embarrassment.

"Take your own course, gentlemen, but an overwhelming number of your colleagues will stand by their guns and not run away and leave the administration for which we are responsible, in an embarrassing predicament."

An amendment proposed by Senator Poindexter which would have substituted an increased income tax for the tax on telegraph and telephone messages and on freight, was laid on the table by a vote of 36 to 16.

Prince Oscar Is Not Recovering in Satisfactory Way

BERLIN, Oct. 17.

PRINCE OSCAR, fifth son of the Emperor, who was obliged some weeks ago to withdraw from his regiment on account of a heart affection, is not showing satisfactory progress. An examination has disclosed a rather serious condition of the heart muscle, and the Prince must remain under medical treatment for some time. Prince Oscar is now at Hamburg, where the Empress has visited him.

Wounded Beg in Streets of Vienna for Food and Clothes

ROME, Oct. 17.—A Vienna cable says that the hospital reserves have become exhausted, operations are performed without chloroform, that hundreds of wounded wander the streets begging bread and clothes and that dysentery claims more victims that cholera.

The city, says this dispatch, has closed its gates against refugees and frenzied crowds bombard the war office for truth as to the war situation. Some of the wounded are declared to have refused decorations from royal hands, telling the questioning monarch that he ought to be wounded instead. The aristocracy is said to be indifferent and popular belief is growing that Germany is the only hope of salvation.

FORMER GERMAN CHANCELLOR TELLS WHY NATIONS OF EUROPE ARE AT WAR

GERMANY MUST WIN OR PERISH UTTERLY, VON BUELOW SAYS

Declares Russia Fights for Power, England for Envy, France for Revenge and Germany for Peace, for Culture, for the Future and the Freedom of the People.

(From a Special Correspondent of the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

(Copyright, 1914, by Press Publishing Co.)

BERLIN, Oct. 2.—"We shall be victorious, because we must be victorious."

Such was the statement made by Prince Bernhard von Buelow, former German Imperial Chancellor, who came to Berlin the moment war broke out and who ever since has kept in close touch with the situation. Shortly after the beginning of the war, his youngest brother, Gen. von Buelow, fell in battle.

"The German people never were conquered when they were united," continued the statesman, "and never before in history has Germany been as united as she is today. 'This war has made us all better people,' an old friend said to me yesterday.

Must Win or Perish.

"Quarrels of former days are behind us. We fully recognize of what vital importance is that which unite us. Dr. Suedekum, a German Socialist and member of the Reichstag, gave the full expression of the entire nation, when he wrote: 'We in Germany, and that means all parties, all of our people, are deeply impressed by the conclusion that we either must conquer or perish entirely.'

"It is impossible to formulate the position in which we find ourselves and the labor which faces us in a more clear way. But we shall remain on top. The God of our forefathers is with us, as well as the spirit of Schiller and Kant, von Schleiermacher and Fichte. It precedes our armies, it shows us the way. If Goethe still were with us today he would gladly take back many of the things he has said about German virtues. If Bismarck and Richard Wagner could rise from their graves they would both be well satisfied with their people.

"The spirit of the German past does not fight with us alone; we do not fight alone for the eternal inheritance of our fathers; we are fighting also for German culture, her continuance and her future. Our victory insures justice and order, welfare and education for Europe and the entire world. If we should succumb to Russian lust for domination, and to French vengeance, Europe would be compelled to hide its face.

Believes in Monarchy.

"Napoleon said at St. Helena that the world would be, in a hundred years, either 'kosackish' or republican. We do not want to break our heads over this or the other form of government at this time. I myself believe firmly in the future existence of monarchial institutions for our German people.

"This is a fact, however, that the result of the present war will decide whether German spirit and German culture shall continue to influence the world, or whether they fall victim to barbarism and lordly government. And for that reason we shall not lay the sword out of our hands until we have secured our land against the return of such an unwarranted attack for many years to come, which will make it possible for people to live as real neighbors in peace and quietness and for a general good.

"We all know that a long war demands great sacrifices, that it makes frightful demands upon the military, as well as upon the domestic power of the German people. But the people, whose greatest King was in the field for seven years against half of Europe, who, 100 years ago, formed the best part of an army which fought against the French world's domain for the liberation of Europe, will surely, in a longer war, not lay down the sword."

Grandeur of Germans.

Prince von Buelow stepped to the window, from which he could overlook the Pariser Place.

"I would not have it," he continued, "that you take it for boast on my part, when I say how grand appears the German people as against their opponents. How wonderful appear the virtues of our people today; not only their bravery, which the world knows since the days of Siegfried, since the very beginning of our history, where the roots of the German people mingle with those of Scandinavia.

"Look at how the German armies drive everything before them, in the east as well as in the west; how they all responded to the call to arms; how, in this army of millions, every individual knows just where his place is situated; how everyone gladly fulfills his duty; look with what punctuality thousands of railroad trains carry the troops to the east and to the west, from early morning until late in the night; how the affairs of government are conducted without the slightest interruption; regard the peaceful picture which even today the city of Berlin, with its millions of inhabitants, offers; look at this (and the Prince was pointing out of the window), how even today the grass is kept just as nice and green and as much in order as it was in times of peace; how the roses in the rose garden and how the flowers bloom along the highways, just as before; look at the quiet, peaceful conduct of our people, where everybody does his full duty without bragging about it and without any fuss about it, where you hear no improper noise in the streets, only when we hear of a battle won, and the people then sing one of our beautiful national airs—look at this picture, which at this very moment not only is offered by the capital of the empire, but by the entire country, and well may I say: You gaze upon a grand people."

War an Inspiration.

Prince von Buelow returned to his desk, in front of which he had been seated, and pointed to a Vienna newspaper which lay before him.

"Is it not a fact that the war acted in an inspiring manner over Germany, also over Austria-Hungary, where war came like a clearing thunderstorm? What frightful pictures were drawn before the war, by English and French politicians and publicists, who told of strife among the people in the Hapsburg Empire! The happenings of this war show what lies these prophesies turned out to be.

"Prince Bismarck was right when he declared that once the Emperor and King, Franz Josef, would mount his horse all the people would be his. Although the Germans and the Poles and the Hungarians and the Rumanians might have had differences at times, yet they all prefer to live with their old-time acquaintances, rather than to subject themselves to the whip government of the Russians."

"And how about Italy?" was a question put to the Chancellor who, 20 years ago, was Germany's Ambassador in the Palazzo Caffarelli in Rome.

A Mistake for Italy.

"I believe," replied the Prince, "that the Italian people would commit the greatest mistake in their history if they permitted themselves to be influenced by English, French and Russian yarns to adopt an inimical attitude against Austria-Hungary. I know well what there is between Italy and Austria. The memory of long-fought battles, the lively interest of the Italian people in her people living in Austria. I also know the ties which connect Italy and France, the influence which England has wielded in the past in Italy, not only through her fleet in front of which the Italian coast towns are situated, but also in memory of English sympathy for Italy's peace movement; on the asylum which Italian liberators found in England; I know the love of many Italians for English institutions.

"But these are feelings, impressions which do not hit the kernel of the situation. And this is that the fate of Austria is just as dependent upon our victory as is the future of Italy. The wisest French politician, Adolphe Thiers, knew what he was doing when he fought so hard against a union between Italy and Germany.

"Two great statesmen, Bismarck and Cavour, succeeded through their genius to bring about the Italian-German union, while Napoleon III was unable to understand what was going on about him. Italian independence and union stand and fall with Germany's power.

"Worse Than a Crime."

"The weakening of Germany would have a great impression upon Italy's power along the Mediterranean. A procedure on the part of Italy against Austria, after their long existing alliance, would prove as great a wrong as was ever witnessed in history.

"But it would be still more. The word of Talleyrand wrould prove true—that which he uttered after the shooting of the Duke of Enghein: 'C'est plusqu'un crime, c'est une faute.' (It is forse than a crime—it it is a blunder.) In that way, the tablecloth that rests between Italy and Germany would be cut in two, Italy's standing in the world would be entirely sacrificed.

"And how about Scandinavia? Just recall how warm a friendship has ever existed between the Germans and the Scandinavians; the reception which the best of Scandinavian poets, Ibsen and Bjorenson and Strindberg, were accorded upon the German stage and among the German people; the many Germans who visited Scandinavia and learned to love it and its people; the many tokens of love and the understanding which our Kaiser has given to those people.

"Most Peaceful Country."

"What danger could threaten Norway or any other Scandinavian country, or any other of our friendly neighbors, from Germany? Have we not proved to be a peace-loving people for the last 43 years, and until we were attacked by our neighbors? I can say without a boast: Germany is the most peaceful country in the world!

'How many wars have, in the meantime, taken place in France, England, Russia, Africa and in Asia? How have they striven to enlarge their territory? When did we ever interfere with the rights of other countries? Naturally we don't think even today to threaten the peace and the independence of such countries as wish to live with us in peaceful relationship. Switzerland, the Netherlands, Sweden, Norway, Denmark—they all know that we have no evil thoughts against them.

"Is it necessary for me to remind you of the care with which we have guarded our relations with the United States, or of the American people, for whose greatness our Emperor has such a thorough understanding?

"If today there are millions of German soldiers in the field, then they are fighting for the cause of future peace, for the future and for the freedom of the people.

Why Nations Fight.

"For what fights France? For the satisfaction of a thirst for revenge that can only be satisfied when the German sword is resting upon the ground; from all of which the good Lord and God may protect us.

"What is Russia fighting for? For pan-Slavish destinies, for Russian general domination, which would be a shame. History will tell how the brave Gen. von Hindenburg, when he successfully battled against the Russians at Tannenberg, became entitled to as much honor in the interest of European civilization as, in the old days, did Duke Henry of Liegnitz when he marched his troops against the Mongolians.

"And England? Former Minister John Burns, who rather resigned than to remain longer in politics under Grey, has oftentimes exclaimed it: "They attack us from behind, just because they were envious of us because of our commerce.'

"England threw the very much misled Belgians upon us; it has thrown Japan upon our neck—Japan, whose German teachings she has to thank for so much, and she repays us now by attacking our growing Tsingtau, where German industry and German organization proved so successful. That was an act of treason against the white race.

Cannot Forget England.

"Much water will flow down the German rivers before the Germans will forget England, whose friendship was sought by us, and especially by our Kaiser, in such an honorable way, and with whom we might have been living so nicely in peace and friendship.

"Should the German people be overpowered by the Powers who are now conspiring against us, so would this turn out to be the collapse of all moral world order.

"But, believe me, we will keep the field. We will fight until we secure a peace worthy of the sacrifice which our people offer with holy earnest."

An Incident of the Retaking of Senlis by Turcos

After being in occupation of Senlis for three days, the Germans were suddenly surprised by a dash of Turcos, who were whirled into the town in motor cars and after a fierce fight drove out the invaders.

Austria Said to Be Ready to Cede Trentino to Italy

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The Stockholm correspondent of the Daily Telegraph has sent a report, which reaches him from Austrian sources, that Austria-Hungary and Italy are on the eve of concluding an agreement under which in exchange for Italian neutrality, Austria-Hungary will cede to Italy the Trentino, a district in the Austrian Tyrol, containing the city of Trent, and permit a permanent Italian occupation of Avlone, the seaport on the Adriatic.

The Telegraph expresses the opinion that this should be received with the utmost caution.

DON'T TREAD ON US, STONE WARNS ALL WARRING NATIONS

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Senator William J. Stone of Missouri, chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, sounded a note of warning to belligerent nations today when he said: "The Government of the United States will maintain its position (of neutrality), but it is well for other nations to know that we will not look with indifference upon violation of the rights of our own Government or our own people."

This statement was provoked by a letter read into the record by Senator Thomas of Colorado, charging that a French war vessel had held up a United Fruit Co.'s ship, flying the American flag, and imprisoned some of the passengers.

Recurring to the letter, Senator Stone said:

"In the circumstances at this period, we should not forget, none should forget, that belligerents and neutrals have certain rights and privileges under international law. These rights and privileges are very well defined in the Law of Nations. Much has been said in recent weeks about the rights and privileges of belligerent Powers, and the people subject to those Powers, but less has been said about the rights and privileges of neutral Powers, and the Government of the United States and the people of the United States have voluntarily assumed an attitude of strict neutrality during the continuance of the war in Europe. That attitude has been taken in good faith, and everyone connected with the administration of this Government in any of its departments is striving to maintain that attitude.

Warning to Belligerents.

"We recognize and undertake to concede and enforce the rights of belligerent powers under international law. I think that it is an opportune time to say that belligerent Powers, if they care for the regard and friendship of this republic, should themselves recognize and strictly observe the rights and privileges of a neutral Power. When we are performing our duty, delicate and difficult as it is, with an eye single to maintaining our position as a great neutral Power, nations involved in war should be very careful to recognize our rights and keep faith with us. If they fail to do so, then the responsibilities of violating the rights of a neutral Government will rest upon their heads."

The letter Senator Thomas read was from R. W. Patterson of Colorado, who was on the Metapan, the ship of the United Fruit Co., between Cartagena and Puerto Colombia.

Letter From Coloradoan.

"This (the Metapan)," said Patterson, "is an American vessel, flying the American flag. On Sunday the 4th, between Cartagena and Puerto Colombia, at 10:30 a. m., this ship was boarded by two French officers and two armed sailors from the French war vessel, the Conde, who, through the captain, after having examined the ship's papers, ordered all the passengers into the dining room. After some ten minutes all were permitted to leave the dining room except five young Germans who were held imprisoned and compelled to each sign a parole in order to gain their liberty binding them not to engage with Germany in this war against France.

"After these young Germans had each signed in triplicate this parole, the French officers and armed soldiers departed from the Metapan to The Conde, which had stood by during this search and seizure. The Metapan was held for two and a half hours or more.

"This vessel has recently been transferred from a British ship to an American ship with the other vessels of the United Fruit Co. This is her first voyage as an American ship. The captain and all the officers save the physician and third officer are British subjects. The captain did not protest, so far as I could see or hear. He admitted to the American Consul at Barranquilla, Mr. Isaac Manning, that he did not protest. I witnessed the entire proceeding, as herein recited."

American Consul on Board.

The letter read by Senator Thomas added that an American Consul, who was on board, had filed a report of the incident to the State Department.

Acting Secretary Lansing said later today he had received no report, and, knowing nothing of the details of the incident, would not pass judgment on it.

Other department officials do not see at present how the case can come officially before them unless the managers of the steamship line care to make it an issue.

If the German-born passengers who signed paroles had refused to do so, and been removed from the ship, undoubtedly an issue would have been presented which, in the opinion of some of the officials, now seems to be lacking. Had the Germans been made prisoners by the French it is admittedly a debatable question as to whether the French commander was not entirely within his rights in making the arrests. That he had authority to stop a neutral vessel and search for contraband is generally admitted and the only point that remains in doubt is as to the extension of this authority to the subjects of a belligerent power.

Many times since the outbreak of the war British cruisers have exercised this right and have arrested and carried to English jails a great many German reservists found in neutral ships. This was particularly true of Dutch, Spanish and Swedish vessels, and if the Government to which their owners owe allegiance have made any protests the fact never has been reported.

As pointed out by the State Department, the war has had a most revolutionary effect upon the cardinal doctrines of international law; many old principles have been abandoned and many new ones laid down, particularly in regard to contraband and the rights and duties of neutrals. When the war ends it may be necessary to rewrite the whole code of international law. While these underlying principles are in such a transient condition, the officials of the department are unwilling to pass upon any hypothetical cases and will deal only with actual happenings, such as the stoppage of the Metapan, when the facts are officially laid before them in such form as to require a formal opinion and action.

ENGLAND NOW HAS 1,200,000 TROOPS; 'ONLY A BEGINNING'

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The Times military correspondent, replying to the Frankfurter Zeitung's statement that Great Britain was unable to raise more than 600,000 troops, says:

"We have at the present moment exactly double that number, namely, 1,200,000 men, and the number grows almost faster than we can cope with. This is only the beginning.

"It is our way, as well as that of America, to begin to raise our arms after war breaks out and to go on raising them until our ultimate ends are achieved. With 1,200,000 men at home, the army in the fields and the hundreds of thousands forming in India, Canada, Australia and elsewhere are merely the nucleus upon which other armies will eventually be built.

"It is only a question of time. It stands to reason that an empire of 400,000,000 can never lack men. This war for us has hardly begun. We have sent merely an advance guard into France. In the spring the remainder of the advance guard will follow and somewhere toward the end of 1915 the main body will begin to come within view.

"We are sorry for the allies that we are even slower than Russia in making our weight felt, but a year or so hence, when the allies need a rest, we shall be in a position to make good war.

"Nothing can arrest the steadily ascending figures of our army. Their cost is of little account, since Germany will ultimately have to pay—in territory as well as money.

"Imagine things at their worst. Imagine the last Cossack on the Urals and the last French doorkeeper evicted from Bordeaux. Then we could begin a maritime war against Germany and still be no worse off than when we began war against Napoleon."

Sir Edward Grey's Brother Is Captured by Germans

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—Col. Grey, brother of Sir Edward Grey, British Secretary of Foreign Affairs, was made a prisoner when the aeroplane on which he was acting as observer was brought down by a well-directed shot near Peronne, France.

His aviator also was captured.

BRITISH OFFICERS ADMIT THEY HAD DUMDUM BULLETS

BERLIN, Sept. 29.—Following its charges of the use of dumdum bullets in the French and British armies, the German General Staff has issued facsimiles of written statements signed by W. F. Gordon, Colonel of the Gordon Highlanders, and by F. H. Neish, Lieutenant-Colonel of the same regiment, covering the issuance to them and other officers of flat-nosed ammunition for their revolvers.

Both officers, who are now prisoners of war at Torgau, Saxony, state that they buried the questionable revolver ammunition served out to them in regular course, Col. Gordon declaring that he did so because he doubted whether its use was permissible. The statements, which are witnessed by Lieutenant Baron von Lersner, late secretary of the German embassy in Washington and now attached to the General Staff, and by Lieutenant Baron von Berckheim, follow, and are accompanied by a photograph of two flattened bullets, evidently for use in a revolver.

Did Not Carry Revolver.

"It was issued at Plymouth with revolver ammunition. It was flat-nosed. As I was in doubt about it being correct ammunition and being unable to obtain any definite information from superior authority concerning the matter, I put my revolver ammunition in the ground four days before Mons (23d day of August) engagement, which was the first time I met the German army. At the same time I placed my revolver in my heavy baggage and never carried it again.

"The revolver ammunition was of the same pattern as issued to me and the other officers of the Gordon Highlanders in June last to fire their annual revolver course.

"W. E. GORDON, Colonel,
"Gordon Highlanders,
"A. D. C. to the King."

"As regards revolver ammunition, the bullet as issued was a flat-nosed one. The first time I had ever seen this bullet was during this summer at annual practice.

"I make above statement in writing at the request of Baron von Lersner, a summary of answers I gave him to verbal questions he asked me.

"When I was taken prisoner at Bertray at 3 a. m. on Aug. 27, I had in my possession only three pointed revolver bullets. I had borrowed these from a brother officer. I had no flat-nosed bullets in my possession, as the ones I had issued to me I had buried. I do not remember when, but it was certainly several days before we commenced fighting in the vicinity of Mons, on Aug. 23. F. H. NEISH,

Such ammunition, it is declared in the statement of the German General Staff, although rejected by these officers, was found on captured British soldiers.

NOTED ITALIAN HISTORIAN DISCUSSES HIS COUNTRY'S TRIALS IN THE WAR

ITALY'S INTERESTS AND IDEALS CLASH WITH HER PLEDGES, FERRERO SAYS

If She Attacks Recent Ally, She Will Be Accused of Treachery; If She Neglects Opportunity, Dynasty May Be Overturned.

By GUGLIELMO FERRERO.
Eminent Historian and Authority on Militarism.

IN the war which is now raging in Europe, situations change continuously, swiftly, one might say in the twinkling of an eye. About a month ago I described what was Italy's position in the fight at the beginning of the war and the reasons that induced the Government to declare its neutrality. The incitements to take part in the conflict against the Teutonic empire, which had been made to us ever since the war began, were coldly received.

"We will wait and see what happens," was the thought of all. Now, at the end of September, the situation has entirely changed, and, which is more serious, it has become strange and difficult. The situation has changed because we are beginning to see what is happening. In September we have seen the French army successfully resist the German invasion and the Austrian army receive severe, if not decisive, defeats from the Russians and the Serbs. These events have made a keen impression upon the Italian public, but in two ways. On the one side they have increased everybody's faith in the desired victory of the coalition, which, during the latter half of August, had wavered a little; but at the same time they have embittered their hope with the fear that this victory may be even too great, at least over Austria.

Mutilation of Austria.

What will happen if the Servians and Montenegrins in the South and the Russians in the North all continue victoriously the invasion of the Austro-Hungarian Empire? This empire will certainly be mutilated, to the profit of Servia, and a powerful Slavic state will arise on the shores of the Adriatic. Who does not see what a political and moral catastrophe it would be for Italy, if Austria were to be dismembered for the sole benefit of the Slavs, without us, on our side, taking the Italian provinces that for so many years have groaned under the Austrian yoke.

Hence a disquietude and agitation that for three weeks has gone on increasing throughout the country.

Can the neutrality that two months ago seemed to all the wisest course be judged on the same basis today? Many are now doubting it, and thinking that an occasion like this to reintegrate Italy in its natural boundaries will never present itself again; that as Austria is destined to fall and be cut to pieces, Italy must acquire Trent, Trieste, Istria and Dalmatia at any cost, even that of making war upon the Teutonic empires on the side of the allies. So in the latter half of September there has been formed what might be called a war party, which is openly urging the Government to take up arms against Austria.

War Party Is Strong.

This party is strong and is agitating vigorously. It has its strongest nucleus in the intellectual classes—professors, literary men, journalists—and finds no small following, especially in the big cities where patriotic and warlike demonstrations are frequent. How strong is this current, is proved by one fact, better than by any argument, and this is, that the parties and newspapers which are naturally discordant and inimical are today in accord on this question.

So far, three political parties have publicly urged the Government to declare war on Austria: the Nationalists, the Radicals and the Reformists, the latter being the more modern wing of the Socialists—that is to say, three parties that differ entirely in all other matters.

The warlike movement is intense. But it must not be believed that it is one of nation-wide unanimity. The party of neutrality still exists, after two months of war, less numerous perhaps, but still fairly powerful. The entire financial, commercial and industrial world is still on the side of neutrality, for divers reasons.

Economic Argument.

It says that war might produce an omic catastrophe from which the ntry could not recover except slowly with great sacrifice. It adds that Italy should husband its resources while the strongest people in Europe are weakening and bleeding each other; and that if it does so the moment will come when we shall be able to enforce our rights with less danger and greater profit.

Finally it recalls the fact—and this is perhaps the strongest argument—that we are still the allies of Austria-Hungary; that our Government has declared, even after the war began, that it considers the alliance valid and alive; that Austria has offered us neither pretext nor reason for denouncing it; that by attacking an ally, merely because she seems weaker than her enemies and therefore destined to be beaten, we should be placing ourselves in the category of those states that look upon treaties as "scraps of paper." What would our word be worth afterwards? We bitterly and with justice reproved Germany for her treachery to Belgium; should we now imitate her evil example?

Thus argues the party of neutrality, which has found strong support in the Socialist and Clerical parties. These two parties, both powerful, though in different ways, have pronounced for neutrality to the last. So today the rich bankers and the great manufacturers are in agreement with the Socialists; and the Socialists are in accord with the Clericals. This fact is sufficient to demonstrate how serious and complex is the situation.

Government Perplexed.

It is not difficult to realize that among the arguments advanced by the war party on the one hand and by the neutrality party on the other, there are serious and grave reasons on both sides. So it will be an arduous task to decide between neutrality and war. This, naturally, is up to the Government, which thus finds itself at a terrible cross roads.

The Italian Government understands that if the end of the war should come with a cutting up of Austria, without Italy having done its part and conquered the position that awaits it in the Adriatic, the nation would never pardon the delusion.

Probably the dynasty itself would run great danger of being overturned by popular wrath.

But on the other hand, it feels itself bound by its treaty of alliance, and it cannot enter the field before concluding a treaty of alliance with the coalition, so as to secure the help of England, France and Russia. Who cannot see what a very difficult undertaking it would be for a Power allied with Austria to negotiate in a few weeks a secure alliance with Austria's enemies and go to war with her, without being accused of treachery?

Paradoxical Situation.

How difficult at once to save the country's honor, to defend its interests and not to expose it to mortal risks in such a paradoxical situation.

Perhaps the Italian Government made a mistake in not denouncing the treaty of the Triple Alliance as soon as the war broke out. By declaring war on Servia, Austria violated the treaty in one of its essentials. By violating the neutrality of Luxemburg, Germany committed an outrage against Italy, which was a guarantor of that neutrality. Thus Italy would have had a double reason for denouncing the treaties and today her hands would be free. She could pursue the policy that seemed most convenient to her. It is certainly easier to perceive this mistake now, after the capture of Lemberg, that it was to avoid it at the beginning of August. I am pointing it out, not to blame the Government, but to clarify the situation—as a historian, not as a politician.

We certainly find ourselves in one of the strangest and most paradoxical of situations, with our interest and our ideals in conflict with our pledges, in a tragic struggle between national sentiment and the sentiment of honor. I cannot foresee how it will come out. It must depend upon events. Between the day on which these lines are written and that on which they will be published, the situation I have described may be changed entirely.* But at the end of September things stand thus: The Italian people are on the side of the allies; it is hoping for their victory; it would like to help them, but the friends the allies have all over the world should not be too severe upon Italy if this help does not come so quickly as they would like.

Between desire and action stands a paradoxical diplomatic situation, fruit of a 30-year-old policy, that Italy is still constrained to endure. Let us hope that she will have to endure it for only a short time, and that some providential event will set us free from it and soon restore to us our liberty of action. This would make friends of liberty, the world over, rejoice.

*It has been changed considerably by the Russian reverses in Galicia and Poland in the last few days.—Ed.

British Guns Carry News of War to German Skipper in Africa

LONDON, Oct. 17.

THE Chronicle's Bad Somba, Nyassaland, Africa, correspondent, under date of Sept. 5, tells how news of the European war reached a German ship commander on the Nyassa coast:

"There has been a sort of a naval action. A German steamer, the Von Pismann, was reported to be on the east coast of Nyassa, beached and under repair in a small harbor. So a British Government steamer, the Guendelen, was armed and sent up to take her. The Guendelen approached the narrow entrance to the harbor and steamed slowly in, expecting to be fired upon every moment.

Nothing happened, however, and her comander brought her broadside on and cleared for action. Her marksmanship was not very good. A gun was fired and missed, again and missed, and yet again and missed. The fourth shot scored upon the outer gangway. Then the German skipper appeared, shook his fist at the Guendelen and shouted: "What you mean! If you fire again you will hit the ship."

He was then informed that war had been declared and that resistance was useless.

French Cut Off Royalties to German and Austrian Authors

PARIS, Oct. 17.—The Society of Dramatic Authors and Composers, whose chief function is the collection of royalties for its members, has announced that, henceforth, no sums will be paid to Germans or Austrians or their agents. This action amounts virtually to a denial of all artistic copyright privileges.

The Executive Committee has decided to recommend the expulsion of the Germans members Humperdick, Hauptmann, Suderman and Siegfried Wagner.

German Flier Describes His Battle Above Paris

Aviator Says Two French Machines Attacked Him and One Fell—His Own Car Hit by a Shell and He Lands in Treetops.

By EDWIN EMERSON,
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World With the German Army.

GERMAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Sept. 13.—The following letter is from a German aviator who flew over Paris:

"God be thanked! After a veritable Odyssey I have succeeded in reaching my section again. It is true, my perigrinations were not very surprising, for my troops had advanced about sixty-five kilometers in a southerly direction during my absence.

"All the more joyfully I was greeted on all sides, for I had been given up as lost after an absence of four days, and I myself was surprised, while making my report to the Captain, that 'Master Death' had allowed me thus to skip through his bony fingers.

"On Sept. 6, in the forenoon, I started to fly at Dinant, with the mission of spying out the enemy's position at Syrise and Falange and to make sketches of the enemy wherever observed.

"First Liutenant Keller came along as a guest, and my good biplane soon bore us, at a height of about 800 meters, over the enemy's positions, which were repeatedly sketched and photographed from above by us.

"As we had expected, we soon became the object of a lively fire, and several times I noticed a well-known trembling in the apparatus—a sign that a projectile had hit one of the bearing planes.

"After a flight of three hours we were enabled to give the results of our investigations to our general staff. We got not only praise, but what was better, half a roasted chicken and a first-class Havana cigar for each of us.

"While I was preparing my machine for flight again that afternoon with the aid of several chauffeurs of the automobiles of the general staff—that is to say, supplying it with benzine and patching the marks of the bullets with care and canvas (I counted four of these, one in the body and three in the bearing planes)—a Bavarian Major on the staff told me that he would like to observe the retreat of the English along the great high road to Metz. I prepared the machine for this and started about 4 o'clock in the afternoon with the Major.

"Following the road it soon appeared that the retreat of the English was planless and disorderly, but then it was apparently of importance to the troops to reach the fortified positions in the neighborhood of Paris as soon as possible and seek cover there.

Floating Over French Capital.

"In the neighborhood of Paris! My companion screamed something to me and, although the motor drowned the sound, yet I felt that I had understood what he meant. I looked at the benzine gauge and saw that I had sufficient motive power. I then steered due south, and after about half an hour we discerned in front of us in the gray distance, far, far below us, the gray and immeasurably stony sea of the French capital.

"At a speed of 100 kilometers an hour we were rushing toward it. Clearer and clearer it became, the chain of forts, St. Denis, Montmarte, the filigree skeleton of the Eiffel tower. And now—now we were already floating over the precincts of Paris itself.

"Paris! The Major pointed with his fingers downward, then he turns round slowly to me, arises from his seat and hurrahs aloud. I saw this, although the motor, with its never-ceasing song, smothered the sound.

"And I, I nearly lost my mind for joy and made the maddest gambols in the air with my faithful biplane.

"There was the white church of the Sacre-Coeur, then the Gare du Nord, from which the French wanted to start for the Rhine. There was Notre Dame, the old 'Boul Mich,' the Boulevard St. Michel in the Latin Quarter, upon which I had often strolled when a student and over which was now flying, a victor.

Soars Over Ocean of Houses.

"The heart of the enemy, the proud, shining Babylon of the Seine, lay helplessly below me. Everything ugly which is always connected with a great city had disappeared, and only an impression of the sublime and powerful remained. We felt ourselves doubly happy, doubly victors.

"I soared over the ocean of houses in great circles. In the streets there was an excited crowd, watching the insolent 'German bird' and unable to understand how the Germans could employ the French invention more skillfully and more advantageously than the French themselves. For nearly an hour we had flown our circles and had been unsuccessfully fired upon from below, when a French monoplane approached from Juvisy with the greatest speed. As it was much speedier than my biplane, I was obliged to turn and endeavor to escape, while the Major prepared my carbine and grasped his pistol.

"The monoplane came nearer and nearer. I tried to rise to 2000 metres, to reach the protecting clouds, but my pursuer, whom we watched continuously, rose quicker than we, and came nearer and nearer. Suddenly I noticed, only 500 metres away in front of us, a second monoplane, which was trying to cut us off. Now it became necessary to act.

"In a moment my companion had taken in the situation. I rushed toward the flyer in front of us, then turned, and the major raised his carbine, firing once, twice, three times. At the same moment the hostile machine, which was now alongside and scarcely 100 metres away, rushed upward a little and then fell downward like a stone.

"In the meantime our other opponent had arrived nearly over us and was firing upon us with pistols. A bullet struck close to the gas cock in the body of my biplane, but just then, luckily, a dense fog surrounded us protectingly and the clouds made us invisible to the enemy, whose motor was heard farther and farther away.

"When we emerged again from the clouds it was about 7 o'clock. To discover our position we descended, but suddenly, before us, behind us and beside us the whitish gray, ragged smoke clouds of bursting shrapnels appeared. I was still flying over histile positions and was exposed to the fire of French artillery.

"The firing became more and more severe. I noticed that my machine was hit again and again, but I kept coolly to my course, and it did not even occur to me that these sharp pieces of steel meant death and destruction. There is something in man which remains untouched by knowledge or logic.

Shell Smashes Propeller.

"There, all at once, in front of me, a whitish, yellowish flame; the machine gives a lurch; at the same moment the Major collapses, blood running from his shoulder. The wired couplings of one of the bearing-planes are severed; the motor rattles and thunders as before, it is true, but the propeller is missing. An exploding shell had smashed our propeller, torn one of the bearing-planes and shattered the Major's shoulder.

"By using all the force I was capable of, I succeeded in starting for a glide and in guiding the biplane upon the branches of a forest. Branches and tops of trees split and crash, I am thrown heavily against the body of the machine, and know nothing more of what is going on around me.

"When I regain consciousness I find myself lying beside Major G. on the ground of the forest in the middle of a group of German landwehr soldiers.

"German sentries had recognized me as a friend and had entered the forest in small numbers only to save me. The Major had been severely wounded and had to be transported to the nearest field hospital, but I had only wrenched my leg, so I remained with the sentries after applying a first-aid bandage."

Dead Lie 3 Weeks on Field; Buried by Paris Firemen

PARIS, Oct. 17.

A LARGE number of Paris firemen, equipped with a sort of oxygen helmet, have arrived in the region of Roye to bury the German dead on the battlefield, where they have been lying for three weeks. The firemen brought a large supply of disinfectants with them in order to lessen the danger of contracting disease in handling the bodies. On the battlefield it is said there are between 4000 and 5000 bodies.

RUMANIA EAGER TO JOIN IN WAR; WAITING ON ITALY

Fear Bulgaria Would Start Another Balkan Conflict Prevents Independent Action.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

(Copyright, 1914, by Press Pub. Co.)

BUCHAREST, Oct. 17.—Public opinion in Rumania no longer is content with an attitude of neutrality. There is a universal desire to take part in the war on the side of Russia, in order to effect the deliverance of nearly a million Rumanians inhabiting Transylvania, Bukowina and adjacent districts.

There is not the slightest doubt this national sentiment will prevail with the Government, and, should Italy abandon her present attitude and range herself on the side of the Triple Entente, Rumania would at once make common cause.

It is even possible that Rumania would not wait for Italy's decision, if she were assured Bulgaria would not seize the opportunity to provoke a third Balkan war and thus divide the energies of Rumania.

Her army, which at present is perfectly equipped and disciplined, would display invincible bravery in a war for national unity. All the press is unanimous in demanding action on the part of the Government and support also is given by prominent members of the University of Bucharest.

News has been received here and confirmed from diplomatic sources that an agreement has been concluded between Turkey and Bulgaria to make war on Rumania in the event of the latter attacking Austria.

Turkey and Bulgaria to Attack Rumania if She Goes to War.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The Daily Telegraph correspondent at Athens says that a binding understanding has been reached between Turkey and Bulgaria for a combined attack on Rumania in event of the latter power attacking Austria.

The correspondent says the information was obtained in authoritative foreign diplomatic circles as emanating from official dispatches of three different governments.

Chinese Love Germans, Turks Dislike Them, Partisans Say

LONDON, Oct. 17.—A dispatch from Berlin received by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co., says:

"It is reported from Tokio that a complete revulsion of feeling in favor of Germany has occurred in China. Reports of German victories are prominently announced by the Chinese press and our successes at Tsingtau and the achievements of the cruiser Emden have been received with rejoicing."

"Turkish delusions tend to diminish. Certain Liberal Turks are manifesting dissent with German domination. In Constantinople there have been hostile manifestations before the German embassy."

Be a Pantry Pirate Once More

By Using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets You Can Renew the Appetite of Your Boyhood Days.

Some of you suffering men and women would just as soon think of eating pie, jam and cookies as you would of sleeping with a pair of Bengal tigers. You're afraid of your stomach. If you will only try a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet after each meal and at bed time you will very soon overcome this fear of food.

"Gee! It's great to eat like a boy again!"

These little Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets go into the stomach just like food. They mix their new and fresh digestive qualities with your worn-out juices in stomach and intestines and thus enrich your body, stop gas, irritation and "after eating distress." The act of taking a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet is a pleasing one. You eat it as you would an "after dinner mint" or a "bonbon." It at once mixes with your food and digests that food. It relieves the strain of that meal, of course, and thus you experience a joyful feeling from your food.

Soon your appetite will return. You will find yourself eating the foods you would dearly love to eat, but are afraid to eat; and in a very short time your old digestive system will be returned to you, for our bodies very quickly readjust themselves to normal conditions when we stop the trouble that makes them diseased.

Go to your druggist, no matter where you live, and buy a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. To any one wishing a free trial of these tablets please address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich., and a small sample package will be mailed free.

Don't Merely "Stop" a Cough

Stop the Thing That Causes It and the Cough Will Stop Itself

A cough is really one of our best friends. It warns us that there is inflammation or obstruction in a dangerous place. Therefore, when you get a bad cough don't proceed to dose yourself with a lot of drugs that merely "stop" the cough temporarily by deadening the throat nerves. Treat the cause—heal the inflamed membranes. Here is a home-made remedy that gets right at the cause and will make an obstinate cough vanish more quickly than you ever thought possible.

Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you a full pint of the most pleasant and effective cough remedy you ever used, at a cost of only 54 cents. No bother to prepare. Full directions with Pinex.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

COL. WATTERSON TO CALL ON THE PRESIDENT TODAY

Editor Follows Lead of Col. Harvey on Making Peace With the Executive.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 17.—"Marse" Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, will be the President's guest at luncheon at the White House tomorrow. It will be the first meeting of the two men since their disagreement at the Manhattan Club in New York in November, 1911, at the same time Col. George Harvey broke with President Wilson.

Col. Watterson arrived in Washington this afternoon.

Col. Watterson's editorial in his paper at the time of Mrs. Wilson's death is responsible more than anything else for paving the way for a reconciliation between the President and the great Democratic editor. It touched the President deeply and he wrote a long letter to Col. Watterson expressing his deep appreciation.

The President's letter was answered and the Executive then asked Col. Watterson to come to the White House and asked him to name the date. The engagement for tomorrow followed.

On Oct. 4, Peace Sunday, Col. George Harvey called at the White House and patched up his differences with the President.

Col. Watterson, at the time of the break, said the President talked to him and Mr. Harvey as if they were a couple of schoolboys.

Jep Howe Owns $330,000 Southern Traction Bonds

licity and notoriety already about this matter. You will have to excuse me. I will make no statement."

Howe Got Franchise Passed.

The Southern Traction franchise bill was passed by the Municipal Assembly April 11, 1911, during the second year of the administration of Mayor Kreismann. The original franchise granted the company permission to use the upper deck of the free bridge and to build and operate in the business district of the city a loop railroad, connecting with the west end of the bridge.

Howe was the Republican boss of St. Louis at the time of the nomination and election of Mayor Kreismann and the Council and House of Delegates which passed the franchise. He had been chairman of the Republican City Committee for several years and his control of that organization was so complete that he boasted that he had been entirely responsible for the selection of the Mayor and all the Republican candidates for the Council and House of Delegates.

Howe was employed by the promoters of the Southern Traction Co. as general attorney. He was active in his work among the members of both houses, and was successful in getting the franchise passed.

There was an immediate public outcry against the franchise, especially as work on the free bridge scarcely had been started. Each time a bond issue was submitted to provide the $2,750,000 needed for the completion of the bridge there was a strong opposition, and many organizations went on record to oppose all bond issues as long as the franchise remained in force. The opposition was strong enough to defeat the bond issues when submitted at three separate elections.

Grant Halted Bonds.

Recently the Citizens' Free Bridge Committee, comprised of the representatives of 118 civic, business, district and political organizations, passed resolutions calling upon the Municipal Assembly to repeal the Southern Traction grant. This action was taken after the committee had convinced itself that the principal objection to the proposed bond issue was based upon this franchise, and that the bridge bond issue would again fail unless the franchise was repealed.

While St. Louis was struggling to complete the bridge, the Southern Traction Co., owing to the fact that the bridge was not finished was also having numerous troubles. It made a contract with the Lorimer-Gallagher Co. of Chicago to construct the interurban railroad from East St. Louis to points in Southern Illinois, the work to be done by sections. As each section of the road was completed, the company expected to dispose of sufficient of its bonds in England and other European markets to pay for the construction work.

When the road between St. Louis and Belleville was completed the company made an effort to dispose of its bonds and failed. It went into the hands of receivers and the section of road that has been constructed is useless because the bridge has not been completed. William Lorimer of Chicago, who was involved in the Illinois Senatorial scandal and was thrown out of the United States Senate, was the principal owner of the Lorimer-Gallagher Co. A chain of banks in which he was interested recently failed, the failure being largely due, it is said, to money advanced for the purpose of constructing the Southern Traction railroad. Lorimer, a few days ago, was indicted in connection with the bank failures.

Bonds Sold in Europe.

Some of the bonds—about $750,000 worth—were sold in Europe at a price ranging between 80 and 90.

The ultimate value of the bonds depends upon the development of the company. The repeal of the franchise would affect only the immediate value, for, as has been repeatedly pointed out, the Southern Traction or any other bona fide transportation company will always be free to use the bridge and to enter the city on fair terms, under municipal regulation.

A few weeks before Howe resigned as chairman of the Republican City Committee in the spring of 1909 he exhibited his bank book to reporters to prove his statement that he was a poor man—in fact that he had overdrawn his account. He asserted that he had never made any money out of his connection with politics and had never used his influence with politicians he had placed in office to make money.

William E. Trautman of East St. Louis, one of the receivers for the Southern Traction Co., said last night that the bonds owned by Howe are now held by the receiver for the LaSalle Street Bank of Chicago—the Lorimer bank which recently failed.

Trautman said that the Lorimer & Gallagher Construction Co. took the first bond issue of the company, $1,500,000, at 60 cents on the dollar to pay for construction work on the road. Of these bonds, at least $1,000,000 are now held by the receiver for the Lorimer bank, Trautman said.

"The construction company in which Lorimer was interested pledged the bonds to the Lorimer bank as collateral security for loans," Trautman said. "I presume the bank advanced the money to the construction company, as it needed it in the construction of the road, and accepted the bonds as security.

Bonds Bank Security.

"It was probably through some arrangement between Howe and the Lorimer-Gallagher company that his bonds found their way into this bank as collateral security. I do not know how many bonds Howe owns, nor how he got them, as that was a matter between him and the Lorimer-Gallagher company.

"Fred Essen owns some of the bonds of the company, but not many. He is, however, a large creditor of the company. He has advanced, from time to time, considerable money.

"I am myself a big creditor of the company. I have advanced much money for various purposes. I paid its bills when it was unable to pay them itself.

"I might as well say now that so far as the receivers of the Southern Traction Co. are concerned, they have abandoned the fight to save the franchise. We know it is useless to make any further fight. We are beaten and we know it.

"The House of Delegates has always been against us. The Council until Friday has refused to pass the repeal bills adopted by the House. Now that the Council has passed the repeal bill we know that it would be useless to continue the fight.

Threatens Legal Fight.

"We would not now consent to meet any committee of the House of Delegates to confer with it on the repeal bill.

"We shall, of course, take the fight to the courts to test the right of the city to repeal the franchise."

Trautman said that the Southern Traction Co. had intended to sell a second bond issue of $5,000,000 to European financiers. These bonds were to be used to take up the original issue of $1,500,000 and to furnish money for the completion of the road.

European syndicates took options on the bonds to be delivered within six months after the completion of the road, Trautman said. As the traction company is in the hands of receivers, it would be impossible to dispose of the bonds to the European syndicates, he said. Some of the bonds—a small amount, Trautman said—were sold in Europe at a price between 80 and 90. There never was any fixed market price for the bonds, he said. He did not know what the bonds were worth at the present time, but did not think, in view of the existing conitions, that they had much market value.

The Council, Friday, passed the Southern Traction franchise repeal bill by a vote of 11 to 2 in response to a wide demand that this grant must be annuled before the people of the city again vote on the bond issue to complete the bridge. The bill has been sent to the House of Delegates and 20 members of that body have declared that they would vote for it. Mayor Kiel also has given assurance that he will sign the repeal bill.

Free Bridge Ratification in Tenth Ward Today.

A free bridge ratification will be held by the Tenth Ward Improvement Association, with speeches by Mayor Kiel and President Kinsey of the Public Service Board, at Fountain Hall, Broadway and Chippewa street, at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The passage of a bill Friday by the Council, repealing the 50-year franchise of the Southern Traction Co., and the assurance of an overwhelming majority in the House of Delegates were the main objects of a campaign conducted by the Tenth Ward body. The employment of union labor in completing the bridge, promised by Mayor Kiel and President Kinsey, also has the indorsement of the association.

Labor unions that formerly opposed the bridge bonds are now falling in line with indorsements of the bond issue to be voted on Nov. 6. Mayor Kiel received notice yesterday from the Bricklayers' and Masons' Local No. 2, with a membership of 2500, that it indorsed the bonds by resolution Friday night, after learning of the Council's action. The Building Trades Council also indorsed the bonds and many local unions expect to go on record for the bonds before election day.

Negro Shot Over Craps Game.

Charles Young, a Negro, 20 years old, of 1402 Papin street, was shot twice at 5:30 last night by Wilson Clay, another negro, 17 years old, of 2167 Ashland avenue, when the two quarreled over a craps game in the rear of a stable at 1513 Farragut street. Clay was arrested.

U. S. INVESTIGATES BIG SHIPMENTS OF GOODS TO SWEDEN

List of Articles Under Embargo to Germany Sought in Tracing Reported Violations.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Because of reports that conditional contraband of war sent from the United States into Sweden is reaching Germany, the Swedish Minister, E. Kengren, has been asked to furnish Washington with a list of articles of foodstuffs and clothing upon which the Swedish Government has put an embargo on their being sent into Germany.

The United States wishes this information that the matter may be taken up with the British and French Governments. It is expected the latter Governments will attempt to divert shipments of conditional contraband from the United States in neutral bottoms to Sweden, unless that country places an embargo on their being sent through to Germany, as was done in the case of Holland.

BELLEVILLE WOMAN STALKS MOOSE IN CANADA 3 WEEKS

Mrs. W. A. Thompson Shot None, but Father-in-Law Was More Successful.

Mrs. William A. Thompson returned to her home in Belleville yesterday after three weeks in the woods of New Brunswick, Canada, trying to shoot a moose. Her father-in-law, Cyrus Thompson, bagged a bull with antlers measuring 53 inches, but neither Mrs. Thompson nor her husband saw one large enough to shoot.

It was Mrs. Thompson's first experience in search of big game, although her husband and his father have visited the woods for 14 successive years and two years ago Kermit Roosevelt was a member of the party.

"I had lots of sport while in the North," she related. "I passed my time shooting grouse and learning to fish with a fly. In the latter I became quite an expert."

There are fewer hunters in the Northern woods this year than ever before, she said, due to the European war, which kept many sportsmen from England and Germany at home. Game is also becoming scarce.

The camp of the party was 25 miles from a railroad. Owing to the war a special permit had to be secured from the Canadian Government.

What he had to sell: An automobile, a motor cycle, a summer cottage, a Morris chair. And he sold them through the Post-Dispatch Want Ad columns.

WIDOW UNABLE TO BURY DESCENDANT OF JOHN HANCOCK

Body Held by Denver Undertaker Since Aug. 5 Ordered Placed in Vault.

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 17—The body of John Hancock, last lineal descendant of the signer of the Declaration of Independence, has lain in an undertaker's establishment here since Aug. 5, held for funeral expenses, which his widow is unable to pay.

The fact became known today when the widow appealed to the City Health Department to compel the undertaker to deliver the body to her. She declared she wanted to have her husband buried in Boston beside his mother, but lack of funds and the refusal of the undertaker to release the body had prevented her from carrying out the plan made in accordance with her husband's last wish.

The city ordered the undertaker to place the body in a receiving vault at Fairmount Cemetery here, until such time as Mrs. Hancock is able to take it to Boston.

HIS FALSE TEETH STOLEN

John Liebauer asked the East St Louis police to help him recover a set of false teeth, valued at $25, which were stolen from his pocket while he was riding on a street car last night. He said he bought the teeth last Thursday.

He asked the police to assign three detectives to work with him and when his request was refused, he left the station without giving his address.

$7,500,000 LOSS TO R. I. IN FRISCO DEAL, YOAKUM SAYS

Federal Examiner Previously Testified Amount Was About $35,035,000 — Stock Bought at $61.50, Asserts Railroad Man, $120 Declares Expert.

YOAKUM HIMSELF GOT 30,000 SHARES

He Favors a Partnership Between Railroads and the Government to Share Both the Responsibilities and the Earnings.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Disclosures of details of losses to the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway, through financial operations, were made to the Interstate Commerce Commission today by witnesses intimately identified with the transactions.

B. F. Yoakum, who participated actively in the sale of 'Frisco lines to the Rock Island and who subsequently repurchased the Frisco for himself and associates, described in detail the negotiations which resulted in a loss to the Rock Island which Yoakum placed at $7,500,000.

Mr. Yoakum also gave, incidentally and briefly, his views on such supervision as he believed the Government ought to exercise over railroads. His idea is that a co-partnership ought to exist between the Government and the railroads by which each should have a share in the responsibility and in the earnings. He thought one of the great achievements of the present national administration was its decision to construct and operate a railroad in Alaska.

Wide Variance in Figures.

Yoakum's statement of the $7,500,000 loss in the Frisco-Rock Island deal is widely at variance with the figures submitted by Frederick C. Sharood, an examiner for the Commerce Commission who testified yesterday. He declared the Rock Island lost $35,035,000 in the Frisco deal.

According to Yoakum the stock was bought at $61.50 and sold for $37.50. Sharood declared that the buying price was $120.

The examiner also testified that the Rock Island lost $6,370,841 in the Chicago & Alton transaction. Yoakum, in his testimony, did not estimate the loss in connection with the Alton.

Yoakum testified that he conducted the negotiations for the repurchase of the Frisco stock and favored the repurchase, because he believed in the Frisco's future.

"My dealings were principally with D. G. Reid," Yoakum said. "We agreed on a price of $37.50 per share. I myself took 30,000.

"Did you get the actual stock when you paid the money?" asked J. W. Folk, attorney for the commission.

"You bet I did," replied Yoakum. "I got the real stuff.

The C. & A. Deal.

Yoakum testified that he participated in the purchase of the Chicago & Alton by the Rock Island. Most of the stock of the smaller road was bought from W. D. Leeds and William H. Moore. The deal was consummated while E. H. Harriman, the controlling factor of the road, was in Europe.

"It was a propitious time," said Yoakum with a smile.

The witness then told how the Rock Island secured control of several coal mining companies along its right of way. These afterward were disposed of also.

Concerning the present physical condition and the finances of the Rock Island the witness said he was not qualified to testify.

J. N. Wallace, president of the Central Trust Co., New York, testified that there is probability that the securities of the two Rock Island holding companies would be wiped out absolutely and that every dollar invested in them would be lost. As trustee of the bondholders, the Central Trust Co. is pressing for the sale of the Rock Island stock held as security for its bonds.

According to Mr. Wallace, it became evident early this year that the Rock Island was about to pass the bond interest. A protective committee, of which Mr. Wallace is chairman, was formed.

"I was requested by James B. Brown, representing about $15,000,000 of the bonds, to form this committee," said Mr. Wallace. "When the Rock Island management issued an announcement that it would need about $49,000,000 to put the property into shape, the committee selected E. W. McKenna as an expert to go over the system and ascertain its physical condition."

Road in Bad Condition.

McKenna's report indicated that, in his opinion, the road was in bad condition.

When default was made of the interest, May 1, the Central Trust Co., as trustee, instituted foreclosure proceedings, with the announced purpose of selling the stock as security for the bonds.

"Is it your purpose," asked Mr. Folk, "to insist upon the sale despite the existing world-wide financial trouble?"

"I shall insist upon the sale," replied Mr. Wallace, "because I regard it as my duty to do so. The bondholders will take over the stock and the property."

"The sale of this stock," suggested Commissioner Clements, "will wipe out all of the stock and bonds of the holding companies, will it not?"

"Yes, I think so," replied the witness, "but I'm not responsible for that. Everything of the paper securities of those companies will be wiped out."

"Do you think this a propitious time to sell the stock?"

"Well, in any event," said Mr. Wallace, "the bondholders will get it. They are the real owners of the property The bonds are held very widely and usually in small lots."

"Who is spurring on the Central Trust Co. in this sale?" asked Mr. Folk.

"Nobody."

At the conclusion of today's testimony the Interstate Commerce Commission's hearings in the Rock Island investigation were adjourned to an undetermined date.

SIX ROBBERS HOLD UP BANK; GET $20,000

Bandits Shoot Out Windows at Sedro-Wooley, Washington; Citizen Wounds One.

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Oct. 17.—Six masked men entered the First National Bank of Sedro-Wooley at 8:50 tonight and, after shooting out all of the window lights, escaped with more than $20,000.

A citizen fired at the fleeing robbers and wounded one in the leg.

MRS. FRENCH LOSES SUIT

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 17.—The suit of Mrs. Melissa F. French of St. Louis to acquire what she claimed was her rightful dower interest in the Ten Eick farm in Miami County, Ohio, valued at $30,000, was dismissed in the Federal Court here today.

The court held Mrs. French failed to substantiate her contention that after their marriage Ten Eick transferred the farm to his son, Charles, and that the transaction was a fraud upon her and deprived her of her dower right. The son, Charles Ten Eick, now possesses the farm.

New Boy Scout Organization.

HINTON, Ok., Oct. 17.—A troop of Boy Scouts has been organized here, with William J. Acker as Scout Master and Gordon Harston as his assistant. Three patrols of boys are preparing for the "tenderfoot" degree.

LOWER CALIFORNIA GOVERNOR STARTS REVOLT OF HIS OWN

With Two Colonels He Declares Province Independent of Both Carranza and Villa.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 17.—Adolfo Carillo, Gen. Carranza's consular agent here, telegraphed to Mexico City today information that Gen. Baltzar Avilez and Colonels Tenorio and Cantu had declared Lower California free, not only of Carranza's authority, but likewise that of Villa. They intend to carry on an entirely independent revolt, according to information reaching Carillo.

"The trouble in Lower California started when Villa appointed Avilez Governor," said Carillo. "My information is that Avilez, with Cantu and Tenorio, have formed an independent Government."

Carillo warned merchants against sending goods into Lower California. The territory contains many land and mining concessions belonging to foreigners, especially Americans.

Gov. Hunt Asks Permission to Bring Wounded Mexicans Into U. S.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 17.—Gov. Hunt wired the Secretary of War today, asking that the Federal Government grant permission for the removal of Mexican wounded soldiers from the garrison of Naco, Sonora, to the American side. The Governor urged this action on the ground of humanity, saying that not only the wounded, but American doctors attending them were in danger of massacre by Maytorena's Yaqui Indians, should the latter capture the town.

Secretary Garrison replied that the request would be taken up with the State Department.

Gen. Harris of the State Guard suggested to Gov. Hunt that a three-mile neutral zone be established on the order to prevent the bombardment of American towns during Mexican battles across the line. The Governor took up the proposal with the Secretary of War.

Maytorena Forces Defeated in Attack on Naco.

NACO, Ariz., Oct. 17.—It was learned late today that the Maytorena forces, partisans of the Villa faction in the Mexican imbroglio, had been defeated with heavy losses during their attack on Naco, Sonora, last night and early today.

The Sonora Government not only disregarded the armistice fixed by the Aguascalientes conference, but attacked the Mexican town from due south, although he previously had assured American officials that he had given orders to prevent fire against the American town.

Bullets struck in this village. Seven persons were wounded, including four negro troopers of the Ninth U. S. Cavalry. Two of the most seriously wounded troopers, neither of whom is expected to live, were sent to the army hospital at Fort Huachuca.

Yaquis Who Seized American Ship Leave Santa Rosalia.

ON BOARD U. S. S. WEST VIRGINIA, SANTA ROSALIA, Mexico. Oct. 16, by wireless to San Diego, Cal., Oct. 17.—The mutinous Yaquis, who murdered Maj. Aguayo, the military commandant of Santa Rosalia, on Oct. 6, and seized the American steamer Korrigan III, with intent to raid and capture Lower California for Gen. Francisco Villa, sailed today for Guaymas, after levying a forced loan of 21,000 pesos on the Boleo Co. (French) which controls important copper mining concessions near Santa Rosalia.

Woods Full of 'Possums.

GADSEN, Ala., Oct. 17.—Farmers here are not worrying about the cotton crop, since the woods are full of possums. Two hunters caught 13 in one night and then returned home early, having had all the sport they desired for one night.

Music will make a new man of you!

Think of being able to sit right down and play anything your fancy suggests from the latest ragtime, the hit of the moment, bits from the comic opera you enjoyed so much, or the dear old-live-forever melodies your mother sang, to the world's greatest musical classics! All of these shall be at your very finger tips, even though you don't know one note from another, if you possess a Pianola!

The Pianola Is for You!

The Pianola is not an ordinary "player-piano" that makes music a matter of mechanics. It is far different and better.

Scores of player-pianos are on the market, and some of them have a certain degree of merit—but there is only ONE Pianola. It is made by the Aeolian Company, owners of the fundamental patents for the improvements that make real music possible through a player-action.

The Pianola gives you the fingering ability, and through the wonderful Metrostyle and Themodist enables you to put expression—your own feeling—into the music you play. Without this, there can be no lasting enjoyment.

That piano standing in your living-room—it's a handsome piece of furniture, no doubt, but how much real enjoyment has it brought to YOU? Why don't you exchange it for a Pianola that you can play?

Do this and you shall have music of your own making tomorrow evening.

After you have exhausted the music with which you are familiar, the Pianola will lead you on and on and teach you how to get the most out of the great mass of worth-while compositions which are now a sealed book to you—hundreds, and even thousands of delightful pieces written by the masters of melody for your entertainment.

Don't think of considering a mere imitation, when you may have the Pianola itself for as little as $550 Terms, $3 Weekly

ELI ELEVEN BEATS NOTRE DAME TEAM AT 'NEW' FOOTBALL

By Herbert Reed,
The Post-Dispatch Eastern Football Authority.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 17.

YALE won a stirring game from the husky Notre Dame eleven today by a score of 28 to 0, through the medium of a really brilliant offensive that justified all the good things said of it, after the game against Virginia. The pretty passing of the Eli backs seemed to take the visitors entirely by surprise, while the South Bend eleven did not know how to take full advantage of the flaws in the Yale defense.

Long runs were made against Yale from the kick formation, but it was too often abandoned when the visitors worked their way into Yale territory. Both teams let the ball go on downs, Notre Dame more than once, and there were lapses in generalship throughout the play that would have been far more serious in a bigger game.

There was marked improvement in the handling of the team on the part of the Yale quarterbacks, but the best work of the day was done by Cornell, who handled the Blue eleven in the last quarter.

The Yale attack was daring and puzzling from the start, such backs as Le Gore, Knowles and Ainsworth handling the difficult passes with precision. Le Gore once again accomplished the feat of snatching up a side pass, after it had hit the ground, and fooled the visitors, just as he fooled Virginia.

One glaring example of poor generalship on the part of the visitors was the closing in of the play, when in Yale's territory, and shooting the backs into the Yale tackles, C. Sheldon and Capt. Talbott, when it was patent that the Blue eleven was vastly superior in the tackle positions, if not on the ends.

Yale's Defense Faulty.

On defense Yale played not only the tackles but the end back, and there were many times when the ends were unable to get anywhere near the play.

To throw a play at Talbot or Sheldon was to commit football suicide, and, indeed, the five middle men in the Yale line improved rapidly as the game progressed. Higginbotham, at one end, was an able receiver of the forward pass, which play the Elis used to advantage; and he would have been a much more dangerous man had he been playing under a different system.

The general impression of Yale's play might well be reduced to this: A sound and versatile attack, not as well used as it might have been; a defense that invited disaster, but with clever, hard-tackling backs to make up for the errors that were committed on the first line. Notre Dame's runs were not provided with enough interference; but even so they worked extremely well from time to time. The South Bend team was not as far advanced, probably, as it will be when it meets the Army, but in Finnigan, Cofall, Pliska, Bergman, and above all Eichenlaub, it had an equipment of backs that would have been a credit to any team. Both elevens made good use of the kicking game from time to time, driving the leather into the corners.

The "breaks" of the game were in favor of Yale; but there can be no doubt that the Elis would have won without them.

Yale followed the ball well, and the picking up of fumbles was one of the strong features of the Eli play.

Bad Generalship Twice Sets Back Westerners at Critical Moments

THERE was no scoring in the first quarter, although for a time Notre Dame looked dangerous. It was in the second quarter that Yale began to turn on the wide-open play that is so difficult to face, Knowles and Ainsworth working up the field in neat fashion until the generalship called for a kick, which went to Cofall, the Notre Dame quarter, on his own 20-yard line.

Cofall used the kick formation and picked up 13 yards with it, but the next time shot the play into Sheldon and brought up all standing. Here a penalty for the illegal use of hands put Notre Dame so far back that it was necessary to kick in earnest. Yale started at once to work the passing game, putting on a clever forward fling that would probably have been good for a touchdown had not Higginbotham fumbled it. This was followed by a double, and then by a triple pass, Le Gore handling the business end of the latter that put the Elis on Notre Dame's 25-yard mark.

Yale Scores Touchdown.

Ainsworth and Le Gore kept up the pretty passing game until Yale had a first down and only three yards to go. It was an easy task to swing Le Gore over the last chalk mark by the same baffling tactics that had swept the Elis down within practically certain striking distance.

The score seemed to bring the visitors to life, for Eichenlaub came storming up the field with the kick-off for 48 yards through almost the entire Yale eleven. A pretty forward pass, Eichenlaub to Mills, put the ball on the 20-yard line. At this point there was a switch in the Notre Dame field generals, Bergman going in for Cofall. Apparently the new man had been told to keep up the forward-passing play, for Eichenlaub, with plenty of time in which to make his throw, shot the ball to Elward, who made a beautiful catch while prone on the slippery sod. Unfortunately for the visitors their attack was checked right here, not by Yale, but by the whistle, which indicated the end of the period. Yale was out of danger, and exceedingly fortunate to be out of it, for never again was Notre Dame so menacing.

In the third period Yale went into action in a hurry, and Notre Dame made a mistake that was to cost another score. The kick-off went to Le Gore, who stepped back with it to the 25-yard mark. Knowles then kicked out of bounds 22 yards from Notre Dame's goal, and the visitors instead of kicking, foolishly let the ball go on downs, giving Yale the whiphand deep in Indiana territory.

Yale now went back to old-fashioned football and new-fashioned, too, for that matter, and Knowles slipped neatly through the tackle position for another touchdown.

Notre Dame Pulls a Barry.

Notre Dame wasted time and opportunity once more, and kicked on fourth down, after receiving Wiley's kick-off, with the result that Yale was in position to strike in short order. This time the Blue used the forward pass on the third down, when the visitors were palpably looking for a drive through the tackle position, having learned to fear it. The whole Notre Dame secondary defense was pulled over to the right, and Higginbotham was allowed to cut down the field on the left side with no one within 40 feet of him. Le Gore first bluffed to the right and then made a pretty cross-field pass that Higginbotham gathered in for another touchdown.

Thereafter Notre Dame began a forward passing game that had no justification save downright desperation, and the Yale backs promptly showed that they knew something about intercepting the throw. The visitors were beaten back and, with Cornell handling the game and picking his plays nicely, it was not long before Waite was shot across for the last touchdown of the day.

Notre Dame suffered severely from penalties, but the officialing was of a high order, and the visitors had only themselves to blame. They played a clean, sportsmanlike game throughout. The Yale stands were filled with probably the largest inter-sectional class on the gridiron.

The lineup:

Purdue's Stout Line Is Troublesome for Badgers, Who Win Tough Game, 14—7

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 17.—The University of Wisconsin today defeated Purdue, 14 to 7, in the first conference football game of the season. The much-feared Purdue team gave Wisconsin the hardest kind of a game. On a soggy field the teams struggled through most of the game with the score even, and not until near the close was Wisconsin able to put over the winning score.

For Wisconsin, Buck scored both touchdowns, the first in the third quarter, when he blocked a kick, recaptured the ball, going down the field for Wisconsin's first score. In the last quarter, following a short forward pass to Purdue's five-yard line, Buck again went over for a touchdown. Bellows kicked both goals.

COLGATE'S FUMBLES PROVE COSTLY IN ARMY BATTLE

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 17.—The Army defeated Colgate today, 21 to 7. Fumbling by the visitors led to two of the Army's touchdowns. McEwan, the Army center, got the ball when Warren fumbled a pass early in the first period. With the ball on the two-yard line Benedict went through for the score. Colgate came back strong and marched straight down the field to a touchdown.

The Army scored again in the last quarter on a fine exhibition of line plunging. The Cadets' third touchdown came when Mitchell tallied after Butler had secured a fumbled ball on Colgate's 10-yard line.

Billiken Freshmen Idle.

The poor condition of the St. Louis University football field made it necessary to call off the game scheduled for yesterday afternoon between the St. Louis U. Freshman team and Blackburn College of Carlinville, Ill. The Freshmen, who are coached by Joe Schloemer, an old Billiken star, will meet the Kemper Military Academy eleven in their next game.

RAZORBACKS WIN EASY GAME FROM BILLIKENS, 34-0

Frequent Fumbles Prove Costly for Coach Keogan's Men at Fayetteville.

80-YARD RUN FEATURES

Leverett Makes Long Dash Through Entire St. Louis U. Team.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Oct. 17.—Showing a complete reversal of form, the University of Arkansas today defeated St. Louis U. by a score of 34 to 0. Arkansas' victory was a great surprise, considering the fact that she opened the season by being scored on by a secondary team for the first time in her history, and in her second game was defeated by a team of the same class.

Outweighed 10 pounds to the man, Arkansas rushed the Billikens off their feet and at no time during the game was Arkansas' goal in any great danger. When Gleason fumbled a beautifully executed forward pass from Jones on Arkansas' goal line in the first quarter the Missourians appeared to lose all their energy.

Arkansas Uses Forward Pass.

Using forward passes and end runs and line bucks, Arkansas scored the first touchdown, but Cook missed goal. Near the end of the quarter Leverett returned the ball on an 80-yard run through a broken field. The second half was a repetition of the first, with Arkansas on the offensive a greater part of the time. St. Louis was unable to gain consistently and kicked frequently. Arkansas sent two touchdowns across in the third quarter, Leverett and Sadler carrying the ball. Cook kicked goal both times. During this quarter the Missourians received numerous injuries and several substitutes were sent in. The lineup:

St. Louis.	Position.	Arkansas.
Nyquist, Watkin	Left end	Parchman
Stantislav, Nyquist (Captain)	Left tackle	Turner, Kuykendall
Coulter	Left guard	Henderson Triesch
Jones, Snobia	Center	Richardt, Compton
Meunzer, Neubelzer	Right guard	Wilson
Opp	Right tackle	Dubbs
Gleason	Right end	Rudd
Thomas, Thole	Quarterback	Sadler Cook, James,
Manning	Left halfback	Murrey
McGuire	Right halfback	Lenow Leverett,
Welsh	Fullback	Cochran Dinwiddie,

Summary: Touchdowns—Arkansas, 5 goals; from touchdowns, Arkansas 4. Umpire—Wham, Illinois; Referee—Campbell, Yale. Time of quarters, 15m.

With Only One Regular, Harvard Wins From Tufts

Crippled Crimson Team Is Extended to Annex Battle by Score of 13—6.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 17.—Harvard's crippled team today defeated Tufts, 13 to 6. The visitors showed new variations, not only of the forward pass, but also of line tactics. One formation in which 10 men stood five yards behind the line with the quarterback standing over the ball and passing it direct to the rushers, enabled Tufts to march 50 yards down the field for a touchdown.

Harvard's scoring was the result of line bucking by Bradlee, the only regular member of the Crimson back field able to play. Line-up:

Harvard (13).	Positions.	Tufts (6).
T. J. Coolidge	Left end	Sandard
R. Curtiss	Left tackle	O'Donnell
Soucy	Center	Richardson
Weston	Right guard	Thorndyke
Trumbull	Right tackle	Turner
Weatherhead	Right end	Bennett
Swigert	Quarterback	Parks
Whitney	Right halfback	Wescott
McKinlock	Fullback	Angell

Score by periods: Harvard, 0, 6, 0, 7—13; Tufts, 0, 0, 6, 0—6. Referee—Okeson of Lehigh; umpire, Fultz of Brown; head linesman, Bank of Dartmouth. Time of periods, 12m each. Scoring: Harvard touchdowns—Bradlee, 2; goal from touchdown, Soucy.

Johnny Evers Deserves Most Credit for Braves' Success, Stallings Says

GEORGE T. STALLINGS

Manager of the World's Champions Tells of Inside Workings Which Brought a Tail-End Club to the Top of the Baseball Ladder in 3½ Months.

By George T. Stallings.

BOSTON, Oct. 17.—In the fall of 1912, after I signed a contract to manage the Boston club, President Gaffney said to me:

"Now, understand, if you accept this proposition you are absolutely the manager of this club in every sense of the word. You can buy or sell whoever you please. I want you to take this club and run it just as if you owned it and your own money were at stake."

Talk of that sort was a great pleasure to me, for since my entrance into baseball as a manager I have either owned or had a big interest in every club with which I have been connected, except the Yankees, and to receive carte blanche from the owner of a National League club was all that any manager could desire. My reply to Mr. Gaffney was:

"We Must Have Brains."

"Well, Jim, we'll start at the bottom. The first man I want in the club is Fred Mitchell. We are going to start with brains and some one who knows how. I realize that we have to start from the bottom and build up and to this end it is necessary to part with most of the old players and go in for speed and youth."

"We traded, bought and swapped for the first year until we ended the season in fifth place with only Hess, Tyler, Maranville, Rariden, Sweeney and Perdue who were members of the club when I took charge. Of course Maranville had played only a few games and was a very raw recruit. I think the "Rabbit" will tell any-one who asks him that he began to learn baseball in 1913.

When the Murphy episode of Chicago broke out at the February meeting of the National League in New York and Johnny Evers was likely to be put on the market I immediately got busy, with the result that we paid more real money for him than was ever before paid for a ball player. This was the best investment our club has made, for with Johnny as our captain he has given me all there is in him, and there are few people who can realize what that means.

Evers Made the Infield.

He entered the ranks as a private with the greatest spirit I have ever seen in a club. He was the turning point that gave us a great infield which has made us champions, for I believe our club broke all world's records for the number of double plays with either Evers or Maranville as the pivotal point. Johnny has been not only an ideal captain, but a wonderful second baseman, and a man whose every honorable interest was for this club.

We opened the season of 1914 with only Tyler, Hess, Maranville and Perdue of the original club. While we all realize that Perdue is a real pitcher, the weather of Boston was against him, as he is strictly a hot weather workman. We traded him out to St. Louis for Cather and Whitted. These players came to us about the time our club began to return to good condition and added wonderful value to us.

Shortly afterward we purchased "Red" Smith from Brooklyn, a man whose value cannot be estimated, and a few weeks later we purchased Herbert Moran from Cincinnati. These deals, with a wonderful improvement in our pitching under the careful coaching of Fred Mitchell, started our club on the upward climb and we improved every day until we landed the National League championship and were still improving when the world's series started.

Predicted Winner in 2 Years.

In the spring of 1913 the Winter League Club, of which I am very proud, invited me to one of their little dinners. In my short talk that night I told them that I had come to Boston to remain for a number of years; that they would find me always trying to do my best to deliver them a ball club that would be worthy of this great city; that they must bear with me for at least three years.

Fortune smiled upon me and I was able to deliver in two years. And words cannot express how happy and proud I was when, after the final game, I stood on the roof of our dugout with Mayor Curley and gazed into the 10,000 upturned faces before me. I know that from a baseball standpoint Boston had realized the highest honors possible.

In closing, on behalf of myself and the players, I want to thank the Boston public again for its wonderful and willing support this season.

48 Entries in Women's Golf Meet at A.A.A.

Foremost Feminine Players to Compete in Handicap Tournament.

The first annual women's handicap city golf tournament will start on the Triple A links in Forest Park at 10 a. m. tomorrow morning. Unlike the majority of golf tourneys, no qualifying round will be held, but the players will enter match play from the start.

The entry list at present includes 48 of St. Louis' premier feminine golfers and entries will be received until 10 a. m. Monday, when the first pair start out on the course. Bob Aiken, who is in charge of the tourney, expects at least 60 to enroll.

Every club in the city will be represented. The Triple A leads the list with 15 entries, the Country Club come next with 8, Bellerive has 7, Normandie, Midland Valley and Glen Echo 6 each, Algonquin 5 and the Public Course in Forest Park, 1.

Among the individual stars who will compete are Mrs. E. Lansing Ray of Bellerive, the city champion; Miss Laurie Kaiser of Glen Echo, Miss Grace Semple of the Country Club, Mrs. L. N. Edwards of Algonquin and Mrs. L. P. Aloe of Westwood. Mrs. Ray's victory over Misses Kaiser and Semple in the city tourney was a surprise and the coming matches will determine if it was of the flukish variety or not.

The final round is scheduled to be played Saturday afternoon. A driving contest will be held Tuesday and a putting contest on Wednesday. Information regarding the tournament may be received from Bob Aiken, Triple A, Grand 156.

Tennis Matches Postponed.

The sun failed to come out in time to dry up the Triple A tennis courts yesterday afternoon, and consequently the matches in the numerous uncompleted tourneys at the Forest Park clubhouse were again postponed. Finals in the women's and junior city championships, and the opening matches in the Triple A championships and the interscholastic tournament will be played at the earliest possible date.

Lone Drop Kick Wins Hard Game for Yost's Team

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 17.—With six minutes left to play Larry Splawn drop-kicked a goal from the 20-yard line and the football eleven of the University of Michigan defeated the powerful Michigan Agricultural College team, 3 to 0, here this afternoon. The game, filled with penalties, was one of the roughest and most desperate ever witnessed on the gridiron of a Michigan college.

M. A. C. started the first quarter with a whirlwind attack which almost swept Yost's men off their feet. Penalties helped to check the advance of the Aggies.

In the second quarter, M. A. C. continued to pound Michigan's line and the half ended with M. A. C. holding the ball on Michigan's five-yard line. Michigan came back strongly in the third period and worked the ball to M. A. C.s five-yard line, only to lose it on downs. After a punting duel in the last period, Splawn was given his chance to win the game.

Lineup:

Michigan (3).	Position.	M. A. C. (0).
Staats	Left end	B. Miller
Rohr	Left guard	Straight
Raynsford (C.)	Catcher	Vaughan

KANSAS EASILY WINS WITH OLD STYLE PLAY

DES MOINES, Io., Oct. 17.—Kansas University easily defeated Drake University here this afternoon, 32 to 7, in the first Missouri Valley Conference game on the local stadium.

The game was rather slow and uninteresting, old-style football being played almost continuously by both teams. Shearer's run of 70 yards after catching a Kansas punt scored Drake's only touchdown.

The lineup:

Kansas (32)	Positions.	Drake (7)
Rever	Left end	Smith
Grose	Left tackle	Warneck
James	Left guard	Ruffcorn
Keiling	Center	Hewitt
Melloy	Right guard	Hansen
Burten	Right tackle	Dilts (Cap.)
Coolidge	Right end	Blackburn
Woods	Quarterback	Shearer
Stryker	Left halfback	Donald
Letwiler	Right halfback	Warren
Lindley	Fullback	Jernegan

Score by periods: Kansas, 0 0 10 13—32; Drake, 0 0 0 7—7. Touchdowns—Stryker, Russell 3, Shearer. Field goals—Strothers, Gray. Goals from touchdowns—Strothers 2, Blackburn. Referee—Umbarger, Yale. Umpire—Graham, Grinnell. Head linesman—Porter, Maine. Time of quarters—15m.

FEDS TO ENTER GOTHAM; NO PEACE CONFAB HELD

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—President Gilmore announced today that the Federal League was planning to invade New York and that four possible sites for ball parks were being considered. Gilmore, with Charles Weeghman and William Walker of the local club returned today from New York where, he said, they had been discussing the scheme with Gotham capitalists. Nothing definite was decided on, he said, but at another meeting in New York next Friday action probably would be taken.

There is no truth in reports that peace soon will be reached in the baseball war, according to Gilmore, who declared the Federal League did not want peace and that organized baseball had made no overtures.

MANUAL CLAIMS 1—0 VICTORY ON FORFEIT

Owing to the soggy condition of most of the local football fields, all but one of the "prep" games scheduled for play yesterday were postponed. Two were called off altogether.

Coach Thomas of the Manual T. S. eleven claims a 1—0 forfeit over the McKinley High team. Principal Armand Miller of McKinley notified the officials of the contest that the game was off, without consulting the Manual authorities. The players on both teams, not aware that the game had been called, reported to the C. B. C. campus. About 500 spectators had assembled in the stands. Thomas claims that he cannot send his eleven against McKinley Monday or Tuesday, as it meets Soldan Friday.

The Yeatman-St. Louis Undergrad game, scheduled to be played yesterday morning, will be played tomorrow afternoon on the St. Louis U. campus. The King's highway gridiron was ankle deep in mud.

The Smith Academy and Kirkwood High School elevens will battle on the C. B. C. campus, Monday afternoon. The game had been scheduled for yesterday morning on the Smith campus.

Hostilities between the Soldan High and Principia Academy elevens were declared off by the Science School authorities Friday. The Principia eleven is entirely too light to buck against the Union avenue lads and Coach Hubbell did not care to take any chances in losing any of his small squad through injuries. The game will not be played, as Soldan must prepare for the Manual contest, Friday.

HEAVY PENALTIES KEEP ROLLA FROM CRUSHING PIKERS

Miners Suffer for Rule Infractions, but Completely Outclass Local Team and Win, 19-0.

By W. J. O'Connor.

WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY'S "best team in eight years" struck a mine laid in the mud by eleven expert miners from Rolla, yesterday afternoon, at Francis Field, keeled over and sank with great loss of prestige. The hopes of 6000 royal rooters, the largest mid-season turnout in Pikeway history, were carried to the bottom with the wreckage. Uncensored and authentic reports say the damage done in figures was 19—0.

Yesterday's Big Games

- Missouri Miners 19, Washington U. 0.
- St. Louis U. 0, Arkansas 34.
- Yale 28, Notre Dame 0.
- Harvard 13, Tufts 6.
- Princeton 16, Lafayette 0.
- Cornell 48, Bucknell 0.
- Army 21, Colgate 7.
- Pennsy 13, Navy 6.
- Dartmouth 42, Vermont 0.
- Oklahoma 13, Missouri 0.
- Chicago 7, Iowa 0.
- Illinois 37, Ohio 0.
- Kansas 32, Drake 7.
- Michigan 3, Michigan Aggies 0.
- Minnesota 29, South Dakota 7.
- Wisconsin 14, Purdue 7.
- Pittsburg 10, Carlisle 3.
- Haskell 38, Creighton 0.
- Nebraska 31, Kansas Aggies 0.

This score doesn't indicate the decisive advantage which the Miners held throughout the battle. Rolla, superior in avoirdupois, experience, strategy and team play, simply terrorized their adversaries all the way, and only for the timely intervention of penalties the visitors would have piled up a score bigger than the Railway Exchange Building. The visitors were penalized 125 yards in all while Washington lost 20 yards for rule infractions. Many of Rolla's penalties checked an untiring drive to the goal.

Rolla Has Title Cinched.

Recently Rolla upset Missouri, 9—0. Their conquest yesterday eliminated another obstacle from the path they pursue to the State championship, and with only St. Louis U. between them and their goal, the crown almost already is won. Rolla seems vastly superior to anything St. Louis U. can hope to develop this season.

The visitors are unfettered by eligibility rules and they sport a squad of men who stack up like post-graduates from the school of experience. The eleven is coached by Bud Saunders, a Missouri U. quarterback of '09, and he has developed a varied attack around the forward pass that bewildered Washington yesterday.

Coach Edmunds admitted in advance of yesterday's sortie that his men were ill-equipped for a hard struggle. They had not encompassed the finer points of team play, said Edmunds, who hit the nail squarely on the bean.

Pikers Can't Tackle.

The Pikers gave a weird exhibition of tackling. They tucked away at the large necks of such men as Bland, Freeman, Imlay and Wilson and did nothing more than to momentarily annoy the busy Miners. Occasionally Capt. Ulrich Potthoff and Poge Lewis would tear in and upset a play, but only occasionally. Time without number Washington men went down under punts and groped for necktie tackles on the ghost-like backs of the Miners. Bland, Kiskaddon and Imlay never were worried on the return of kicks by this high tackling.

Rolla boasts of the best set of backs in the State, and you can bet the baby carriage that it isn't a vain boast. Mr. Bland, whose football instincts are hereditary, played through yesterday's game without a headgear, shoulder pad or any of the other effeminate accoutrement of the untried halfback. He has the drooping, thick shoulders of Hub Perdue and the feet of a Mordkin. He fox-trotted around the Pikeway ends until weary.

Freeman Another Acker.

Freeman is a bruising 190-pounder who runs like Acker and laughs when the going is hardest. It was play for him, even though the Pikers did tear two sweaters from his back. Imlay and Kiskaddon are lighter and faster, but their speed was minimised by the muddy field. Then to top off their fancy turn-out, the Miners have in Copley, a lineman, a big-fisted chap who can hurl the forward pass almost as far as Tillie Walker throws a baseball. Copley rivals Jack Schneider and Brad Robinson, stars of the old St. Louis U. juggernaut, who were first to realise on the forward pass, back in 1906 and 1907.

Rolla easily has the best team in the State, according to persons who have seen Missouri, St. Louis and Washington.

Washington Makes First Down Only Twice During Game; Freeman Stars

WASHINGTON played a deefnsive game throughout, having possession of the ball only four times, and registering first down only twice. However, towards the fag end of the third quarter, Washington missed a golden chance to score when Berry dropped a forward pass after he had received the ball fairly in his mitts, five yards from Rolla's goal with no Miner in sight. This was the blow which broke the Piker's back.

The visitors couldn't score in the first period when they were penalized 40 yards, but they managed to carry the ball to Washington's five-yard line just before the quarter ended. When play was resumed, Freeman, on two bucks, one off-tackle and the other through center, put the ball over at a bad angle. Freeman missed the subsequent goal and Rolla took the lead, 6—0.

Bland Runs Amuck.

Washington kicked off and Bland ran back 55 yards, eluding six tacklers. Bland's charges terrorised the Pikers like the Turcos frighten the landwehrs. Long gains by Imlay and Kiskaddon, who skirted the ends from a fake-kick formation, sprinkled with substantial jabs through center by Freeman, carried the ball to Washington's five-yard line when a 15-yard penalty was inflicted and Rolla's march checked. The first half ended with only one touchdown to Rolla's credit.

Starting the third quarter Rolla tore gaping holes in the Pikeway forward line. Bland and Freeman did most of the damage and it was Bland who scored the second touchdown in this quarter. He reeled off 30 yards around Berry's end, just after Freeman had contributed a 35-yard dash. Bland also received the kick-out squarely in front of the goal posts, and Kiskaddon found it easy to toe the goal.

In the final quarter, Washington braced and made first down twice and by acquiring the ball on a fumble carried the fight into Rolla's territory. However, the Miners then braced near their goal and repulsed atacks by Milford, Lewis and Potthoff without losing a yard.

Freeman Starts Parade.

When Freeman and his co-workers undertook another long march and by the use of a simple split play, which the Pikers seemed utterly unable to divine in the making, the Miners rushed over another touchdown, Freeman carrying the ball. The final goal was missed and and the final score registered, 19—0.

The Pikeway team is one of promise, but just now is lacking in the fundamentals. Edmunds' men have absolutely no command of the forward pass and no concise idea of how to tackle. Their trick plays are limited, but the weight is there and there is some speed in Milford, Lewis and Potthoff. But what the linemen don't know would fill the city directory. To sum up yesterday's struggle in short takes, we might state that:

Rolla gained 77 yards on passes against 9 for the Pikers, who essayed only 7 to the enemy's 15.

Rolla was penalised 125 yards to Washington's 20.

Washington made two first downs against Rolla's 20.

Washington lost 34 yards on attempted line rushes.

Rolla ran back on punts and kick-offs for 285 yards against Washington's 52.

FORWARD PASS HELPS MINNESOTA WIN 29—7

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 17.—Forward passes and line plunges, backed by a strong defense, enabled the University of Minnesota football eleven today to defeat the University of South Dakota, 29 to 7.

Minnesota's scoring was done in the first two quarters. South Dakota's touchdown came in the last few minutes of play, when Parliman, on a criss-cross play, broke through the line and ran [illegible] yards for a touchdown.

In the first quarter Solon put the ball over after receiving a 40-yard forward pass from [illegible]. Another forward pass, [illegible] to Solon, in the second quarter, made possible the next touchdown, while the two following touchdowns also were made possible by successfully executed passes. [illegible] kicked three goals from touchdowns. [illegible] threw Ferguson over the line for a safety.

ST. LEOS TO PLAY AT FEDERAL PARK, KLOSTERMAN SAYS

Ten-Time City Football Champions May Not Have to Disband After All.

SEASON OPENS TODAY

First Games of Robison Field League Scheduled at Cardinals' Park.

Those ten-time St. Louis soccer champions, the St. Leos, may have been prematurely counted out of the local association football world, according to Manager William Klosterman.

Although President R. L. Hedges, Saturday, declined to lease Sportsman's Park to the "organized" football league, the heads of the parent soccer organization of the city hustled around and tried to get the use of Federal League Park, Grand and Laclede avenues.

President Steininger has been opposed to the use of his baseball grounds for soccer purposes, but the consent of Otto Stifel and Phil Ball, local Federal magnates, has been obtained, according to Klosterman and Fred Ward of the Columbian Athletic Club's team.

Klosterman told the Post-Dispatch that the old league is preparing to open its schedule Sunday, Oct. 25, with four teams, the Millers, the Columbian A. C. team, the St. Leos and a fourth eleven, which has been assembled, but not named.

New Location Better.

The old league heads are better pleased than if it had obtained the use of Sportsman's Park, as it considers the location better all around than any other in the city.

The St. Leos, but for the change to the Federal league, would have disbanded, as the team and some of its stars had stated they would retire from the game. Others were making arrangements to go over to the Robison Field league.

The St. Louis Soccer League's season is due to open at the Cardinals' Park this afternoon.

Scheduled for the double-header are Columbus Club vs. Manewals in the first game; Innisfails vs. Teresas in the second game. Referee Paul McSweeney will call for the kickoff at 2 o'clock, rain or shine.

New Men in Lineups.

Several new faces will be seen in the various lineups except the Columbus Club. "King" Finnegan is standing pat on his last season's champions. Billy Foley of the Innisfails has two new candidates. Gene Blake of the Teresas has four, and Freund, Sayers and Phil Kavanaugh, who as a trio are handling the Manewals, will trot out three new players.

For the first three Sundays each team has the privilege of using new players without registering them officially. This is an annual custom of the league in order to allow tryouts for new players.

To this season's champions will be given gold watch fobs for each player. They will be donated by Col. George Manewal.

Entrances to Robison Field will be on Vandeventer avenue at the pavilion, and on Natural Bridge road at the bleachers. The field will be laid out cross the outfield field (center and left), the same as last season.

Municipal League Still Behind Last Year in Number of Entrants

A meeting of the Municipal Soccer League will be held in room 300 of the City Hall Thursday evening, when the schedule will be given out. October 25 has been decided upon as the opening date of the league.

Whereas 28 teams were enrolled in the league last year, but 18 have entered as yet this season. Three vacancis must be filled in each the Tower Grove Park, Carondelet Park and Fairground divisions. Games are also played on the Forest Park fields.

A banquet will be tendered to the Heilrung & Grimm nine, champions of the local Municipal Baseball League, at the City Club, Tuesday evening. Besides the members of the title-holding team, officials of the league and Park Commissioner Dwight Davis will be present at the occasion. Reservations may be made for the banquet at the city hall up until Monday noon.

The Heilrung & Grimm team, which had a very successful past season, will be well broken up next spring. Three of the stars of the nine have already accepted positions in the professional circle. Pitcher Neusel and Catcher Hoffman have accepted offers of the Springfield, Ill., (Three-I League) team, while Pitcher Schatzman will be farmed out by the local American League team.

Rodowe Abeken, Playgrounds Commissioner, has received notice that the National Amateur Baseball Association will hold its annual convention in Louisville, Ky., Christmas week. Abeken is of the opinion that the series of elimination games between the various city title winners for the national championship will be on a firmer basis next year. He is certain that a greater number of cities will be represented. Abeken will probably attend the convention.

Good Open Play Wins for Tigers Over Lafayette

One Forward Pass and One Intercepted Pass Net Princeton Two Touchdowns.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 17.—Princeton defeated Lafayette here today, 16 to 0. The Tigers forced the play the greater part of the time, but the Princeton backs were unable to get away owing to the poor work of the linemen. On the defensive, Princeton's forwards put up a stubborn resistance.

Law opened the scoring with a drop kick from the 33-yard line in the second period, and Bigler followed with a touchdown, after intercepting a forward pass and running 30 yards.

The final score came as the result of a forward pass from Law to Brown, which covered 22 yards, and placed the ball on the 1-yard line, from where Ames carried it over.

Lineup:

Princeton (16).	Positions.	Lafayette (0).
Gennert	Center	Luhr
E. Trenkmann	Right guard	Woodward
Ballin	Right tackle	Maxfield
Brown	Right end	Toll
Boland	Quarterback	Taylor
F. Trenkmann	Right halfback	Kennedy
Law	Fullback	Furry

Score by periods: Princeton 0 9 7 0—16; Lafayette 0 0 0 0—0. Referee—Marshall of Harvard. Umpire—Williams of Pennsylvania. Linesman—Davis of Wesleyan. Scoring—Princeton, touchdowns, Bigler, Ames. Goal from touchdown—Law. Goal from field—Law. Substitutions: Princeton—Highley for Lamberton; Ames for Boland; Glick for F. Trenkmann; Love for Bigler; Hoeg for E. Trenkmann; Driggs for Law; Foster for Shenk; Mott for Highley; Shea for Brown; Boland for Driggs; Doolittle for Tibbott; Lamberton for Shea; Lafayette—J. Evers and Stallings Honored.

BOSTON, Oct. 17.—Before play was called for the third world's title game, Capt. John Evers of the Boston team was presented with an automobile by the Chalmers company of Detroit in recognition of his being the most valuable player to his team in the National League. Mayor Curley of Boston, on behalf of the city government, presented Evers with a gold bat, and Manager Stallings with a diamond stickpin and gold ball.

Maroon Quarter Makes Long Run for Only Score

Russell's 45-Yard Dash Defeats Strong Iowa Eleven 7—0 in Hard-Fought Game.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Snatching an Iowa punt on his own 45-yard line, Pete Russell, Chicago quarter, dodged through the Iowas for the only touchdown of the battle on Stagg field today. That touchdown was made in the first quarter, and for the rest of the game, the toughest on the Maroon field for years, Iowa played Chicago to a standstill. The final score was 7 to 0.

Fumbles and the failure of their pet trick play doomed the Iowans to remain scoreless. Time and again they crashed through the Maroon line, but the "spread out" play on which Coach Hawley's men depended in the pinches, proved so slow that the Chicago forwards smashed it and none of the Hawkeye backs seemed sure of his grip on the oval.

On the other hand, the Iowans spoiled the few forward passes Chicago tried. "Dolly" Gray managed to make some of his famous runs, but was not dangerous. The Maroon long shots, ineffective also through the absence of Huntington, failed as utterly as did Russell's tries at quarterback runs.

Both Show Good Defense.

The defense on both sides far outshone the offense, but for all that the game was full of spectacular runs and long punts. Only in the last quarter, when rain softened the ground and wet the ball, was it slow.

Lineup:

Chicago (7).	Positions.	Iowa (0).
Whiting	Left end	Gunderson (C.)
Shaw	Left tackle	Jacobson
Desjardien (C.)	Catcher	Houghton
Albert	Right guard	Brueckner
Jackson	Right tackle	Kirk
Sparks	Right end	Carberry
Russell	Quarterback	Gross
Gray	Left halfback	Donnelly
Schafer	Right halfback	Parsons
Flood	Fullback	Wills

McGRAW PANNED FOR PASSING UP RUDOLPH

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Probably the most chastened man in New York today is John J. McGraw, who, it may be recalled, once or twice won a pennant. The reason is that he must stand for a lot of letters and phone messages sarcastically inquiring what price he is now willing to pay for Pitcher Rudolph and Catcher Gowdy of the Braves, both of whom are Giant castoffs. Rudolph, it is popularly reported, was dropped because McGraw thought he was too much of a "runt," and Gowdy because of "listlessness."

COACH WHITAKER FAILS TO ACCEPT OFFER OF M. A. A.

Local Organization's Swimming Instructor Has Departed for Philadelphia.

The Missouri Athletic Association will, in all probability, lose the services of Thomas L. Whitaker as coach of its swimming team. Whitaker and the club have been unable to come to terms regarding the salary question and unless some compromise is made this week Tom will likely take a position as mentor of some Eastern university squad.

When his contract had expired, immediately after the Labor day swim, Whitaker stated that he had received offers from several well-known Eastern schools. He said, however, that before he accepted any he would give the M. A. A. an opportunity to do business with him.

The club was a long time in getting down to business, but when it did it was decided that a coach could not be retained simply to coach the team. Formerly it had been the coach's duty to teach the members the paddling art, but as the club at present does not possess a pool this would be impossible. Whitaker was then offered a position on the Membership Committee, and it was suggested that he take care of his swimmers on the side. Whitaker took up the proposition but did not agree with the terms made by the club. He came back with a counter proposition which did not satisfy the officials.

Negotiations Dropped.

Last Saturday it was necessary for him to return East, because of some important business. For the present he has dropped negotiations with the M. A. A. However, Tom L. Watts Jr., chairman of the Athletic Committee, has not given up hopes of retaining the Easterner. A meeting of the Membership Committee will be held Tuesday at which the question will again be discussed.

Whitaker had been with the M. A. C. for four years. During that time he has rounded up a team of youngsters that compares favorably with any in the country. He also claims the national professional swimming title. During the month of September he toured the East, accepting challenges for his title.

Ten-Mile Run Is Next.

The next event on the M. A. A. athletic calendar is the annual 10-mile modified marathon race, to be held Nov. 7. As usual, the local club will try to bring a number of Chicago's best long-distance runners here for the event. Likewise, the local clubs will enter in full force. The M. A. A. is attempting to reorganize its marathon team, and has quite a number of runners at practice now. Levison, Biel, Johnson and Lobert will enter the grind.

Cowman May Join M. A. A.

From present indications the Missouri Athletic Association will have an athletic team that St. Louis may rejoice in. Tom. L. Watts Jr. of the athletic committee is at present corresponding with a number of well-known performers now attending western colleges. Gerard Cowman, who opened the eyes of the country by tripping the quarter mile in 45 2-5s. at Francis Field in the Valley Conference Meet last summer, is the latest to be heard from. A letter was received from the Rolla athlete stating that he was willing to negotiate with the M. A. A. Terry, Hutsell, Hutto, Groves and Floyd are others who may wear the Cherry Diamond. Reller of Cornell, McCawley, Wagoner of Yale, Dover of Rolla and Jackes of Princeton are among those now enrolled in Coach Dr. Bassett's squad.

Connery's Cards Play in E. St. L

Dan Griner, the big blond spitter who has signed with the Cards for 1915, will pitch for Bob Connery's team this afternoon in a game against the East St. Louis Giants at Polo Park, East St. Louis. Zinn Beck will be on third, with Walton Cruise in the outfield. Other habitues of Robison Field will be seen in action. Larry Doyle is slated to play for the East Side nine. Play at 3 o'clock.

WABADAS PLAY ALPENS AT BROWNS' PARK TODAY

That interesting baseball class, the Wabadas, will play the "Gambrinus Giants," the famous Alpen Braus, at Sportsman's Park today. The game will be the second of a series of three for the championship of the Interstate League. The Wabadas won the first game, 7—4, last Sunday. If they should win today they will be champions of the Interstate League.

Both teams claim to be in tip top condition. Chalfant and Ruel will be the battery for the Wabadas, Behnen and Kerr for the Alpen Braus. Play will be called at 2:30. Foley and Daly will umpire.

PERRITT HOLDS CONFERENCE WITH OWNER BRITTON

Pitcher Who Jumped to Feds Is Denied $600 Bonus—Griner Signs for 1915.

Polly Perritt, the Cardinal pitcher who took the Federal League hurdle, paid Schuyler Pearson Britton a visit at Robison Field yesterday morning. Polly demanded in firm, but menacing language to know why payment had been stopped on his $600 bonus check.

"Because," explained Britton, "you failed to fulfill your contract by jumping to the Federal League. You signed a contract with the Cardinals which contained a reserve clause. You jumped that reserve and thereby broke the contract. For that reason I don't propose to pay you a $600 bonus."

Polly left the office with threats that he would sue for his money, as he figured he earned it. Polly intends to postpone his trip to Louisiana until he realizes on the check. He expects to file suit soon, and has communicated this fact to Britton, whose only reply was, "Sue to your heart's content."

Griner Accepts Terms.

Daniel Griner, who has the envied distinction of having won the only fall series game for the Cards, besides losing a one-hit struggle earlier in the season to Boston, made peace with his employers yesterday and signed for next season. He had little trouble coming to terms, as he had reached an agreement with Miller Huggins before the manager hit the rails for Cincinnati.

With Griner in the fold, the only unsigned players now are Cozy Dolan and Dick Niehaus, a young pitcher. Dolan wants a three-year contract, but the Cardinal management has advised Cozy that they are not running a home for the aged and infirm. They are willing to risk another one-year contract with the Oshkosh scene-shifter.

Zinn Beck has signed, spiking the rumors that he had jumped to the Feds. One outlaw attache said that Beck already had signed with Brooklyn, but this Zinn emphatically denies. He put his name to a document in Britton's office the other day.

Central Eleven Makes Show of East Side Team

A rain-soaked gridiron failed to stop the Central High School football eleven from trampling the East St. Louis High School team, 47—0, at Robison Field yesterday morning. Although the mid-city lads had been picked to win over the Illinoisans, no such score had been expected.

There was one man on the winning eleven who stood head and shoulders above his teammates. Potthoff, fullback, a brother of Captain Boise Potthoff of Washington University eleven, starred from the opening to the closing whistle. His efforts resulted in four touchdowns, while his line-smashes netted many yards. He also was a tower of strength on the defense. Of the visitors, Godejohn, who played right-half, proved to be almost the entire strength.

Coach Walker placed Sil Merstetter at quarterback for the first time this season. Although hindered by a weak knee, he performed credibly at his new position. In fact, he featured in the best play of the game, receiving a forward pass from Conzelman and running 60 yards through a broken field for a touchdown.

Lineup:

Central.	Positions.	East St. Louis.
Kalkman (capt.)	Center	Gill
Wood—Haase	Right guard	Spalding
Hemp	Right tackle	Orr
Connor—Nies	Right end	White
S. Merstetter	Quarterback	Carroll
Conzelman	Left halfback	Brandenberger
L. Merstetter	Right halfback	Godejohn
Pottoff	Fullback	Hodson (capt.)

Referee—Sihler (Washington); umpire—Heeley (Washington); head linesman—Reinholdt (McKinley). Time of periods—15m. Touchdowns—Pottoff (4), S. Merstetter, Nies, Conzelman. Goal after touchdown—S. Merstetter (5).

O'TOOLE AGAIN TO WEAR A PITTSBURG UNIFORM

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 17.—Marty O'Toole, pitcher, who was purchased by the New York National League club, Aug. 31, has been returned to the Pittsburg Nationals, from whom he was bought. It is announced that New York declined to pay the balance of the purchase price. O'Toole has signed a 1915 contract with the Pirates.

New Featherweight Boxer Will Show at Future City

Kid Sullivan, Who Will Substitute for Johnny Solsberg Against Eddie Lennon, Said to Have Made a Good Impression in Eastern Contests.

By Harry S. Sharpe,

Referee for the Future City Athletic Club and the Post-Dispatch's Boxing Authority.

THE regular weekly boxing show of the Future City Athletic Club, to be given next Tuesday evening, features no high-salaried stars of the profession.

Eddie Lennon, who acquired a reputation on the Pacific Coast as a fast and clever featherweight, and who has been operating in the East with success during the past summer under the management of Tom O'Rourke, at one time manager of Joe Walcott and featherweight champion George Dixon, will appear in the main event of eight rounds against "Kid" Sullivan of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Lennon has often been referred to as the Pacific Coast Champion," and claims to have boxed a 12-round draw with Frankie Neil, when the latter was champion of his class, though this fails to appear in Neil's record.

Lennon is said to be an attractive boxer, and must be of merit to have been successful in securing matches with such boxers as Eddie Campi, Frank Manilla, "Young" Sieger, "Philadelphia" Tommy O'Toole, Tommy Dixon, "Peanuts" Schieberl, Nate Jackson and "Tickle" Sanders. These and many more appear on his record.

Kid Sullivan a New One.

Not much out this way is known of "Kid" Sullivan, Lennon's opponent on next Tuesday night, but he is said to be well thought of in New York and Brooklyn, N. Y., where most of his boxing has been done. Last spring Sullivan boxed Johnny Solsberg 10 rounds in Brooklyn and succeeded in flooring the clever Solsberg twice in the first round, a feat which Johnny Coulon and other good boxers nave failed to accomplish. Solsberg then came on and barely succeeded in shading the little Irishman in 10 rounds.

Next Tuesday's match was to have been between Solsberg and Lennon, but the former secured a match for Oct. 27 with Bantamweight Champion "Kid" Williams and passed up his match here. Sullivan was immediately named as substitute and is expected to arrive in this city today, accompanied by "Sport" Sullivan as manager. Lennon has been here for some time and in active training. The boys have agreed upon 118 pounds at 3. The weight agreement calls for 118 pounds at 3 o'clock p. m. on the day of the bout.

Hanson has been in America only nine months, but he has already acquired quite a good record, winning from "Young" Otto, "Young" Griswell and "Fighting Joe" Highland in 10-round bouts and scoring knockouts over Al Thomas, "Battling" Brown, Frankey Burns and Eddie Lang.

Kelly will be remembered by patrons of the Future City A. C. particularly for his bouts with Jimmy Foley. These two were great rivals. Kelly is said to have been taking good care of himself and is in good condition.

The balance of the card will be furnished by Harry Gerber of St. Louis vs. Raney Donafor of Providence, R. I., eight rounds at 135 pounds, and a four-round bout at 110 pounds between Abe Kabickoff and Tommy Donley.

Kelly-Gardner Bout Off.

The eight-round bout between Leo Kelly and Dale Gardner, which was to have taken place last night on a boat running out of St. Louis, was called off by Promoter I. C. Speer because of his failure to make satisfactory arrangements for the boat and his subsequent failure to post the money guaranteed the boxers.

Gardner expects to leave for Texas today, having agreed to a match with Jack Shelton, formerly of this city, for 20 rounds on Oct. 25 in Old Mexico, just across the border line at Brownsville, Tex.

The amateur boxing game will be opened for the season on Oct. 24, the South Broadway Athletic Club having been issued a sanction for its tournament on that date by Fred Ward, formerly president of the Columbian Athletic Club, who has succeeded Florence Curran as chairman of the Registration Committee of the Western Division of the Amateur Athletic Union.

The Southern Athletic Club, a new organization with headquarters at 514 Kansas street, has announced that it will stage amateur bouts during the coming winter season.

"Knockout" Brennan, the husky middleweight who appeared here against Marty Rowan and Hughie Ross of Chicago, meets Al McCoy, who won fame by his knockout of George Chip, tomorrow night for 10 rounds before the Queensberry Club of Buffalo, N. Y. This will be the second meeting between the two, they having boxed 10 rounds in New York City, when Brennan is said to have had a shade the better of it.

Avery's 60-Yard Run Gives Penn. a 13--6 Victory

Forward Passing in Evidence When Middies Force Quakers to Limit.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 17.—A fine 60-yard run by "Mike" Avery, who had intercepted a forward pass, gave the University of Pennsylvania football team a victory over the Annapolis midshipmen on Franklin Field today by the score of 13 to 6.

Up to the time Avery placed the ball behind the navy's goal line the midshipmen had fought Pennsylvania hard and it looked as though the contest would go to a 6 to 6 tie.

The game abounded in brilliant runs, spectacular forward passing and good punting.

A forward pass by Blodgett to Overesch netted the navy 35 yards in the first period when Annapolis made its only score, a touchdown. In this period Vreeland kicked a goal from placement for Pennsylvania from the 33-yard line.

The second period was the most spectacular of the four, Pennsylvania evening up the score on a drop kick by Mathews after the Quakers had brought the ball within striking distance on a long forward pass.

Summary:

Pennsylvania (13)	Position.	Annapolis (6)
Hopkins	Left end	Overesch
Russell	Left tackle	Derode
Norwald	Center	Perry
Journeay	Right guard	Hicks
Harris	Right tackle	Kennedy
Urquhart	Right end	Graf
Merrell	Quarterback	Mitchell
Wray	Right half	Failing
Tucker	Fullback	H. Harrison

Score by periods: Pennsylvania, 3 3 0 7—13; Annapolis, 6 0 0 0—6. Referee—Tufts, Brown. Umpire—Murphy, Harvard. Linesman—Sherlock, Harvard. Time of periods—15m each.

Scoring: Pennsylvania—Touchdown, Avery; goal from touchdown, Russell; goal from field, Matthews; goal from placement, Vreeland. Annapolis—Touchdown, Mitchell.

Pogue's Running Features Illini 37 to 0 Victory

Ohio State Eleven No Match for Zuppke's Near-Champions.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 17—Illinois won its second conference game, today, by walking over Ohio State 37 to 0.

The Illini played old-style football the first quarter, but loosened up with a sensational assortment of forward passes in the remaining periods. The booting of Macomber was a feature. Zuppke changed his lineup continually, giving all of his men a chance to show. The Illini goal was never in danger. Pogue starred for Illini and Cherry and Graf for Ohio.

Lineup:

Illinois (37)	Position.	Ohio State (0)
Squier	Left end	Cherry
Armstrong	Left tackle	Snyder
Chapman	Left guard	Kieffer
Watson	Center	Godfrey
Stewart	Right guard	Springer
Petty	Right tackle	Boughton
Graves	Right end	Yassenoff
Clark	Quarterback	Howard
Wagner	Left halfback	Havens
Macomber	Right halfback	Hobt
Schobinger	Fullback	Graft

Summary: Score by quarters — Illinois, 3-10-10-14-37; Ohio, 0-0-0-0-0. Referee, Magdison, Michigan; Umpire, Nichols, Oberlin. Linesman, Schommer, Chicago. Goal from touchdown—Macomber, 4. Scoring for Illinois: Touchdowns—Pogue 3, Derby. Goal from field—Macomber, 3. Substitutes: Illinois, Pogue for Wagner; Marquardt for Squire; Derby for Graves, Rue for Schobinger, Applegrant for Marquardt; Madson for Armstrong; Nelson for Petty; Wagner for Watson. Ohio—Ginn for Yassenoff; Gibson for Havens; Knell for Godfrey.

MISSOURI MISSES 3 OPPORTUNITIES; SOONERS WIN, 13-0

Oklahoma Team, However, Completely Outclassed the Tigers at All Points.

NORMAN, Ok., Oct. 17.—Favored by a broiling sun, which took all the "pep" out of the Missouri eleven, the University of Oklahoma football team scored its second victory in five years here today, over the University of Missouri. The score was 13 to 0, the Sooners registering two touchdowns and kicking one goal after touchdown.

Oklahoma outclassed the Tigers in every department of the game much more than the score indicates, as the team was penalized more than 100 yards for holding and offside plays. The penalties often followed long gains around end or forward passes.

The Oklahomans displayed a brilliant, versatile attack which bewildered the Tigers at times. Long end runs, delayed passes, short-line bucks and forward passes were used with amazing rapidity. Only fair success rewarded the use of the forward pass, about one-third of more than 20 being completed.

Tiger Passes Fail.

Missouri started the game playing old-style football, but could not successfully pierce the Oklahoma line and in the last half resorted to open play. Time after time the forward pass was attempted without success. The Sooners blocked a number of long passes.

Missouri had three chances to score. The first was in the first quarter, when the Tigers secured the ball on Oklahoma's 20-yard line on a fumble after the Sooners had been penalized 15 yards for holding. But the Tigers fumbled and Oklahoma recovered and kicked the ball out of danger.

Missouri's second chance came in the third quarter when a long forward pass, Graves to Shepard, netted 35 yards. With the ball on the Sooner 12-yard line the team stiffened and held the Tigers for downs. Five minutes before time was called in the last quarter, an Oklahoma fumble gave the Tigers the ball on the Sooner 20-yard line. A forward pass, Shepard to La Rue, scored a touchdown, but it was disallowed as La Rue caught the ball outside the 10-yard line behind the goal.

Sooners Score Early.

Oklahoma scored in the first quarter. After a forward pass, Geyer to Montgomery, netted 20 yards, Capshaw advanced the ball five and N. Johnson went 12 yards for a touchdown. Capshaw kicked goal.

The Sooners registered a second time when M. Johnson caught a 16-yard pass from Capshaw and ran 20 yards, crossing the goal line. Capshaw missed the goal.

Capshaw, the Sooners' right half, was the real bright star of the game. Time after time he broke through the Missouri defense or dashed through a broken field for gains of 30 to 40 yards. His defensive work was also on a high order. N. Johnson, left half, and M. Johnson, quarter for Oklahoma, both Chickasaw Indians, played a brilliant game. N. Johnson's tackling was the best seen in the game, he throwing Missouri backs for losses several times. Geyer booted the ball well and the Hott brothers in the line, also Montgomery at end, played a good defensive game.

Lake, at left half for the Tigers, and Shepard, right half, were the only players able to pierce the Oklahoma defense for good gains.

Graves was forced out of the game in the last quarter by an injury to his leg.

Coach Brewer of Missouri, after the game, said his team was handicapped by the heat, but that the best eleven had won. He praised the Oklahoma team highly.

The line-up:

Missouri.	Position.	Oklahoma.
Herndon	Left tackle	Clark (Capt.)
Drumm	Left guard	J. Bell
Lansing	Center	C. Bell
Morgenthaler	Right guard	W. Hott
Clay (Capt.)	Right tackle	O. Hott
Larue	Right end	Montgomery
Collins	Quarterback	M. Johnson
Shepard	Left halfback	N. Johnson
Graves	Right halfback	Capshaw
Dunckel	Fullback	Geyer

Pittsburg Defeats Carlisle.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 17.—The University of Pittsburg continued its winning gait today by defeating the Carlisle Indians, 10 to 3. Pittsburg made the first score with a goal from field in the first period and added seven more points with a touchdown and a goal.

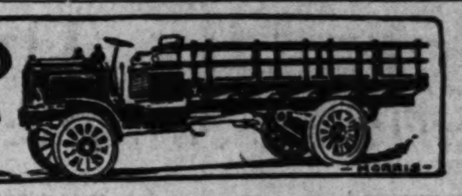
AUTOMOBILE NEWS.



AUTO SHOW RESULTS GIVE OPTIMISTIC TONE

A general feeling of satisfaction is expressed in local automobile circles over the outcome and results from the recent fall automobile show at Forest Park Highlands. It was expected by all who went into the show as exhibitors that the sales would be few and the number of prospects gathered meager, but the contrary was the experience.

A depression in general business conditions led to this belief, the argument being that if men would not spend money for things usually considered necessary to their business they would not invest it in automobiles. The actual sales of motor cars at the show was 472. Of these twelve were trucks or delivery wagons and the others, 460 in all, were gasoline and electric pleasure cars. The electric men were particularly well pleased with the number of sales made, and the dealers in gasoline cars, with very few exceptions, met with excellent success.

The conclusion drawn by men in the trade is that the European war is having no serious effect on the spending capacity or inclination of the people who use automobiles. While they are retrenching in business they are apparently not doing so on their personal expenditures. Hence the number of what the automobile salesmen call "live prospects" was even larger than is gathered at shows in normal times.

According to indications from the show there will be more automobiles sold in the St. Louis trade territory of the 1915 models than in any previous year.

The results, financially, of the show will not be known for several weeks, as the accounting, the collection of outstanding accounts for tickets, etc., and the payment of bills must all be completed before the rebate can be arrived at and announced.

Notable selling at the Automobile Show is reported by the Frey Motor Car Co., which closed contracts with dealers for 100 Paige cars and sold a number at retail.

The Overland Automobile Co. also closed contracts for nearly 200 Overland cars and sold others at retail.

JOY OPTIMISTIC FOR AUTOMOBILE TRADE

Excerpts from the annual report of Henry B. Joy, president of the Packard Motor Car Co., throw interesting light on conditions in the industry at large. A spirit of optimism is in evidence in the opening paragraph:

"It is most gratifying to note that even during the month of August, the first month during which war in Europe was in active operation, our sales of motor carriages to customers were considerably stronger than in the corresponding month a year ago, and it is proper to state that the sales of motor carriages during August, September and up to the date of this report have been about the same as last year, while our commercial vehicle sales are such as to tax our manufacturing capacity to the maximum for several months.

"The future of the motor car industry is gradually, we feel, clearing up for manufacturers. The strenuous development period through which we have been going, has produced in a few years the most rapid crystallization in the motor vehicle industry, probably more rapid than ever occurred in any other mechanical art.

MOTORCYCLISTS RUN TO OZARK MOUNTAINS

The annual endurance contest of the Motorcycle Club of St. Louis was run this season to Arcadia, Mo., and return, 210 miles over the Ozark Mountains. The heavy rains had washed great holes in the roads and had also washed out a bridge so that the riders had to use the railroad bridge and ties for four miles. No serious trouble occurred, but there was much tire trouble on the hard grind and many blow-outs. Of 31 entries, however, 15 finished with creditable scores. The club members say they would like to see an automobile try to follow them on one of their runs, particularly the last one.

MUCH INTEREST SHOWN IN LOW-PRICED CARS

With the exception of a tendency toward conservative buying on the part of automobile purchasers, the European war has affected the automobile trade to a very small extent in the East, according to A. I. Philp, general sales manager for Dodge Brothers. Mr. Philp has just returned from a two weeks' trip to New York, Philadelphia, Boston and other Eastern points and is enthusiastic over prospects for the coming year.

"I found new firms being organized and incorporated for the sale of motor cars in every city visited on my trip," said Mr. Philp, yesterday. "Seemingly the dealers in the East are preparing for a big year, as everyone I talked with had increased his orders materially for 1915 deliveries.

MADE GASOLINE RECORD

In official tests, sanctioned by the American Automobile Association and under the strict supervision of its technical representatives, a Cole four-cylinder stack model, fully equipped and carrying seven pasengers, established a world's fuel-economy record on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. The car showed over 24¼ miles on a single gallon of gasoline. Chief Engineer Charles S. Crawford of the Cole Board of Engineers drove the test.

Besides making this remarkable fuel-economy record, this stock Cole set a new ton-mileage record in the tests by running 53 miles per ton of weight on a gallon of gasoline, which is equivalent to carrying one ton of weight 53 miles on a single gallon of gasoline. Previous to this showing from 38 to 42 ton miles was regarded as an extremely good showing.

In a speed test the same Cole, without any adjustments, showed unprecedented consistency, running a half hour at a fixed speed of 55.6 miles an hour. In 12 laps over the two and one-half mile speedway oval the Cole only wavered slightly in this speed consistency in one lap. This test was conducted with the car carrying its full equipment, and is a world's record of its kind.

BIG INVESTMENT IN OPTIMISM "PAYS OUT"

That one newspaper advertisement can inspire national confidence, bring money into circulation and make work for men's hands and brains to do has been fully proven by the recent campaign of the Studebaker Corporation, declares Vice-President E. R. Benson, in reviewing the results of the recent advertisement, "Opportunity and Optimism," which Studebaker placed in a large list of metropolitan publications all over the country.

This advertisement was unique in that it did not even mention the Studebaker motor car, and alluded in only an incidental way to the corporation itself. Its text was an appeal to patriotism, a review of constructive legislation and an analysis of America's obligation to the world in the present conditions of war in Europe.

"The first response came from the newspapers themselves," said he. "The fact that Studebaker was willing to spend thousands of dollars in doing its share toward a strengthening of national confidence found editors and publishers in hearty accord. Hundreds of them complimented us and, through editorial and news columns, helped us drive home the truths we had emphasized in the advertisement.

Telegrams came from prominent men who agreed with us that the spirit shown in our advertisement will make America to an increasing degree the commercial and industrial ruler of the world.

"Other manufacturers followed, with advertising of a similar order. Retail merchants caught the spirit—talked it and bought space in their local papers to extend their audience.

The advertisement was even reproduced for political purposes.

"In a general way conditions brightened, the list of unemployed grew smaller, money circulated more freely.

"Aside from messages from our friends, we have received many letters from other business optimists who recognize a kindred spirit in Studebaker. So, from a selfish point of view, the advertisement has 'paid out.' But this was a phase that we had not considered in its preparation.

"Incidentally the newspapers of the country have demonstrated their ability once more to carry to the whole American public any message of importance and to carry it more quickly and more effectively than any other medium."

Some of the persons you passed on the street today were going to look at houses, apartments or furnished rooms —with clippings from the Post-Dispatch big House, Home and Real Estate Directory in their pockets or in their hand bags.

WINTER CARE OF TIRES

A letter of advice from the Miller Rubber Co. says: "When storing cars for the winter, we recommend the removal of all Miller tires from rims that are not quick detachable as the first and most necessary precaution against deterioration. After carefully cleaning the tires they should be slightly inflated or just sufficient to retain their shape and should be wrapped in cloth and placed in a dry room with temperature about 50 degrees. The tires should then be kept in a dark place at all times, as the exclusion of the light preserves the tire and toughening ingredients.

"Tubes should be slightly inflated or sufficiently blown up to keep their shape when stored in the same manner as the casing. Light will effect tubes as much as tires, so that a covering should be supplied before permanently laying up. Very often considerable annoyance is experienced by the motorist when he leaves casings and tubes on the car to retain its weight and not be moved for the winter months. The experienced will at once appreciate the necessity of removing both casings and tubes from their machines before laying up."

KANSANS BUY CARS.

One of the most important indications of the large wheat crop, etc., throughout the State of Kansas is pointed out by the fact that the G. A. McPherson Automobile Co. of Sylvia, Kan., King dealers at this point, sold to Mr. Krey of the above-mentioned city four King cars at one time, one of the cars being for Mr. Krey himself, and the other three for each of his three sons. This is the first time that such a feat was ever accomplished in Reno County and shows conclusively that the wonderful crops of the farmers are making them very wealthy and some of the best automobile buyers at the present time.

TIRE HOUSE IN NEW HOME

The Kelly-Springfield Tire Co. is fully installed in its new building at 3221 Locust street. The new home of the company is one of the best equipped tire handling establishments in the country and Manager H. Lee Smith of the local branch states that he is in better position to handle the constantly growing business in Kelly-Springfield tires than ever before since the company has been represented in St. Louis. A complete repair plant with vulcanizing facilities for all classes of work is installed and the stock of sizes is greater than has heretofore been carried here.

"One thing that served as a source of considerable surprise and gratification to me, was the great interest shown by prospective buyers in the new car which Dodge Brothers will bring out for 1915. While I was prepared to find the trade interested, the fact that we have done little or no advertising in that section, had led me to believe that few purchasers were acquainted with Dodge Brothers' plans. Many prospects in the East have informed our dealers that they intend postponing their purchase of an automobile until they have seen Dodge Brothers' new car."

Mr. Philp states that the selling organization for Dodge Brothers in the East is rapidly nearing completion and found dealers and prospects alike eagerly awaiting shipments of the first cars from the factory. It is expected that Dodge Brothers will ship the first car some time in October.

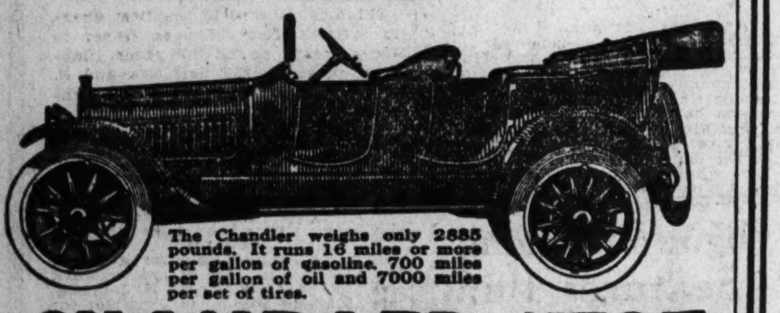
COME SEE THE CHANDLER

And Its Marvelous Motor



The Chandler weighs only 2885 pounds. It runs 16 miles or more per gallon of gasoline. 700 miles per gallon of oil and 7000 miles per set of tires.

CHANDLER $1595

LIGHT-WEIGHT SIX

WE PROMISE not to make you buy. And we don't believe we will have to. Your own judgment will show you in how many ways the Chandler excels. Take the motor, for instance. Our owners all agree that it is this wonderful engine that makes the Chandler so superior to other cars that seem to be in its class.

Chandler couldn't make this powerful and exclusive long-stroke motor any better if the car sold for twice its price. It is the Chandler motor, the fruit of eight years of six-cylinder experience and not a stock motor found on a dozen makes.

And look at its strictly high-class features: Self-contained oiling system with constant lubrication for every working part. (No outside piping.)

Separate unit electric starting and lighting system, with Bosch Magneto ignition. (You don't see the high-priced sixes leaving off the Bosch, but other light sixes are leaving it off. It's expensive, but it gives perfect ignition, so Chandler uses it.) Genuine imported Conventry silent chains for driving cam shaft, pump and generator. (This is modern construction, supplanting noisy gears.) Extra heavy crank shaft perfectly balanced.

There are only a few Chandler features. The car reflects high-priced design throughout. Still the profit-sharing price for 1915 is $1595. There is no other value that approaches it. A bold statement but we are here every day ready to prove it.

The Advantages of Magneto Ignition

THE new Overland is equipped with the finest high tension magneto.

This is entirely independent of the starting and lighting system.

High tension magneto ignition is conceded by the great majority of experts and engineers to be the most efficient. Also it is the most expensive.

All high-priced cars are equipped with a magneto.

Most popular priced cars have no magneto. Only the cheaper and less effective battery ignition is furnished.

Those manufacturers who use the battery ignition do so to cut down their manufacturing costs. They do not furnish a magneto because it is too costly.

A high tension magneto is furnished with the Overland because——it means a faster getaway.

—it means a livelier motor.

—it means more power at all speeds.

—it keeps the motor cool.

—it develops more power due to a hotter spark, which increases its heat as the motor speed increases.

The heat of an Overland spark, by actual test, is ten times greater than the spark of the ordinary battery ignition.

The high tension Overland magneto requires no dry cells.

The absence of a high tension magneto on a car is an indication that the car is not all it should be. Something very important is lacking, consequently there might be many other important things left off, of which you are not aware.

The Overland has every practical and essential improvement.

When you purchase an Overland you get the most stylish, most comfortable, most convenient, most complete and most carefully constructed car for the price in the world.

LIGHTER NEW STYLE CAR GIVES SATISFACTION

In the development and progress of any business or profession there is at first always a great deal of waste and what afterward proves to be unnecessary expense. In this the motor-car industry has differed from no other business, in that the first cars manufactured were very complicated, heavy and greatly over-powered. In consequence, the initial cost was high, as well as the expense of maintenance which followed.

As the industry progressed and real engineers and specialists gave their attention to the development of efficiency motor-car construction, some radical changes took place.

The heavy, cumbersome car, weighing over two tons, is now practically a thing of the past and, fortunately, being produced in small numbers in the early years of the business, they have been gradually relegated to the scrap pile or dismantled, and the various parts sold, so that today very few of these cars are in operation.

The light, efficient four-cylinder car, which the builders claim has proven itself superior to any other make, was not brought forcibly to the mind of the American public until recent speed trials throughout the country.

In the East and some of the larger cities there has been an awakening to the possibilities of this type of chassis for town-car equipment.

The bodies which are mounted on this chassis are just as comfortable as the bodies on the ordinary heavy limousine. The principal change in their construction is the smaller chassis, which, however, accommodates a body holding seven passengers comfortably, and the riding qualities and general comfort and makeup of the car is all that can be desired for this class of work.

The Dorris Motor Car Co. of St. Louis have given particular attention to this type of body for the coming year, as their chassis so well meets the requirements of this class of work, and the new car now on exhibition in its salesroom has won the admiration of all who have seen it.

Their Sales Department reports a very lively interest in this new production and many sales are anticipated to St. Louis owners, besides the usual number to their distributors.

"SEALED BONNET" CAR PASSES THROUGH CITY

The sealed-bonnet Mitchell 1915 Light Four car reached St. Louis about midnight Thursday after a stirring day on the muddy roads of beating rain. The car lost its way at night in the heavy going and was obliged to back-track to Edwardsville after it had reached Alton by mistake.

The car with its crew of three in attendance spent some time at the showrooms of the Weber Implement and Automobile Co., at 1900 Locust street, St. Louis. The bonnet or hood covering the motor was sealed in Chicago Sept. 23 by the Chief of Police, with a lead seal of the American Express Co. The only access to the motor compartment is through an extension of the breather tube, which enables the feeding of lubricating oil into the crankcase. The sides of the car are covered with inscriptions stating the salient facts in the tour. In three spaces the progress of the car is noted in chalk as the tour goes on. In one space the number of miles covered is chalked. This number was 3932 Friday. In another space the number of days the car has been on the road is chalked. Yesterday the number was 15. In the third space the name of the local Mitchell dealers is displayed on a canvas streamer. This streamer Friday carried the legend, "Weber Implement and Automobile Co."

The car left St. Louis for Kansas City, via Mexico and Marshall, at 12:10 o'clock Friday night. The new flight started from Sixth and Pine streets, where the integrity of the seals on the bonnet and the speedometer mileage readings were checked and verified.

FIRST COST UNIMPORTANT

First cost no longer is the prime consideration in the purchase of an automobile. The various cars have automatically grouped themselves and cost of operation is what most interests the hundred of thousands of motor car users today. A low first cost is really a secondary consideration, and the question is now "Can I afford to run it?"

The standard automobile is so well made and so nearly mechanically perfect that repairs cease to be the bugbear of former years, and the main problem which confronts the motorists is the running cost.

With all other items of expense besides the price of gasoline going up, the item of maintenance has become of great interest to the car users. This is all the more natural because of the fact that the gasoline tank, like the taxicab register, makes demands upon the pocketbook with exasperating frequency and regularity. When the first cost has been met the permanent running expense becomes the issue. More relief from this tax is what the automobile owner is clamoring for, and this relief is promised in the 1915 Premier-Weidely developed by the veteran designer, George A. Weidely, to operate economically and efficiently on the fuel of the day.

NEWEST McFARLAN SIX

The latest McFarlan is model 76, a 67-horsepower, six-cylinder car, showing a streamline body design. In order to carry the streamline effect, a cowl is placed around the rear of the front seat. This also furnishes protection for glove and veil box, which is placed directly underneath it.

The auxiliary seats in this model fold entirely out of the way of the rear doors, so that access is easy from either seat. The car is equipped with either McFarlan air starter or Westinghouse electric starter. The wheel base is 122 inches.

The motor is a six-cylinder case en bloc, with a four and one-half inch bore and a six-inch stroke. This is the third year that the McFarlans have built this special job, refining, strengthening and correcting until they are now offering what they assert is a perfect six. The job is fitted with Hartford shock absorbers, Warner speedometer, Klaxon horn, etc. The tire carrier is of a novel design, making it possible to carry one or two extra tires at the owner's pleasure, and still requiring him to release only one buckle to remove either or both tires.

NEW CADILLAC BUILDING WILL SOON BE READY

The Cadillac Automobile Co. of St. Louis is preparing to move into a new location at 3908-10-12-14-16-18 Olive street. This building is being remodeled along the most modern automobile salesroom lines. The new location gives them about 150 feet further frontage on Olive street, all of which will be devoted to a showroom. This will be the largest showroom in the city, in fact, the largest west of Chicago. Besides the showroom and offices on the first floor will be the used car department and quick service station.

The second floor will be devoted to a machine shop and repair department for Cadillac automobiles only. A complete stock of goods for all models of Cadillac cars will be carried in a large stockroom in the front of the second floor. Entrance to stockroom will be through the showroom and office. Arrangements are such that the Cadillac company not only will be able to render the most efficient service, but in addition they will handle the overhauling of Cadillac cars from the ground up. Provisions for painting and upholstery and top work are being made.

It will be remembered that the Cadillac agencies have always been located on Olive street and it is the feeling of Manager McNicoe that the Cadillac car occupies such a place in the minds of the motor buying public, that they have nothing to gain in following the general exodus of a large number of automobile sales agencies to locations further east.

ACCESSORY HOUSE MOVES

The Phoenix Auto Supply Co. has moved into its new home at 3225 Locust street, and under the close watchfulness of John F. Shuford, manager, and Clifford Garrison, secretary of the company, one of the best equipped accessory houses in the west has been fitted up. The company will eliminate a large number of minor lines heretofore carried and will concentrate its selling on the better known of the high-class items. A Bosch station will be maintained and the Miller tire agency will be a feature of the business. The branch house at 5883 Delmar avenue will be continued for West End customers.

RECEIVER FOR MOTOR CO.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 17.—The Premier Motor Car Co., one of the largest automobile manufacturing concerns in Indiana, is today in the hands of the Fletcher Savings and Trust Co. of Indianapolis as receiver.

The action was taken on the petition of the American Foundry Co., which alleges that the Premier concern owes it $1691.75 and is in danger of becoming insolvent.

NEW HUPMOBILE LARGER PRICE REMAINS THE SAME

Taking for their working basis a chassis which for three years has remained unchanged in essentials, the Hupmobile engineers have devoted themselves, in the 1915 product, to refinements that tend to increase the mechanical efficiency of the car and to add greatly to the comfort and ease of the passengers.

The results of their work may be summed up in the statement that the 1915 Hupmobile is a bigger car, has more power, carries five passengers with more comfort, presents satisfying evidence of painstaking attention to detail, and a real wealth of equipment.

The wheelbase of the new Hupmobile is 119 inches long, the result being two inches more leg room in the front compartment and seven inches in the tonneau. Upholstery is full-tufted and the wider seats have the same comfortable tilt that has characterized Hup cars for three years.

Wheels are larger, tires being 34x4 inches, with non-skid treads regular equipment for the rear wheels. Other regular equipment includes a Hup design of one-man top; new style top cover that conceals the bows when the top is laid back; rain-vision windshield, with lower half adjustable for ventilation of the front compartment; special design headlights, with one bulb which can be dimmed at will and special glass front, with the upper half corrugated to kill the reflector glare; special design tail light; electric horn, demountable rims, spare rim and carrier at the rear, license plate holders at front and rear, robe and foot rails in tonneau.

An increase in power is gained through larger valves, an increase in the bore and a different shape combustion chamber.

The gasoline tank is increased in capacity to 16 gallons, with the filler cap under the hood to avoid a break in the smooth lines that sweep back from the new shape radiator to the windshield. The cowl board carries, in the center, the lighting and ignition switches and the speedometer, which are illuminated at night by a small hooded electric light. The switches are controlled by Yale locks. Crowned fenders, without beading and with flat edge, add their part to the beauty of the new car's design.

The motor is made non-stallable through being connected at all times by a silent chain with the Westinghouse combined generator and starting motor, the single unit system having replaced the dual unit used for 1914.

Body sides are higher and the doors are wider, having the handles inside and flush with the door upholstery.

Studebaker

September Sales Established the Supremacy of the Studebaker SIX.

We have already pointed out that September was the biggest month in the history of the Studebaker Corporation:

That September Studebaker sales were $4,277,797.92:

That from Atlanta to Minneapolis, from Los Angeles to New York, the length and breadth of the country, the sale of Studebaker cars for September, compared to September, 1913, showed a total average gain of 232 per cent.

This, we believe, demonstrates that the American people still have the confidence to invest, the judgment to invest, and the money to invest in a product that is staple, and a company that is standard and substantial.

It was impressive proof of the confidence of our fellow-Americans in the Studebaker Corporation, as well as in themselves.

Such sales, such national recognition, such prosperity, have proclaimed with particular emphasis—

The supreme position of the Studebaker "SIX".

It means that the Studebaker "SIX" is accepted as the product of Studebaker character, 62 years in the building.

And the American people themselves have helped build Studebaker character by endorsing and rewarding it.

The "SIX" is but a feature of the great line of Studebaker cars for 1915.

And yet, we believe, more Studebaker "SIXES" were sold in September than any other six-cylinder car in the entire motor car market.

The splendid Studebaker "SIX" with its maximum of roominess, elegance, distinction and sterling motor car worth, with the excellence of Studebaker manufacturing methods and Studebaker character built into it, at a price—$1385—possible to the Studebaker Corporation only, has been accepted once again by the American people as a standard and unquestionable motor car investment.

And back of the perfect Studebaker "SIX", too, is the asset and guarantee of "Studebaker Service"—the assurance that with every Studebaker car goes, not merely a motor, but motoring.

Studebaker Service as well as Studebaker Value is an integral part and product of Studebaker Character.

And the American Nation has already proclaimed the supreme value of that.

BOUGHT THE BRIDAL CAR

The Allen 40 "bridal car," which was exhibited at the automobile show last week, has been sold to George Corrao, president of the W. A. Corrao Electrical Co. This is Mr. Corrao's third Allen car and it took a conspicuous part in the parade to Sunset Inn, where the members of the Jovian Order were entertained Wednesday last.

This car has been specially finished and trimmed in Spanish leather and the painting was a mole color, with a heavy black stripe and a gold leaf blend. It attracted a great deal of attention at the automobile show. A duplicate of this car, which is to be delivered as a Christmas present, has been sold by the Mound City Buggy Co.

GOODYEAR ALL-WEATHER TREAD

This Sturdy Tire
Protects Hundreds of Thousands Now

Bear that in mind when you suffer avoidable troubles. Some 400,000 men—or more—find their protection in Goodyear tires.

Men have tried out more than four million Goodyears, under all conditions. And these tires—by their proved supremacy—by their matchless quality, forever maintained—have come to outsell any other.

Needless Troubles

Rim-cuts are utterly needless. No-Rim-Cut tires prohibit them by a method which we control.

Blow-outs—those countless blow-outs due to wrinkled fabric—are avoided by our exclusive "On-Air" cure. It costs us $1500 daily.

Loose treads are combated—reduced 60 per cent—by the large rubber rivets we alone create.

Punctures and skidding are best met by our double-thick All-Weather tread.

Men Must Yield

Men who want safety, sturdiness, freedom from troubles must yield to these inducements.

Goodyears are more than mere quality tires. We directly combat—in exclusive ways—the four chief causes of tire ruin. In the four ways cited we save millions of needless stops.

Facts known to so many will sometime be proved to you. Sometime you will test these superlative tires, then adopt them.

Now—when winter is coming—get them with All-Weather treads. You never saw an anti-skid so sharp, so tough, so enduring, so resistless.

MAN BEATS, KILLS HORSE; 4 WOMEN CAUSE HIS ARREST

Neighbors Say Contractor Shot Animal 7 Times Because It Couldn't Pull Load.

TRIAL SET FOR MONDAY

Owner Admits Using Revolver, but Denies That He Wielded Heavy Plank.

Four women caused the arrest yesterday of Fidel Saum, a plastering contractor, of 5125 Dresden avenue, after they had seen him beat his horse, first with a whip and then with a board, and then kill the animal by shooting it seven times.

More than a score of neighbors, who witnessed the affair, said the horse was killed because of its inability to pull a light wagon through an unmade alley which leads to Saum's home.

Several women were afraid to protest against Saum's conduct because of his rage. They said he fired seven bullets into the horse's body, neck and head before he killed it.

Mrs. Gertrude Brown of 5161 Dresden avenue, notified the police and Saum was charged with cruelty to animals and discharging firearms. Mrs. Brown, Mrs. E. A. Hudson, Mrs. A. Weber and Mrs. W. H. Milham told the police they would appear in police court tomorrow as witnesses.

Owner Said to Have Been Enraged.

Mrs. Brown said the horse was thin and appeared to be sick, and could not pull the wagon through the mud. Saum, she said, became enraged, beat it with a whip and then used the sharp edge of a 2x10 board. The horse, she said, became almost exhausted from the beating.

Saum, she said, went to his home and got a revolver which he emptied into the horse. He then called his 10-year-old daughter, Mary, and sent her home for more bullets. She brought another round of ammunition and Saum killed the horse with the seventh bullet by shooting it in the head.

Mrs. Brown said a neighbor told her the horse, which had been unhitched by Saum, was eating grass when Saum fired the last bullet.

Saum told a Post-Dispatch reporter, after his release on bond, that the horse was lazy and stubborn and would not pull the wagon, which contained two bales of hay, one bale of straw, one sack of grain and one sack of flour.

Denies Using Heavy Plank.

He admitted beating the horse with the whip, but said the board he beat it with was a small, light plank. He said he killed the horse because it was no good.

The horse had been sick during the summer. Saum said he fed it three big buckets of oats every day. Last Monday, he said, the horse became balky at Dresden and Gravois avenues, two blocks from his home, and would not budge for more than 15 minutes.

Saum stated that before last Monday he had not worked the horse for seven weeks. He said he tried yesterday afternoon for more than half an hour to get the horse to the barn, in the rear of his home, before he killed it.

His trial will be tomorrow before Judge Hogan in Municipal Police Court.

SECRETARY DANIELS TO CAMPAIGN IN MISSOURI

Will Spend This Week in East and Then Come to Middle West.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Secretary Daniels expects to resume his campaign work next week, leaving Washington Tuesday to speak in the Bronx, New York City. Wednesday he will speak in Stamford, Conn., Thursday in Hartford and Saturday in Portsmouth, N. H. His Northern tour will end at Elizabeth, N. J., next Sunday.

The following week Secretary Daniels will campaign in the Middle West, beginning in Missouri. The dates and places of his addresses have not yet been fixed.

Victor Talking Machine Co. Answers the Buy-a-Bale Plea.

The Victor Talking Machine Co. announces that it has just authorized every dealer it has throughout the cotton belt of the South to buy a bale of cotton at 10 cents a pound and ship it direct to the company's headquarters at Camden, N. J., with sight draft attached to the bill of lading.

Louis F. Geissler, general manager of the Victor Co., says that the move was made by the company to help the people in the cotton belt in the present emergency. He also stated that the company had taken more than $75,000 worth of cotton by the plan outlined. This is said to be one of the largest single subscriptions to the buy-a-bale plea that came from the South and has swept over the country.

Auto Truck Street Car and Milk Wagon Come Together.

Arthur Hussman of 1517 North Seventeenth street, and Albert Schwartz of 2864 South Eighteenth street, were thrown to the street and bruised yesterday afternoon when an auto truck of the Columbia Brewing Co., in which they were riding, collided with an eastbound Hodiamont car at Twentieth and Wash streets.

The auto truck rebounded from the car and knocked Benjamin Breslaine of 2912 North Seventeenth street, from a milk wagon. Breslaine was also bruised.

GOV. MAJOR PAROLES SEVEN MORE CONVICTS

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 17.—Gov. Major today paroled seven convicts, one of whom was Dave Creely, convicted in the St. Louis Circuit Court of receiving stolen goods, and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary. Creely's parole was recommended by State Senator Mike Kinney and William J. (Boots) Brennan, a member of the House of Delegates. He was paroled to T. J. Finan, 4038 Easton avenue.

Others paroled were: William Summer, under sentence of two years for grand larceny from Texas County; Arch Harper, serving two years for grand larceny in Pulaski County; John Mansfield, sentenced to four years for felonious assault in Pettis County; Pat Patterson, under sentence for obtaining money on a bogus check in Greene County; William Mittner, serving three years for manslaughter in St. Francois County, and Grover Shaffer, under sentence of two years for grand larceny in Clark County.

WEALTHY INDIAN HERE TO STUDY AVIATION

Oklahoman With Income of $800 a Month Hopes to Join U. S. Army Air Corps.

George Longbone of Bartlesville, Ok., a full-blood Delaware Indian, has come to St. Louis to study aviation. He is 21 years old and says he has an income of $800 a month from Oklahoma oil lands which he owns.

When he has qualified as an aeroplane operator, he says, he will endeavor to have himself attached to the United States army aviation corps.

Longbone is stopping at the Jefferson Hotel. He says one purpose in making known his identity and intentions in visiting St. Louis is to prevent persons from mistaking him for a Mexican. His broad-brimmed hat and swarthy skin frequently cause this mistake to be made.

FULTON, Mo., Oct. 17.—Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Dollard of this city celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary today. Both were born in Kentucky, but moved to Missouri at an early age and were married in Callaway County, where they have lived since. Pollard formerly was a merchant.

BOY, PLAYING TAG ON A ROOF, FALLS 60 FEET TO DEATH

While playing a game of tag on the roof and scaffolding of an unfinished theater at Grand and Florissant avenues, yesterday afternoon, Fred Elliott, 14 years old, of 4310 Gano avenue, fell 60 feet, turning a back somersault in the air, struck upon a concrete foundation and bounded into a ditch containing three feet of water. His skull and spine were fractured. He was dead when taken from the ditch.

Supporting the roof at one corner was a wooden framework with crosspieces, in which a concrete pillar was to be molded. Elliott was clinging with his hands to the topmost rung and resting his feet on one lower down. Hanging just below him was a playmate, Homer Schaffner, of 3377 Lee avenue. On the roof above were Frank Istok, 4254 Gano avenue, and another boy whose name the police did not learn. The last, leaning down over the roof, was trying to reach Elliott so as to tag him.

Leaning back as far as he could to avoid being tagged, Elliott lost his hold. As he fell he tried to save himself by throwing his legs around Schaffner's neck, but failed to catch a grip.

His comrades hastened to the ground crying for help. A dozen men ran up, but, according to the boys, they refused to descend into the five-foot ditch to rescue Elliott's body. Schaffner ran to the street corner and found Joseph Herdenfelder of 907 Bates street, who finally lifted the body from the ditch.

No work has been done on the theater for six months. The boys said they never saw a watchman about the place and had played on the scaffolding many times without interference.

CRIME INVESTIGATORS IN CHICAGO THREATENED

One Anonymous Letter Signed "A. Con" Says He Is Tired of Splitting With Police.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Chairman Merriam of the Crime Commission received several anonymous letters today warning him that criminals planned to kill the investigators of the commission if that body further pursued its inquiry into the alleged relations of the police and thieves. One letter signed "A Mother" said a meeting was held at her home recently, in which plans to kill the commission's detectives were decided upon. "I can do no more than tell them to be careful nights," the letter concluded.

Another letter signed "A Con." read in part: "It costs me and everyone else of our crowd $6 to $10 for bondsmen, $10 to $25 to the police officer and $25 to lawyers, all according to circumstances, whenever we are caught. We even have to give the lockup keeper in the station $2 to get a lawyer for us. I am getting tired of stealing to give to them."

Merriam said the receipt of the letters would have no effect on the investigation.

Still Destroyed, Operators Escape.

GAFFNEY, S. C., Oct. 17.—A large still near King's Creek was destroyed by revenue officers and three men who were working in it escaped. The officers destroyed 500 gallons of beer and a large quantity of mash and malt. It is claimed by the officers that the men are known and will be captured.

Trusses Like These Are A Crime

Such Makeshifts Have Forced Thousands Into Risking Dangerous Operations.

Wearing elastic and spring trusses year after year is almost sure to shorten your life.

You can't make them hold, even when drawn so tight you can scarcely stand to keep them on.

They usually let you get worse all the time—that's why every year they are forcing thousands of people into undergoing operation.

They are simply a crime—squeeze the rupture, often causing strangulation—dig into the pelvic bone in front—press against the spinal column at the back—make life miserable for nearly everybody who wears them.

The Plain Truth Is This

You can't possibly get well—can't even keep from getting worse—unless your rupture is constantly held in place. Just as a broken bone can't knit unless held securely together.

And just as a bandage or splint is the only way a broken bone can be held, so the right kind of truss is the only thing in the world that can keep a rupture from coming out and growing worse.

You'll feel like a new person from the day you put on that kind of truss.

But you know as well as we that you'll never find such a sure-to-hold truss at any drug store.

Yet it's easy enough to get. And you can test it first—by sixty days' trial—without having to risk a single cent.

It's the famous Cluthe Truss or Cluthe Automatic Massager—absolutely guaranteed to hold, and won't cost you a cent if it doesn't.

It's so utterly different from everything else for rupture that it has received eighteen separate patents.

Made on an entirely new principle. Instantly and automatically protects you against every strain so your rupture can't possibly be forced out. Self-regulating, self-adjusting. Far more than just a truss.

In addition to constant holding, it provides the only way ever discovered for overcoming the weakness which is the real cause of rupture.

Just how it does that—entirely automatically—and how it has thus completely cured hundreds and hundreds of people whose cases seemed almost hopeless—is all explained in the free book which the coupon below will bring you.

No Belt—No Leg-Straps—No Springs

The Cluthe Truss does away with the curse of belts, leg-straps and springs. Thousands say it is as comfortable as their clothing. It is waterproof—will hold in the bath. Also perspiration-proof and easily kept clean.

Make This 60-Day Test—
You Won't Have To Risk a Penny

We don't ask you to trust to a mere try-on, the way you have to do at a drug store.

We'll make a Cluthe Automatic Massaging Truss especially for your case—make it to your measure—and let you try it sixty days—

We'll practically lend it to you that long just for a test.

If it doesn't keep your rupture from coming out or bothering you in any way, no matter how hard you work or strain—if it doesn't prove every claim we make—then you can send it back and it won't cost you a penny.

Free Book Full of Facts
Never Before Put in Print

Don't keep on letting yourself get worse—don't spend a cent on account of your rupture until you get our free book of advice.

This remarkable book—cloth-bound, 96 pages—sums up all we have learned about rupture during forty years of experience. You'll find it full of facts never before put in print.

It shows just why elastic and spring trusses cause so much misery and such a shameful waste of money that the law should stop their sale.

It explains why operation is nearly always a needless gamble with death—and why, if you do manage to live through it you may have to keep on wearing a truss.

It exposes the humbug "appliances," "methods," "plasters," etc.

It shows why sixty days' trial is the only safe way to buy anything for rupture—and how the Cluthe Truss is the only thing of any kind that you can get on such a long trial because the only thing good enough to stand such a thorough day-after-day test.

And it tells all about this famous Automatic Massaging Truss—how simple it is—how it ends constant expense—how it has saved thousands from operation—how you can get it on trial, and how little it costs if you keep it.

Also gives voluntary endorsements from over 5000 benefited and cured people.

Write for this book today—don't put it off—the minute it takes to send for it may free you from trouble for the rest of your life.

Simply use the coupon or just say in a letter or postal "Send me your book."

VIRGINIA TO SUE FOR MRS. WASHINGTON WILL

Gov. Stewart Instructs Attorney-General to Bring Action Against J. P. Morgan.

RISHMOND, Va., Oct. 17.—J. G. Pollard, Attorney-General of Virginia made public today instructions from Gov. Stuart to bring suit in the Federal Courts against J. P. Morgan of New York for restitution of the will of Mrs. Martha Washington to the public records of Fairfax County, whence it was removed while Fairfax Courthouse was occupied by United States troops in the Civil War.

This action follows correspondence between Gov. Stuart and Mr. Morgan in which the Governor, as directed by the Legislature, sought to persuade the present holder of the famous will to return the document of his own accord.

MAN WHO KILLED BOER WAR VETERAN IS FREED

Prosecutor Learns Daniel De Villier Had Planned to Slay Roy L. Glover.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 17.—Roy L. Glover of San Antonio, Tex., was freed today of the charge of having murdered Daniel de Villiers, a former Boer army officer, who was shot and killed in Glover's residence here last December during a quarrel over Mrs. Glover, who had been De Villiers' wife.

The charge was dismissed as a result of an investigation which Arthur Keetch, Assistant District Attorney, declared had disclosed conclusive evidence that De Villiers had come here to take the life of Glover. The evidence was obtained by Mrs. Glover, who is a member of a prominent New Jersey family.

Immediately after his release from jail Glover took his wife on a trip to Mexico.

OYSTERS HIT BY WAR

SAYVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Jacob Ockers, the largest American shipper of blue point oysters, today laid off four dredging steamers and crews, due to the war.

Such a depression in the middle of fall as exists today was never known in the history of bluepoints. Several hundred thousand marketable oysters must lay on the bay bottom till spring.

ROBERT A. TAFT AND MISS BOWERS MARRIED

Former President and Wife Attend Son's Wedding in Washington Church.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Robert A. Taft, son of former President and Mrs. William H. Taft, and Miss Martha A. Bowers, daughter of the late Lloyd W. Bowers, who was Solicitor-General during a part of the Taft administration, took place here at noon today at the St. John's Episcopal Church, the Rev. Roland Cotton Smith officiating.

The romance started in the Taft administration when Miss Bowers and Miss Helen Taft were close friends.

Among the floral gifts were American beauty roses sent to the Taft rooms at their hotel, by President Wilson, with greeting to Mrs. Taft.

The ceremony was witnessed by many persons prominent in the official and social life of the capital. A wedding breakfast at the home of Mrs. Bowers followed.

The former President and Mrs. Taft, with several other members of the family, accompanied young Taft to Washington. Before the wedding Mr. Taft walked through the business section where he was frequently halted by friends.

ITALIAN MINISTER WHEN DYING BLESSED BY POPE

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The Chronicle correspondent, cabling from Milan says:

"For the first time since the fall of the Vatican's temporal power, a Pope has sent special papal blessing to an Italian Minister of State in his dying moments. The Rev. Prof. Clemanti, a cultured priest of the Liberal Catholic School of Thought, was delegated by the Vatican to perform the last solemn rites of the church at the Marquis San Giuliano's deathbed.

DR. SHAW SAYS VOTE WOULD HAVE PRECLUDED WAR

Eminent Suffrage Leader Guest of Honor at Artists' Guild Dinner.

Dr. Anna Shaw of New York, leader of the equal suffrage movement in America, at a dinner given in her honor last night at the Artists' Guild, declared there would have been no war in Europe if the men and women on the Continent had been permitted to vote yes or no on the question.

Asked what would be the outcome of the saloon question if women over the world were given the vote, Dr. Shaw said she thought that if both men and women voted it would ultimately mean the divorce of the saloon and politics.

Speaking of the ancient argument, advanced against suffrage that women were not able to attend to business, she said:

"In New York City I am on a board which provides pure milk for children of the slums during the hot summer months. In summer I attend hundreds of tango teas, sachet parties and other feminine affairs, just in order to get enough money to keep that going. And it's work, too."

Says Men Rob Women of Sphere.

When someone present spoke jestingly of women leaving their sphere, Dr. Shaw replied that men weer taking their sphere away from them, and they couldn't help it.

"Why, we have men bakers, men cooks and even men laundrymen," she replied. "Only the other day I went into a laundry, and while the male washerwoman was getting my laundry I saw a picture on the wall of a group of several hundred men, labeled 'The Laundrymen's Association.' Now, whoever heard of a washerwoman's association? However, if men want to enter our sphere they are welcome. I will even help them out to the extent of lending them my washtub."

Dr. Shaw was entertained at a luncheon at noon given by the City Club to the Town Club, a woman's organization of 200 members. In the afternoon she visited Shaw's Gardens. She will speak at 11 o'clock this morning in the First Christian Church, 3126 Locust street. Some time in the afternoon, or tomorrow morning, she will leave for points west on her "vote-getting" expedition.

Bale of Cotton Used for Platform.

Mrs. Alice Curtice Moyer, secretary of the St. Louis Equal Suffrage League, spoke last night in the interest of the campaign at Easton and Irving avenues. She used as a speakers' platform the bale of cotton purchased by the league, which was transported to Wellston so the children there might see a real bale of cotton.

Jane Addams, head of Hull House, Chicago, will speak in behalf of the suffrage amendment next Friday night at the Soldan High School.

EARTHQUAKE WRECKS HOUSES IN GREECE

Shocks Felt at Athens and Many People Are Hurt in Provinces.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Athens says that at 8 o'clock this morning and again at noon, there were continuous seismic shocks in the Grecian provinces of Attica and Boeotia and Peloponnesus. At Thebes hundreds of cottages were overthrown and numerous persons injured. The shocks were continuing and have been felt in Athens.

According to the advices reaching here M. Bepoulis, the Greek Minister of the Interior, left Athens at noon today to visit the places where the earthquakes caused the most serious damage.

At Chalcis the damage is reported to be serious, while at Thebes many of the inhabitants have fled to the fields, where they remain without shelter. At Athens cracks have appeared in the walls of many houses.

VIAL OF TYPHOID GERMS BREAKS; STUDENT DIES

Arkansas Youth Contracts Fever After Experiments at the Missouri University.

FORT SMITH, Ark., Oct. 17.—Wallace Morrison, 18 years old, son of H. C. Morrison, principal of the Fort Smith High School, died here today of typhoid fever contracted while a student at the University of Missouri.

Morrison was experimenting with typhoid germs and carried a bottle of them in his pocket. The bottle was broken accidentally and a few days later he was taken ill.

Newly Consolidated Drug Stores Close First Feature Sales Week.

In winding up the first feature sales week of the Johnson-Enderle-Pauley Drug Co., at the store, Seventh and St. Charles streets, yesterday, nearly all of the last of the 10,000 toy balloons that were advertised to be given away to children, were carried off all blown up, by men. The firm had kept a large number of these balloons flat, so that fathers, with children at home, might carry them away conveniently, but the fathers and other grown-ups insisted upon having the flat balloons inflated before taking them away.

The new concern is a consolidation of five stores—the A. W. Pauley store, Grand avenue and Hebert street; Johnson Bros., Seventh and St. Charles, and the three stores of the Enderlee Drug Co., Sixth and Chestnut, Broadway and Market and Eighth and Pine.

Fire Damages Chemical Store.

A fire, starting on a balcony in the Eli Lilly Pharmaceutical Chemistry Co., 11 South Fourth street, at 11:15 last night, damaged the stock and building. Dense smoke and fumes from broken bottles of medicine hampered the fireman slightly. The loss was estimated by firemen at about $[illegible].

ST. LOUIS ZOO NEARLY LOSES A FINE LIONESS

Andrew Baur's Gift Arrives After Side-Trip Caused by Express Messenger's Error.

The carelessness of a railroad express messenger came near depriving St. Louis of an African lioness, the gift of Andrew Baur, a member of the St. Louis Zoological Society.

The lioness was due to arrive in St. Louis at 1:30 a. m. yesterday, but did not reach the city until 6:30 p. m., because it had accidentally been started for Louisville, Ky.

When the lioness, crated, reached South Bend, Ind., on a B. & O. train Thursday night, the messenger thought it was billed to Louisville with other express in the car. He ordered the lioness transferred to the Louisville train.

The mistake was not discovered by the messenger on the Louisville train until he was an hour and a half out of South Bend. The train was stopped and the lioness was shipped back to South Bend, and then here.

The lioness was immediately taken to the zoo in Forest Park and placed in the cage with the other lions. She lost no time in making friends with the other animals. A name probably will be bestowed on the animal this week.

IOWA AVIATOR BREAKS U. S. ENDURANCE RECORD

In Home-Made Monoplane W. C. Robinson Flies 365 Miles in 4:44 Hours.

DES MOINES, Io., Oct. 17.—W. C. Robinson, flying in a monoplane built by himself, today flew from here to Kentland, Ind., 365 miles, in 4 hours 44 minutes, breaking the American record for a continuous flight.

Near Chicago Robinson ran into a storm that compelled him to change the course he had mapped out.

Robinson lives at Grinnell, Io.

The previous American record for continuous flight was 264 miles, made by E. Murwin Wood, Aug. 9, 1913.

When Robinson left here at 10:56 this morning he intended Chicago to be his destination.

Effective Oct. 18, L. & N. train 51 will depart from Union Station at 8:25 a. m.

GEN. URIBE-URIBE ASSASSINATED AT BOGOTA WITH AX

BOGOTA, Colombia, Oct. 17.—Gen. Rafael Uribe-Uribe, member of the Colombian Senate and chief of the Liberal party, who was attacked by two men Thursday afternoon while on his way to the Senate, died yesterday. Wounds inflicted upon his head and neck with an ax proved fatal.

The assassins, both of whom are members of the Liberal Republican Workmen's Club, were arrested. The motive for their attack is not known.

Gen. Uribe-Uribe had for years played a leading part in the affairs of his country. He had represented Colombia as Minister to Brazil, Chile and Argentine. He was a delegate to the Pan-American Congress of American Republics which met in Rio Janeiro.

During the uprising against the Marroquin Government Gen. Uribe-Uribe was a leader of the insurrectionists. Recently he figured as one of the Advisory Committee that signed the treaty between the United States and Colombia designed to settle the Panama controversy.

BURGOYNE SMOKER GIVEN

The 137th anniversary of the surrender of Gen. Burgoyne in the Revolutionary War was commemorated at a smoker at the Washington Hotel last night by the Society of Colonial Wars. George T. Parker, a member of the Business Men's League party that recently toured South America, gave an illustrated lecture.

Henry P. Wyman read a poem on the surrender of Burgoyne. Dr. H. N. Spencer, governor of the society, closed the meeting with an announcement of a banquet to be given at the Washington Hotel Nov. 24.

MAN FALLS DEAD AT A MEETING OF KNIGHTS TEMPLAR

Henry Clay Thompson, 68, Was Victim of Apoplexy, Physician Says.

Henry Clay Thompson, 68 years old a salesman, of 5932A Bartmer avenue, fell dead last night while attending a lodge meeting of Askalon Commandery, Knights Templar, at the Odeon. He had been a member of the order for many years.

A physician who was summoned said the cause of death was apoplexy.

Lodge members telephoned to Thompson's son, Henry Clay Thompson Jr., who lives at the Bartmer avenue address. He hastened to the hall and arranged for the removal of his father's body to an undertaker's. The elder Thompson was employed by Butler Brothers, Eighteenth and Olive streets.

MAN DIES FROM CUTS

Walked Streets Waiting for End After Inflicting Wounds.

Fred P. Haines, 55 years old, a foreman for the Mound City Ice and Cold Storage Co., who slashed his throat and wrists with a razor Thursday morning in Forest Park and then calmly walked about the streets waiting for death, died at the city hospital at noon yesterday.

Haines was found at Delmar boulevard and De Baliviere avenue at 7 p. m. Thursday, after he had fallen to the sidewalk from loss of blood. He had been despondent over ill health. He is survived by a son, F. A. Haines, secretary-treasurer of the Haines-Smith High-Grade Automobile Supply Co., New York City. He lived at the West End Hotel.

OLD SAILOR AIDS HARRIMAN AFTER DOCTORS GIVE UP

Daughter Induces Mother to Let Man Try and Millionaire Is Improving.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—J. Borden Harriman, once a millionaire, and the husband of the better known woman sociologist, was thought to be dying a week ago of some stomach trouble. He had visited various cures in Europe and had the benefit of the best experts in New York. They announced his condition hopeless and the New York newspapers reported he would not live through the day.

More than a dozen persons with cure-all remedies went to his Mount Kisco home and were turned away. One old fellow with the markings of a weather-beaten sea-rover was the last to arrive. A servant dismissed him, but he begged hard to see Mrs. Harriman. When she came to the door he blurted out: "You know me, though you have not seen me for 30 years. I was a sailor on your father's yacht long before you were married. I have come to cure your husband."

Mrs. Harriman did not know whether she had a crank on her hands, but he gave so many details of her father's yacht and the days spent on it that she almost became convinced that she recognized the old man. But she would not listen to his boast that he could cure her husband.

Miss Ethel Harriman, the 16-year-old daughter, grabbing at any straw, demanded that he be permitted to enter the sick room, despite family nurses and doctors. Not until the next day did she win out, and the old man was taken to the bedside. Mrs. Harriman will not say what the old man did, will not give his name or discuss his treatment, but tonight she confirmed his presence in the house, and Miss Ethel proudly presented the opinion of the experts and nurses in charge that for three days her father has been improving and that there is every reason to believe he will recover permanently.

Mrs. Harriman freely admitted all that had been said, but remarked:

"But I do not want you to take credit from the two regular physicians, because they have worked hard for Mr. Harriman. Really every one has done everything that could be done—nurses, doctors and this old sailor."

She readily admitted that had it not been for her daughter the old man could not have entered the sick room.

"I permitted it," she said, "to please her."

INSURANCE COMPANIES INVEST LITTLE IN WEST

Commissioners Would Have More of Premiums Paid in Missouri Loaned in State.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 17.—Insurance Commissioner Chas. G. Revelle announced today that an examination of the records in his office disclosed that the big life insurance companies with headquarters in eastern states are curtailing, if not entirely discontinuing, their loans on farm and city property in central and western states.

Revelle said as soon as he could formulate a plan of action he would take steps to compel the insurance companies to handle Missouri loans with a fair proportion of the funds collected from the State in premiums.

"During the year 1913 the people of this State paid to stock and mutual life insurance companies the sum of $21,697,929.19 in premiums, and of this amount only $1,641,335.09 was collected by Misouri insurance companies. If the equitable portion of the reserve on these premiums were invested in Missouri it would materially aid industrial and financial conditions. While I do not advocate a statute requiring this or fixing the proportion which such companies shall invest in Misouri, yet I believe that such companies should voluntarily invest, and it is my intention to use adequate means to bring this about.

VIOLA LOEBIG ELECTED QUEEN OF STREET FAIR

Miss Viola Loebig was elected queen of the nineteenth annual street fair and carnival of the South Broadway Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association by the voting which closed at 8 o'clock last night. She was crowned in front of the association headquarters at 1810 South Broadway by Ben Westhus, president of the association, at 10 p. m. She is the daughter of Mrs. Theresa Loebig of 1832 South Broadway.

The crowning ceremony was preceded by an automobile parade escorting the queen along that part of South Broadway participating in the fair, which was from 1200 to 2800 South Broadway. The maids of honor were Miss Deborah Bearman of 1716 South Broadway and Miss Mamie Zwarts of 1807 South Broadway, who won second and third places, respectively. Miss Loebig was given a diamond ring, Miss Bearman a gold watch and Miss Zwarts a diamond la valliere.

The street fair and carnival began Oct. 3 and was to have closed last night, but on account of the rainy weather of last week the committee decided to continue it this afternoon and tonight.

PARKWAY PLANS SHOW MANY SITES FOR BUSCH HOTEL

Vacant Block at Chestnut and Eighteenth Is Considered Best by Some, While Others Are Available at Twelfth and Thirteenth Streets.

HOTEL PROJECT MAKES INVESTORS GET BUSY

Many Purchases Have Been Made of Property in the Vicinity of Twelfth and Chestnut — Realty Man Favors Assessment of Whole City for Parkway.

A survey shows that there is no dearth of sites along the proposed Parkway available for the projected Adolphus Hotel, which apparently still is a possibility.

The square bounded by Chestnut, Seventeenth, Eighteenth and Pine streets, owned by the Eighteenth Street Realty Co. of which Isaac H. Lionberger is president, is the most frequently mentioned as eligible for this monumental improvement. The site is vacant and is waiting for an improvement of this character.

This block will command both the plaza and Union Station and will constitute one of the most attractive sites along the proposed boulevard or parkway for the hotel improvement.

Several times it has been considered for a site for large improvements, including a hippodrome and a grand opera house. Thomas Wright, vice-president of the Third National Bank, a prime authority on real estate values and locations, especially in downtown St. Louis, was enthusiastic about the Lionberger block as a site for the Coliseum.

Property Is Held at $400,000.

As the block is unproductive, it is understood that it can be had at an advantageous price. The last quotation on it was $400,000, which is relatively cheap for property in this location.

The advertising advantages of the Lionberger block are obvious. The hotel at this location would be the first thing revealed to visitors entering the city by way of Union Station.

Incidentally, John H. Gundlach of the City Plan Commission, and the dominant spirit in the Civic Improvement movement, declares that the boulevard will be a center for hotels, theaters and for smart shops as well as for high-class business buildings.

Another site available for the Busch Memorial is that embracing the northeast corner of Thirteenth and Chestnut streets, and the northwest corner of Twelfth and Chestnut streets, each embracing a quarter of a block. The two corners would form a half block facing the city hall and Municipal Courts building, and would offer a superb site for an improvement of this character.

Moser Bought 15 Years Ago.

Other sites under consideration by Busch are the half block on the east side of Twelfth street from Chestnut to Market streets, and the southeast corner of Twelfth and Market streets.

The southeast corner of Twelfth and Chestnut streets is owned by Leo Moser. The site was purchased by him about 15 years ago, with elaborate hotel plans. A structure of this order doubtless now will be erected, if the parkway plan wins.

Predicated upon the Bush hotel plans, several substantial purchases have been made in the vicinity of Twelfth and Chestnut street. Among these was that of the northwest corner of Twelfth and Chestnut streets, which was acquired by the Hetzel heirs, clients of Cornet & Zelbig, as a speculation. Another purchase was that of 50 feet on the west side of Twelfth street between Chestnut and Pine streets, by the Buder Bros., attorneys, who discounted a big uplift in values on central Twelfth street, coincident with the erection of the Busch hotel on the site originally selected.

The parkway, it is declared, will be a boon to the realty and building interests of the city. Tenants from the buildings displaced by the parkway will fill all the vacancies north of Mill Creek Valley between Taylor avenue and Twelfth street. Thousands of houses in this district, which have been a burden and drug on the market, accordingly, will be placed on an interest-paying basis, while the tide of tenants will be swelled with the exodus from buildings on the north and south sides of Chestnut streets, which sooner or later will be replaced with modern structures.

As the parkway will be of universal benefit, the wole city rather than a limited district, according to Henry L. Cornet, should be assessed for this improvement. Lewis Tontrup of Papin & Tontrup, as well as other leading realty men, subscribe to this opinion.

Realty Men for Parkway.

Joseph M. Ebeling of the Ebeling-Hannibal Real Estate Co. and Julius Haller of the Haller-Lembrecht Real Estate Co., and members of the City Council, are aligned for the parkway. Like Cornet and Wright, both think that the improvement will be a public benefit and that the entire city should pay the cost. Ebeling says the project not only will reclaim a blighted district, but also will regenerate the city.

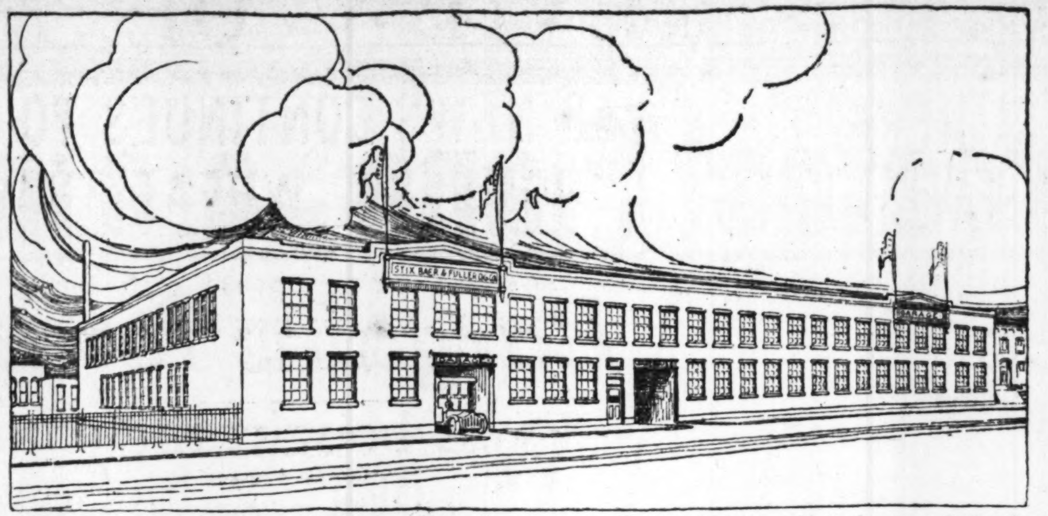
Haller was jubilant over the repeal of the Southern Traction loop franchise, for which he has been working.

Much of the property adjoining the proposed parkway is incumbered and a heavy assessment would be virtually equivalent to confiscation, it is declared.

A feature of the week was the sale of an old three-story building at 1309 Pine street, just off the proposed parkway, by Martin Comer to C. Frieling.

Although the transfer was made at a nominal consideration, the actual price paid, according to the Kollas Real Estate Co., which effected the transaction, was $600 a front foot. The lot is 23x100 feet.

New Relay Station of the Grand-Leader



THIS relay station of the Stix, Baer & Fuller D. G. Co. (Grand-Leader) is said to be one of the finest owned by any department store in the country. It is located on the south side of Laclede avenue, west of Spring. The whole building is entirely fireproof. The second floor is devoted to storage, warerooms and shop. The structure is 218 feet long on Laclede and is 182 feet deep. It contains relay room, garage and stable, besides the warerooms and workshop.

Lot in Maryland Terrace fronting 95 feet on the south line of Maryland avenue by a depth of 185 feet; sold for account of Davis Realty Development Co. to Elizabeth Hesse, who is now improving said lot with a house costing $9000.

BEN ALTHEIMER JR. REALTY CO.

Ben Altheimer Jr. Realty Co. reports the sale of 2927 North Grand avenue, for E. C. Pickels to Dr. Olive Obar for $25,000. The improvements on the property consist of a large residence, now used by the City School Board, under lease for several years.

At the expiration of this lease, the property is to be improved on the Grand avenue front, and the dwelling turned to face Fall avenue, which bounds the lot on the west. The contemplated improvements are to be five stores with modern offices above for the exclusive use of physicians. Every modern convenience is to be installed in the building, and each floor is to have an emergency treatment room for the use of the physicians in the building.

The property sold is located 75 feet south of St. Louis avenue, at the junction of Cass and Grand avenue street car lines. Dr. Obar figured an increasing value of this property because of its frontage on Grand avenue, and its close proximity to the street car transfer point.

MERCANTILE TRUST CO.

The Mercantile Trust Co. reports having leased the storeroom at the southeast corner of Eighth and St. Charles streets to Leopold Herrmann, who will open a new retail store for the sale of men's and boys' clothing under the name of the Economy Clothing Co.

ST. LOUIS SEED CO. TO HAVE NEW HOME ON ITS OLD SITE

Ten-Year Lease Obtained on Structure to Be Built Adjoining the M. A. A.

The St. Louis Seed Co., through the Mercantile Trust Co., has obtained a 10-year lease on a four-story-and-basement building to be erected on their old site, 411-413 Washington avenue. This building will adjoin the new $500,000 home of the Missouri Athletic Association.

The Wimmer Contracting Co. will erect the building, and the terms call for its completion by Jan. 1. It will front 42 feet on Washington avenue and have a depth of 125 feet. The seed company, which is now temporarily located at 408 North Broadway, will install a complete set of new fixtures. The Central Real Estate Co. is the owner of the property.

The Mercantile Trust Co., acting for the Robert estate, also effected a lease of the first floor and basement of the building at 1312 Washington avenue to the Van Nice & Wardle Co., which recently was organized to engage in the wholesale ribbon business.

Frank Alsberg, who conducts a cutlery and grinding establishment, leased the storeroom and factory at 312 Olive street from Miss Eleanor Dozier and Lewis D. Dozier, through the Mercantile Trust Co. This company also leased the warehouse on the Terminal switch at 1814-1816 North Main street for the Meagher estate to Max, Kleban & Charak, to be used to store waste paper and rags.

EAST ST. LOUIS RENTAL PROPERTIES IN DEMAND

Active Inquiry and Sales in Residence Holdings Reported by Several Firms.

Fischer, Schein & Co., in East St. Louis, report sales for the week, made by C. A. Harnett, of 13 lots in Nurdin place, totaling $2750. This firm also reports the sale of vacant property in King's highway terrace to the amount of $500.

T. P. Eggmann reports the sale of one residence at 3129 Virginia place for $5900.

G. R. McCasland reports the sale of 12 lots in Nichols place for $2400.

Tissier Bros. report the sale of one cottage on Gross avenue for $1500, one residence, at Twenty-third and Henrietta streets, for $4500, and 15 lots in Wood River for $1800. This firm reports new loans for the week amounting to $9000.

R. V. Clark of the Clark Realty Co. reports the sale of 75 feet of vacant property in Alta Sita. This firm announces a great many inquiries have been received for residence property in Alta Sita since the announcement that the Champion feed mill will erect a $50,000 mill at Twenty-first and McCasland avenues.

The firms doing business in rental property report good conditions. There are very few vacancies in modern dwellings and the demand for desirable rental residence property is increasing

MEASURES FISH BY FOOT

R. C. Spackler Returns From Trip to Ozarks.

Richard C. Spackler, vice-president of the Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estate Co., has returned after a two weeks' vacation in the fishing and hunting regions of the Ozarks. He enjoyed the fishing and tells several interesting stories, in which he states the measurements of the fish he caught by the front foot.

HOUSE LEASED AT GRAND AND OLIVE FOR $4800 A YEAR

Lease Puts Valuation of $100,000 on Property or $4000 a Front Foot.

Activity in leasing prevailed in both uptown and downtown St. Louis, according to the reports of the leading real estate agencies and trust companies.

A feature of the week was the leasing of the three-story stone front residential building, having 25 feet frontage, at 3602 Olive street, adjoining the corner of Grand avenue, at a rental of $400 a month.

The lessee was Joseph Schertz, who will convert the building for saloon purposes. Schertz has a restaurant on Grand avenue in this block, which will be operated in conjunction with the saloon, the Grand avenue and the Olive street building forming an "L."

The Olive street building and the adjoining building at Grand avenue and Olive is owned by Thomas Halpin. The two buildings occupy a lot 50x150 feet. The lease was negotiated by Frank L. Hackman of the Hackmen Realty Co.

Valued at $4000 a Front Foot.

The rental to be paid by Schertz will be at the rate of $4800 per annum, nearly 5 per cent on the valuation of $100,000, which indicates a ground value of $4000 a front foot.

A lease in downtown St. Louis was that by which the Ritter & Sons Clothing Co. will acquire 7000 square feet of floor space of the Martin Building, at the northeast corner of Washington avenue and Tenth street. The lease provides for alterations that will adapt the quarters to the requirements of the lessee.

The lease was arranged by Harry Simon, who has recently effected several important leases of quarters in this center.

The Lamson company of Boston has leased one-half of the fourth floor of the Howard Building, at 709 Pine street. The company specializes in the manufacture of carrier service for stores, banks, factories, hotels, railroad offices and wholesale buildings. The elaborate mail-handling device in the new post-office at Eighteenth street and Clark avenue, and the tube system in the Boatmen's Bank and the German Savings Institution were installed by this company.

The lease was promoted by Joseph P. Whyte Jr. of the leasing department of the Guardian Trust Co.

Victoria Building Space Taken.

The Junior Realty Co. negotiated a lease of the corner store and 20 offices in the upper floors of the Victoria building, northwest corner Eighth and Locust streets, to George D. Fisher for a term of seven years. Twenty offices in this building have been rented this month.

This firm also leased the building at 515-517 Market street, belonging to the Childs Co. of New York, to Angelica & Co. for a dancing academy. It is understood that several thousand dollars will be spent in improvements.

The Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co. reports a large number of inquiries for stores and offices in the Pontiac building, formerly the Missouri Pacific building, which is now open. The past week it rented the storeroom at 13 North Seventh street to H. M. Schuman for a term of eight years. Schuman will open a buffet.

They have leased suites of offices to A. F. Siekman, Hersche Bros., the L. H. Newman Advertising Co., H. G. Cupples, J. L. Lewis, J. C. Figgemeier, the Carter Construction Co., the Burchwell Manufacturing Co., the Empire Realty & Mortgage Co., W. O. Anderson, W. H. Wilcox, H. B. Gast, E. P. Robinson, T. G. Hartell.

The location of this building, on the northwest corner of Seventh and Market streets, opposite the American Hotel, and in direct line with Union Station, makes is a desirable office building.

Jacob Maurer, a retail grocer, has leased for five years the building at 804 North Sixth street.

The lot is owned in fee by the Knox estate and is under a 99-year leasehold to the Michael Mercantile and Investment Co. A modern two-story concrete structure, built especially for retail purposes, now occupies the site. The building embraces about 10,000 square feet.

The lessee will, after making improvements and alterations, open the premises as a retail grocery and meat shop about Nov. 15. The deal was handled by the Harry Simon Realty Co.

KOLLAS REAL ESTATE CO.

Property at 1309 Pine street was yesterday sold for Martin T. Comer to C. Frieling and wife. The improvements consist of an old three-story dwelling house which the present owner contemplates remodeling and converting into a modern business building. The consideration was said to be about $600 per front foot. Both buyer and seller were represented by the Kollas Real Estate Co.

WEST WALNUT MANOR SALES MARKET FEATURE

Offering of Choice Homesites on Installment Plan Proves Popular.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather of the past week, sales at West Walnut Manor were a realty market feature. An increased demand was reported for the houses in this subdivision, which the David S. Leahy House & Home Co. is selling on the installment plan. The demand for lots on the part of prospective builders was equally noticeable.

While the houses are offered at the uinform price of $880 and on terms of $25 cash paid down and $9.27 a month, the more thrifty paid all cash, availing themselves of a liberal discount.

An illustration in an advertisement section of the Post-Dispatch today shows the character of the West Walnut Manor houses.

The company also announces the sale of several corner lots which are to be improved with stores or business buildings.

Between 400 and 500 houses have been erected in West Walnut Manor, which was placed on the market only two years ago. The subdivision, located at the northwest corner of Florissant and Hamilton avenues, is one of the most attractively situated, popular-priced subdivisions in northwest St. Louis.

The Bellefontaine or the Union avenue car lines, in conjunction with the St. Louis & Jennings Electric Railway, solve the transportation problem of that section.

Newberry Back From Texas.

Morton L. Newberry, the right hand man of Albert G. Blank, has returned from a trip to Texas, whence he went on both business and pleasure.

REALTY NOTES.

William L. Baleon, whose arm was brok several weeks ago in getting off a Hamilt car, is reported as being much improve with hopes of getting down on the str again in a few days.

Dr. Osler on Tuberculosis

SIR WILLIAM OSLER, one of the foremost of living medical men, formerly of Johns Hopkins, Baltimore, and now Regius Professor of Medicine at Oxford, says, in his "Practice of Medicine" (1892), on page 249:

"The healing of pulmonary tuberculosis is shown clinically by the recovery of patients in whose sputa elastic tissue and bacilli have been found. * * * In the granulation products and associated pneumonia a scar-tissue is formed, while the smaller caseous areas become impregnated with lime salts. To such conditions alone should the term healing be applied."

Many eminent medical authorities have testified to the efficiency of lime salts in the treatment of tuberculosis, and it seems reasonable to assume that the success of Eckman's Alterative in this and allied throat and bronchial affections is due partly to the fact that it contains a lime salt so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated by the average person.

Widespread and continued use of this remedy in numerous cases of tuberculosis—many of which appear to have yielded completely to it—justifies our belief that it is worth a trial in such cases, unless some other form of treatment already is succeeding. Eckman's Alterative contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs. Therefore, it is safe to take. We make no promises concerning it, any more than reputable physicians give promises with their prescriptions, but we know of many cases in which IT HAS HELPED.

Your druggist has it or can get it, or you can order direct.

A Vital Message to Truss Burdened Humanity

I Have Proved to others and will prove to YOU, by actual results in hundreds of severe cases that RUPTURE Can be held perfectly comfortable and HEALED absolutely, without a truss or an operation

Says He Was Entirely CURED In Four Months' Time

"I have worn the Schuiling Rupture Lock 4 months and now am entirely cured. I have sent more than 30 cases to this Company, and many of them are cured or well satisfied. Anyone who wants to write me I will tell them all about my case and how I got cured with that wonderful Lock. Every rupture sufferer should have one."
Cicero, Indiana. COMMIE CASE.

Now Believes Rupture Entirely CURED This Man is 81 Years Old

"I received the Schuiling Rupture Lock and I have had no trouble with my rupture since putting it on. I had never hoped to get anything to hold my rupture, as I am 81 years old. At my age I have never expected a cure, but now have every reason to believe that your wonderful invention cured me. I thank you for all you have done for me."
J. D. ROGERS.
Arkansas City, Kan.

Says Largest Rupture Was CURED In Seven Months' Time

"For twenty years I have suffered with double rupture. Wore the Schuiling Rupture Lock steadily for seven months and found that the largest rupture was entirely cured, but the other side was a little weak yet, so will wear a pad on that side for a little while yet for protection. Let anyone that wishes write me. I will be glad to answer."
Ludington, Mich. A. J. TOWER.

Says Schuiling Rupture Lock CURED Him in About 2 Months

"I purchased one of your Schuiling Rupture Locks. I found it was an anchor and Lock sure enough, for it stayed just where I put it. In about two months the rupture was well, but I wore the Lock about a month longer until I was sure I was strong. I then took the Lock off and found I was entirely sound."
Garland, Kansas. S. J. BRYANT.

Father Says Boy Was CURED In Three Months

"My boy Carl was ruptured since birth. It kept getting larger all the time. I got a Rupture Lock for myself and bought one for the boy, too. We put it on him and in three months' time he was all well. I will gladly tell anyone writing me about our cases."
EDWARD E. DICKERSON,
Cor. Prescott and Division Sts. Grand Rapids, Mich.

Feels That He Is Now CURED Wears Lock for Safety

"I have been ruptured for seven years. Have worn nearly every kind of truss. Never found one which would hold my rupture until I got a Schuiling Rupture Lock. The rupture never came down a single time after putting the Lock on. I feel that I am cured, but for the sake of safety I am going to wear it a little longer."
R. F. D. No. 6, Canton, Texas. C. W. STEEL.

GLORIOUS BLESSINGS THAT EVERY RUPTURE SUFFERER CAN NOW ENJOY

"Down Again"

A Common Occurrence to Those Who Wear Ill-Fitting Trusses.

Have you not had this same thing happen to you in getting off or on a street car, or in straining or exerting your body in some slight way? You know what misery it causes you.

But do you know that you are liable to serious injury every time your rupture slips down and is pinched beneath a truss pad?

This never happens to wearers of the Schuiling Rupture Lock, for once it is properly adjusted it holds with the firmness of a vise and yet with perfect comfort. It simply cannot slip or get out of place, no matter what position the wearer may get into. No matter how rough or hard or strenuous your work may be, no matter how you twist or squirm or run or jump, no matter how much you pull or tug or strain, your rupture CAN'T get pinched beneath a pad and cause you the untold misery you have perhaps often suffered from an ill-fitting truss.

Freedom From Truss Slavery. Freedom From Rupture Misery! Perfect Holding! Perfect Comfort! Wonderful, Grand, Luxurious Relief.

Test the Wonderful Schuiling Rupture Lock in Any Way You Wish. You'll See Results You Never Dreamed Were Possible.

If you are one of the many rupture sufferers who go about harnessed up like an overburdened truck horse, with cruel steel springs, unsanitary elastic bands and leg straps, or some other uncomfortable ill fitting contraption that is continually slipping, binding, pinching and gouging your flesh and causing you constant trouble, you can now rejoice for at last your day of deliverance has come.

You can be free from the torture and burden. You can be free from the danger, the worry, trouble, annoyances. You enjoy freedom of action and perfect comfort 24 hours of the day. You can go about your duties no matter how hard or rough your work may be, without the slightest fear of your rupture coming down or being "pinched." You can glory and revel in the knowledge that your rupture CAN'T come down, and CAN'T get pinched no matter what position you may get into.

That is exactly what you can expect if you are wearing the wonderful SCHUILING RUPTURE LOCK, the greatest and one of the simplest devices ever invented for the treatment and cure of rupture—in fact you can expect more, for

Hundreds Tell of Positive Cures

Think of it, CURES! Rupture is actually being cured by this wonderful scientific Lock. Persons who had suffered for years, persons who had wasted hundreds of dollars on cruel trusses and "harness" contraptions and had lost all hope of ever finding a cure; persons who would have been overjoyed and delighted with even comforting relief, say that they have found more than they had hoped for and hundreds have written that soon after putting on the WONDERFUL SCHUILING RUPTURE LOCK the ruptured openings grew smaller and smaller and healed up entirely.

For Your Own Sake Investigate This

I want you to know what this wonderful Lock has done and what it is doing today for hundreds of sufferers in all parts of this country. You owe it to yourself to find this out. I say it is the greatest and most wonderful, and most comfortable, the most perfect fitting and the most successful device for the treatment of rupture that has ever been invented. I WANT YOU, for your own sake, to MAKE ME PROVE IT. I want you to write to me this very day and get my free book and full particulars.

Hundreds of other sufferers are writing every day, thousands are wearing this wonderful Lock and enjoying its luxurious comforts at this moment, others who have used it a little longer are taking it off—cured and free—with no longer any need for it. Why should you continue in your misery?

You Need Not Risk a Penny

You can get the wonderful SCHUILING RUPTURE LOCK and wear it for 30 days, you can put it on and try it, you can enjoy the welcome relief it will give you, you can test it by walking, by jumping, by running, by pulling and straining and tugging to your heart's content, to prove that it will HOLD your rupture as nothing else has EVER done, prove that it will give you the COMFORT, ease and freedom you have so longed for. You can prove by actual experience in your own case that it will give you MORE relief, MORE COMFORT, MORE peace of mind than you have known in many a day and you can do all this without the risk of a penny.

SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKETS

400,000,000 BU. FALLING OFF IN WORLD'S WHEAT

Washington Reports Total 1915 Crop Only About 3,741,018,000 Bushels.

U. S. MAKES A RECORD

Short Yield in Russia, Hungary and the Balkan States Is Indicated.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The world wheat crop this year probably will be less than in 1913 and 1912, although the United States has had a record harvest. Statistics announced today by the Department of Agriculture indicate the crop of all nations aggregate approximately 3,741,018,000 bushels, against 4,125,310,000 bushels in 1913, and 3,791,875,000 in 1912.

"In Europe conditions in most countries have been favorable for only moderate yields," the department announced. "It is practically certain that the present shortage of the European yield will be magnified by the complete returns. Harvests were pretty well over before or soon after hostilities began and the grain is in generally good condition except in territory actually occupied by the contending armies."

Great Britain, according to agricultural officials, report a crop several million bushels larger than any previous one. In France the official estimate of production has not appeared but is believed the quantity will exceed that of last year. Italy indicates a short yield and Spain an increase over last year.

Short Yield in Hungary.

From Germany and Austria no intimation of the grain harvest is available, but in Hungary a deficiency is indicated. Reports from Roumania and the Balkan states suggest short yields and official cables place the harvests in 73 governments of European and Asiatic Russia 183,000,000 bushels below the extraordinarily large crop there last year.

Great Britain, Italy, Spain, Hungary and Russia, normally producing more than two-thirds of the European wheat, show this year 237,000,000 bushels less than last year, but 34,000,000 bushels more than 1912. Great Britain's total is 6,000,000 bushels more than either year. Decrease in production in other European countries probably will make their aggregate approximately 700,000,000 bushels.

The five principal non-European wheat producting countries—the United States, Canada, Argentina, British India and Australia—which grow all the wheat produced outside of Europe, excepting an annual total of from two to three hundred million bushels, officially report 1,586,606,000 bushels, or 60,000,000 bushels less than last year, but 20,000,000 more than 1912.

Shortage in Canada.

The decrease was due wholly to shortage in Canada, Argentina and British India, their aggregate output being 200,000,000 bushels less than last year. The combined output of the United States and Australia exceeded last year by 140,000,000 bushels.

Of the 892,000,000 bushels record crop harvested in the United States, 525,000,000 bushels, it is estimated, will be required for food in this country and 77,000,000 bushels for seeding. This will leave 290,000,000 bushels available for exportation.

The largest quantity ever exported from the United States heretofore in one year was 235,000,000 bushels in 1901. Last year 141,000,000 bushels were exported.

Sugar Bet Crop Is Placed at 4,826,000 Tons.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—From the condition of sugar beets on Oct. 1 the Department of Agriculture, in a forecast issued today, estimated a harvest of 4,826,000 tons, compared with 5,659,000 tons, which produced 1,466,802,000 pounds of sugar last year. A yield of about 10.3 tons per acre is indicated, but the actual outturn will likely be above or below this amount, according as conditions at harvest are better or worse than usual.

DEFICIT OF THE NEW YORK BANKS AGAIN LOWERED

Reserves Now Are Close to the Twenty-Five Per Cent Limit.

MONEY WORKING EASIER

Foreign Exchange Also Is Favorably Influenced by Gold Pool.

Chicago Stock Exchange May Reopen Nov. 9.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—While a movement to re-open the Chicago Stock Exchange has not reached the official stage, it was learned today that influential members believe that the resumption of business, confining it to local securities, is possible. Nov. 9 is the tentative date set.

It is pointed out that conditions affecting the New York Exchange do not obtain here, and there would be practically no danger of foreign liquidation, with trading confined to local stocks and bonds.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"The apathetic condition in which the markets closed the week, today, reflected a world-wide financial feeling. It has become increasingly difficult, however, to determine how much of the hesitating attitude is caused by vicissitudes of the European campaign itself, and how much is an inevitable sequel to the break-down of international credit relations which accompanied the outbreak of the war.

"London dispatches, public and private, report an anxious suspense over the operations in Northern France; yet the London financial situation is reported as improving. In the matter of dealing with the fundamental difficulties of the hour, the same thing may certainly be said of the United States.

"At all events, when one compares the complete bewilderment and consternation of six or eight weeks ago with the orderly progress which is now, though only gradually, being made to solve the more pressing problems, it must be clear that the situation is distinctly and positively improved.

"On all occasions of this sort there are four distinct stages through which, successively, a business community must pass. The first includes the brief series of outright panic days; the second, the sudden application of high and unusual emergency expedients; the third, a relapse into despondent gloom because those relief expedients did not bring back the pre-existing favorable conditions.

"That is the stage which the community in general occupies today. But from that position of despondency, markets are bound invariably to pass, with greater or less delay, as circumstances require, into the fourth stage of such an episode, in which the whole community sets manfully at work to build up what had been pulled down. That is always the preparatory period for the new forward movement."

"The bank statement of today fixed an unquestionable landmark in the financial history of this season's 'war finance' by restoring the surplus of reserves over the 25 per cent legal minimum ratio to deposits. This was accomplished, not only by a $6,000,000 gain in cash reserves, but by a further $6,800,000 loan reduction—again largely a consequence of the readjustment of Stock Exchange indebtedness incurred before the war.

"With the banks the deficit existed during the 10 weeks from Aug. 8 to Oct. 10 inclusive; it once (on Aug. 22) rose as high as $36,900,000.

"After the panic of 1907, the surplus was not restored until Jan. 11 of the ensuing year. Including with the banks all the other clearing house institutions, a deficit slightly under $1,000,000 still remains."

Foreign Exchange Active.

"There was continued buying of exchange today, and it was evident that much of the demand had to do with providing remittances for the large engagements which have to be cared for at London during the next fortnight. Besides the payments accruing abroad against our corporations, there are many obligations of firms or individuals which will have to be settled for at the expiration of the moratorium in London, 18 days from now.

"A good portion of the exchange which has been bought within the last few days, has been required in connection with such transactions. The exchanges required to meet with the maturities of New York City obligations at London were, however, the chief reason for the sharp rise in exchange this week.

"Offerings of exchange by the gold pool may be enlarged, now that interior banks are sending along their contributions to the fund. Thus far, the banks of this city have assumed virtually all the burden involved in making the shipments of gold to Ottawa.

"It has not been announced what portion of the $10,000,000 gold sent to Canada by the pool has been drawn against; but now that the fund is to be increased, there is a chance that the operations of the gold fund committee in the foreign exchange market may become much more influential than they have been. The indications are that, after the heavy remittances of the next two weeks have been arranged for, there will be an earier tone to the foregn exchange market.

"The banks have made a general reduction in call money rates, although there are still a considerable volume of loans which pay the 8 per cent rate exacted by the banks in cases where the borrowers were not their regular customers.

Money Market Is Easier.

"But the action by some banks this week, in reducing the rate for such loans to 7 per cent and the willingness of others to lend at 6 per cent, in cases where especially high-grade collateral was offered, reflected the much easier tendencies which now prevail in the money market.

"These have been brought about largely by the return flow of money to this market, and by the action of various borrowers upon Stock Exchange collateral, in voluntarily paying off the loans which a few weeks ago they were unabel to liquidate.

"In this way the Wall street loan account has been materially reduced, and the banks are no longer embarrassed by having as large a portion of their loanable funds tied up in such transactions as they had a month ago.

"New York bankers unhesitatingly express the belief that the proposal to raise another fund among the banks to help out the cotton growers of the South will go through successfully, and that the relief will be granted on the basis of terms approved by the Federal Reserve Board.

"Some of the largest participants in the fund have stipulated that the board should direct the disbursement of the money, and that the assistance should be given to groups of banks at the South instead of wholly to individual institutions in the cotton belt.

"This arrangement has the advantage of binding the Southern banks together in the relief scheme, in much the same way as has been done in the country at large, through the organization of national currency associations, to direct the distribution of emergency notes, under the terms of the Aldrich-Vreeland act.

Banks Subscribe Fund.

"The New York banks will provide one-third of a $150,000,000, fund if that amount is considered essential, to carry out the relief scheme. The details of the operation will be worked out within the next few days by the committee of Western bankers, who are acting with financiers of this city, and members of the Federal Reserve Board.

"The intention is to provide the fund as soon as possible, so that the relief may be forthcoming by the time that the loans based upon cotton fall due at the South. In addition to this fund, the banks of this city will be heavily interested in the relief arrangement, though the advances made to Southern correspondents, direct.

"A month ago many Wall Street banks renewed loans for banks in the cotton belt. These advances were in many cases very heavy, and while no figures have been given out, it is believed that they aggregated $25,000,000.

"The banks were ready to renew the loans in cases where it was evident that the accommodation was justified and could be safely extended. But the present plan is much more far-reaching, and will in all probability, provide the assistance required to carry the cotton growers over a most difficult period."

$300,000,000 IN GOLD IS HELD BY BANK OF ENGLAND

Foreign Institution Shows Record Supply of the Yellow Metal.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The tenseness with which the markets watch the course of the conflict on the Belgian border increases. That the effects of any decisive issue to this campaign would be of incalculable importance to the worlds' finance, as well as to its political future, nobody doubts.

Yet, for the moment, financial conditions here are developing satisfactorily. Trade improves, and the Bank of England's position grows stronger every week. Including yesterday's arrivals, its stock of gold is now over £60,000,000 sterling, whereas £49,100,000 sterling was the maximum of its history until this war. Probably it will go much higher. But the discount market for long dated bills, based on future operations, is obscure.

Exchange Market Watched.

The sharp advance in your foreign exchange rates is connected largely with the impending expiration of our moratorium on exchange bills, which affects the endorsers on your side as well as the acceptors on ours. As to the confused cotton position, the views of your sober critics command approval, and it is hoped that measures taken in concert with our own representatives will proceed on friendly, but strictly sound business principles.

It is fully believed that the moratorium in this market will close on Nov. 4, with no serious financial disturbance, though this expectation must, of course, always assume no dramatically unfavorable war developments. The Government's official scheme for protecting, after the moratorium, exporters of goods and Stock Exchange transactions involved in the war blockade, is expected next week.

The bank returns show progress in repayment of borrowing by the markets, while the active note circulation, and even the new currency notes, are now covered pound for pound in gold.

The Government will probably soon begin placing its borrowing for war on a somewhat different basis. But the market can easily lend it many millions more, without resorting to a public loan.

Bank Reserves Are $934,150 Below Requirements.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The statement of the average condition of clearing house banks and trust companies for the week shows that the cash reserve increased $6,857,200, leaving a deficit of $934,150 below legal requirements.

The statement follows: Average condition—Loans, $2,175,513,000, decrease $4,423,000; specie, $335,630,000, increase $4,678,000; legal tenders, $98,936,000, increase $1,441,000; net deposits, $1,931,447,000, decrease $3,792,000; circulation, $146,227,000, increase $2,088,000; banks' cash reserve in vault, $309,491,000; trust companies' cash reserve in vault, $65,075,000; aggregate cash reserve, $434,566,000; deficit cash reserve, $934,150, decrease $6,857,200; trust companies' reserve with clearing house members carrying 25 per cent cash reserve, $50,705,000.

Summary of State bank and trust companies in Greater New York, not included in clearing house statement: Loans and investments, $562,581,100, decrease $887,000; gold, $41,136,800, decrease $1,461,600; currency and bank notes, $13,537,200, increase $496,300; total deposits, $638,576,300, decrease $304,700.

Fruits.

APPLES—Levee offerings were quite heavy, including the rainy weather accumulations of Thursday and Friday, and from the exposure to heavy rain, barrels were water-soaked, with bulging bellies and broken hoops, which, of course, causes slack packages and depreciation in value. Trading resumed with fair attendance of buyers (although weather was still damp and misty) and bidding was on lower basis on account of the condition more than from lack of demand; as order buyers, shippers and storage people still want good fruit. What sales were made were at declines of say 10c to 20c per barrel below Thursday's prices. Quote on basis latest reported sales: Ben davis at $1 to $1.25 for No. 2, $1.35 to $1.40 for medium and $1.50 to $1.70 for No. 1; gano at $1.25 to $1.35 for No. 2 to $1.60@1.80 for No. 1; roman beauty at $1.75 to $2.50; winesap at $1.75 to $3; blacktwigs at $1.75 to $2.75, and other varieties accordingly.

CRANBERRIES—Cape Cod early black selling in jobbing way delivered at $5 per barrel, and late red at $5.25 per barrel.

COTTON GROWERS HOPE FOR RELIEF IN POOL SCHEME

$150,000,000, at Present Reported Price, Would Take Care of Six Million Bales.

The most important development in the cotton market is the growing probability that the $150,000,000 pool for the relief of the cotton grower will soon be a reality. In a statement made by Messrs. Wade and Simmons it is announced that the management of the pool has been turned over to the Federal Reserve Board, and that New York interests have subscribed $50,000,000 to the fund, provided the rest of the country make up the remaining $100,000,000.

The action of the promoters in asking the Reserve Board to manage the distribution of the loans, and in placing the interest rate at 6 per cent, and in making maturities one year, with a privilege of renewal for two terms of six months, sets aside any idea of selfishness on the part of these men. Initiative and courage in business is generally rewarded directly. In this instance the two qualities seek no material reward, other than the moderate return that may be received by anyone who has money to loan at 6 per cent.

The importance of such a fund cannot be overestimated. Just now it is reported that cotton is being sold for as low as 5 cents a pound, and Senator Hoke Smith has urged quick action on the amendment for the loan of $250,000,000 by the Government to producers and merchants who hold cotton. With cotton at 5 cents per pound, $150,000,000 will care for 6,000,000 bales of cotton.

There has been a large holding movement all over the South. Dissatisfaction over prices, inability to get bids, hope of relief, a hope in which the farmer, the merchant, the local banker, all have joined, are the causes. Such relief is the $150,000,000 pool. The consummation of this work will largely fix the minimum price of cotton. None of the cotton pledged as collateral for loans will find the market until prices exceed by a comfortable margin the amount loaned.

In the meantime the steadying of prices will enable manufacturers to find a basis price for the raw material on which to found prices for the finished product. In the export trade the best business that is being done is entirely new to the trade and the secrecy with which the orders are placed makes uniformity impossible.

The Census Bureau's report of the consumption of cotton by domestic mills in August and September shows a falling off of more than 75,000 bales as compared with the same period last year.

The greatest part of this falling off was in August, the consumption in September being upwards of 80,000 bales more than during the month of August. Exports of cotton are very light, more than a million bales less than at the same time last year.

The picking of the crop has apparently not been interrupted by the decline in prices. Bad weather has stopped it in places. Georgia, particularly, has been getting a great quantity of rain. The cotton crop as a rule has made good progress; in some sections the top crop is reported to be lost, but as a whole there is little complaint of condition. Killing frost occurred in Oklahoma and a heavy frost was reported at Ballinger, Tex., Oct. 15, but under present market depression little attention is paid to frost.

Prices for spot cotton are irregular. Scattered reports of sales in the country indicate prices ranging up and down around 6 cents for upland cotton. The demand in Texas is apparently somewhat better than in other sections, Houston reporting good sales daily. Cotton bought for export is shipped out quickly, and there is little business done for forward shipment. Cotton for domestic mills is being bought for shipment over a period covering several months, but business is not easy to effect as American mills are inclined to be independent when foreign competitors are out of the market.

CATTLE RECEIPTS HEAVIEST OF YEAR, QUALITY LACKING

All Grades of Beeves Sell Lower, Although Some Primes Bring $10.75 Top Rate.

Receipts at National Stock Yards.

	This Wk.	Last Wk.	Year Ago
Cattle	40,000	29,444	28,683
Hogs	60,000	52,137	36,068
Sheep	10,000	13,931	14,751
Horses and mules	3,500	4,597	3,400

The past week proved the heaviest of the year in point of receipts, approximately 40,000 head coming in during the week. While a good portion of them were quarantines, yet the native supply was the largest of the year. Beef steers were in generous supply, but quality was not very good, the majority being of medium and common grades. The week's market was not satisfactory to the sellers. Supply proved burdensome and all classes of beeves sold lower, even strictly good kinds. Some 1400-pound beeves, at $10.75, were top for the week, and the same class of cattle sold for $10.85 the previous week. Declines of anywhere from 10@25c developed on medium to choice steers, and common steers were 25@35c off in most instances.

The week's trade in butcher stuff had many of the characteristics which have been evident for the past few weeks. Supply was heavy, but had it carried more quality, there might possibly have been a different sort of market. Strictly good heifers were wanted. The few offered sold steady. Medium and common classes, however, were hammered hard and declined from the outset of the week until they were 25@35c lower. Medium to good cows also were around a flat quarter lower for the week, with a liberal supply on sale. Canners showed very little change, tacking along in an even channel practically all week. Bulls were 10@15c lower generally. Vealers opened steady, but later in the week declined a quarter and closed with this loss standing for the week. The late top on vealers was $10.75.

Stocker Demand Narrow.

The stocker and feeder trade bordered on demoralization during the latter stages of the week. Demand was very narrow and particularly so from the country, this contingent offering very little support. It was a difficult task to move stockers and feeders at concessions of 25@35c. Stock cows and heifers were in relatively the same position as were steers, and practically the same decline was evident on them.

Receipts in the quarantine division were also liberal in volume, and came mostly from Southeastern territory, Texas and Oklahoma being represented by a very small showing of steers. There was just a small supply of steers on sale at all times. While the market was satisfactory early in the period, toward the close prices were on a dime lower basis, much of the decline being because order buyers did not support the market late in the week. Canners and she-stuff held steady during the early part of the week, but closed 10@15c lower. Yearlings and heretics were 25@35c lower.

Hog Market Hammered Down.

A liberal supply of hogs was received. Prices were on the decline most of the time, and reached the lowest basis of the year. All grades suffered but the mixed, pigs and lights suffered more than the good, smooth hogs of medium and heavy weight, as they were sought after by the shippers and city butchers. Packers were hammering the market at all times.

At the opening of the week the top of the market was $8.30, and the bulk of the hogs went at $7.75@8, but later in the week the top was down to $7.85, and the bulk went at $7.40@7.75. Plain mixed hogs, without much weight, went at $7.25@7.40 to the packers, while the throw-out, rough packers sold at $6.75@7. Off-grades of all weights were poor sellers.

The best end of the pigs and lights went readily enough, but the poorer grades were hard to place at anything like satisfactory prices. Best lights sold at $7.50@7.75; fair grades at $7.25@7.50. Best grade of pigs, went at $6.85@7.25; fair grades at $6.25@6.65.

Sheep Prices Higher.

Just a fair number of sheep and lambs was received. There was a good demand, the market was active and prices on a higher basis. Lambs did not make so much advance as sheep, gaining 15@25c, but all sheep that could be used for mutton found ready sale and advanced 50c, which placed them on the highest basis they have been since last spring.

Good fat lambs went at $7.75@8, while the plain kinds found sale at $7.25@7.65. Culls and others that were really not any better than culls went at $6.50@7. Buyers did not sort the lambs very closely as competition was too strong. Some lambs were received from Utah that weighed 69 pounds and sold at $7.65.

Early in the week sheep were selling at $5, the same as for several weeks past, but later they were bringing $5.50. Nothing like the number of sheep needed were received. Breeding ewes went at $5.50@6, choppers and stockers at $4@4.75, plain stockers at $3@3.90, and bucks at $4.25@4.50.

Horse Prices Firm, Mule Market Nil.

There was no material change made in the horse market. Foreign buyers continued to be heavy purchasers all week and they got the majority of the offerings. Prices on all these stood firm. Eastern buyers were taking a few but not as many as did Southern buyers, and the auction did not display any too much life throughout the week. Fat chunks and drafters were the kinds mostly wanted by Eastern buyers, while Southerners wanted only a few on the quality order.

The market on mules was practically nil as there was hardly any trade whatever. A few miners, big mules and sugar types sold, and buyers were scarce. Sellers claim the trade at present is on as slow a basis as it has been in some time.

Wheat futures were strong last week and closed the trading firm at the top level, with quotations 3c to 3½c higher. Trade was largely professional, however.

It was strictly a war market all week, and traders continued to favor the buying side on the theory that the reported German successes could indicate nothing but a prolonged strife.

Liverpool wheat prices also showed a strong upward drift.

Notwithstanding the recent pronounced reaction in wheat values since the high level touched shortly after war was declared, many of the best-posted traders on the Merchants' Exchange are strongly of the opinion that higher quotations will prevail later on. Many base their bullish predictions on prices of wheat during other important wars, and on this theory the following tabulation proves interesting:

War Prices Usually High.

1775—War of American Revolution. Wheat 93 cents average at seaboard markets in 1788; rose yearly to 1796, with an average of $2.48, the high being $3. Then continued high average, owing to French Revolution, Napoleonic wars and our own War of 1812.

1815—European war. Waterloo ended hostilities and resulted in some break in prices. Average price in 1815 $1.76, then rose to $2.85 in 1817.

1854-56—Crimean war. Wheat, 38 cents in 1852, rose to $1.85 in 1855, which was top. After some decline rallied again in 1857, but upward move was interfered with by panic of that period and failure of Ohio Life and Trust Co.

1860-64—Civil War. Wheat in Chicago, 62 cents in 1861, rose to $2.28 in 1864, broke with end of war to 74 cents early in 1865, followed by a violent advance to $2.85 in spring of 1867. Made the same high as reached in 1817, just 50 years previous.

1876-78—Russo-Turkish war. Wheat 83 cents in 1876, rose to $1.76 in 1877, broke to 77 cents at conclusion of war, only to rise to $1.44 in 1882.

1898 — Spanish-American War. Wheat 63 cents in spring of 1897. Leiter deal on, prices rose to $1.85 for May and $1.25 for July in May, 1898; collapsed to 63 cents before end of the war, on failure of Leiter deal.

1904-05 — Russo-Japanese War. Wheat 74 cents in November, 1903, rose to $1.21 in both 1904 and 1905; broke to 69 cents in 1906, to advance again to $1.60 cash and $1.34 May option, 1909.

1914—General European war. Wheat middle of July 84½ cents for May option; rose to $1.32 early in September, and now $1.20. What next?

The three periods when prices ruled higher after hostilities were those when war continued for a lengthy time and resulted in depleted supplies. In other cases the duration of war or nations involved were on a more restricted scale. Chicago prices are quoted since the Civil War.

Wheat Receipts Are Light.

Receipts of wheat in the domestic primary markets were lighter than a year ago, and in Canada the run to market was so small as to cause the belief that the crop in the Dominion was even less than recently estimated, and that exports to England from the sister country has practically cleaned up the surplus holdings of farmers willing to sell their grain at this price level.

Statistical news of the week also favored the buyers slightly.

The domestic wheat visible supply increased 5,535,000 bushels for the week. Corn decreased 734,000 bushels; oats, 1,041,000 barrels.

The total visible shows:

	Today.	Last Year.
Wheat	57,121,000	54,491,000
Corn	4,727,000	8,311,000
Oats	29,226,000	32,371,000
Changes—	Last Week.	Last Year.
Wheat	Inc. 6,204,000	Inc. 2,433,000
Corn	Dec. 394,000	Inc. 189,000
Oats	Inc. 2,197,000	Inc. 1,653,000

On passage statement: Wheat—Today 35,052,000 bu, increase 1,548,000; week ago 33,504,000, increase $2,600,000; year ago 34,752,000, increase 528,000. Corn—Today 18,351,000, increase 1,886,000; week ago 16,465,000; increase 3,468,000; year ago 26,429,000; decrease 4,027,000.

The European wheat visible this week amounts to 67,148,000 bu; last week, 68,320,000; last year, 77,890,000.

An official French crop report states that the wheat yield amounted to 296,000,000 bu; last year, 323,000,000. The necessary amount for importation this season will easily reach 44,000,000 bu.

Bradstreet's world's available figures showed: Wheat increased 7,258,000 bu for the week; corn decreased 679,000; oats increased 2,647,000.

The total visible shows: Wheat, 175,291,000 bu; last year, 173,892,000. Corn, United States and Canada, 6,036,000 bu; last year, 9,845,000. Oats, 38,378,000 bu; last year, 46,762,000.

Corn Traders Bearish.

Sentiment is bearish on corn and professional traders are talking cheaper prices, despite the fact that quotations are slightly lower than at this time last year and that the country has experienced two shorts in succession.

The October Government forecast indicated a corn crop of only 2,680,000,000 bushel, compared with 2,446,988,000 bushel last year, when the yield was the smallest since 1903, and compared with the worst crop failure the trade ever experienced of 1,522,648,312 bushel in 1901.

When it is considered that the crop of 1912 broke all records at 3,124,746,000 bushel and that prices on that crop went out very high, after the entire speculative following sold corn short on the prospective yield, there is not much reason for taking the bear side of the market at present, with reserves of corn in farmers' hands close to the smallest on record.

At present the Chicago crowd is endeavoring to manipulate the market downward on talk of competition with Argentine corn. A year ago the same tactics were indulged in. Chicago wires then carried stories daily of the heavy corn shipments to American markets from Argentine.

The trade took the bait and sold corn short freely. When the Chicago crowd had accumulated a big line of long corn, talk of Argentine suddenly ceased and prices mounted the rest of the season and ended the crop at very high quotations.

The official figures showed that less than 2,000,000 bushels of corn came in from the Argentine, while Chicago houses were working their little coup.

The trade is wondering whether the same game is being played now, and if history will repeat itself and corn prices rise materially later in the season, after the bugaboo of Argentine shipments has permitted the Chicago crowd to buy in much cheap corn.

Oats were strong on reports of continual heavy export sales.

FOREIGN CROP REPORT CAUSES RISE IN WHEAT

Australian Yield Is Said to Be 75,000,000 Less Than Last Year.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Sensational crop loss reports from Australia were largely responsible today for a continued advance in the price of wheat. The market closed nervous at 1¾c to 1⅝c above last night. Corn finished ¾c to ⅞@1c up, and provisions strung out from 10c decline to a rise of 20c.

It was speedily apparent that if the estimates received today were substantially correct, Australia was eliminated for this season as an exporter of wheat. Assertions were made that the shortage in Australia would amount to 75,000,000 bushels, whereas the entire exportable surplus last year did not aggregate more than 57,000,000 bushels. In this connection, Liverpool dispatches intimated that importers were alarmed over the chance of future supplies in case of war complications more acute.

Export houses led the buying in the wheat market here, and were said also to be active at Duluth and Winnipeg, and in the Southwest as well. Predictions that world shipments next week would be less than European requirements helped to keep the market from any important reaction.

Corn traders veered strongly to the buying side. Country holders were said to be refusing to sell either old or new corn. Shipping demand was more urgent and there were numerous complaints of damage from wet weather.

Prices for oats were stimulated by rumors of Australia buying cargoes at New York, an occurrence said to be without a precedent. There were also bullish advices regarding the Canadian crop.

Provisions averaged lower, reflecting a decline in the hog market. On the downturn, however, there was a fair general demand, influenced somewhat by the strength of grain.

GREAT-GRANDMA, 3 GRANDMAS, TAKE COURSE AT SCHOOL

500 Women, Many Socially Prominent, Enroll in Washington University Class.

MANY SUBJECTS STUDIED

War Lectures Discontinued So as Not to Transgress President's Neutrality Injunctions.

One great-grandmother, three grandmothers and scores of mothers are among the 500 women, many of them prominent in society, who were enrolled up to yesterday afternoon in the Saturday course given at Washington University. The students range from several of this year's debutantes to one septuagenarian.

That the studies are not a temporary fad, but are becoming an integral factor in the city mental life, is shown by the steadily increasing attendance since the course began three years ago. The enrollment this year has grown from 270, the number present on the opening day, Sept. 26, to its present figure. Not more than half a dozen men are registered.

The student who is a great-grandmother is Mrs. J. L. D. Morrison of the Buckingham Hotel, who is 74 years old and known as the arbiter of St. Louis society. That her mental faculties are still eager for knowledge is shown by the fact that a few years ago she took up the study of Spanish and learned to read and speak it fluently. She was already proficient in French and Italian.

The grandmothers in quest of learning are Mrs.John T. Davis of 17 Westmoreland place, mother of Park Commissioner Dwight F. Davis; Mrs. George Oliver Carpenter of 12 Portland place and Mrs. Isaac Morton of 43 Portland place.

List of Social Matrons.

Matrons whose names are in the Social Register, as well as upon the university's rolls, include Mrs. Charles Cummings Collins, 20 Lenox place; Mrs. J. D. Wooster Lambert, 5290 Waterman avenue; Mrs. G. Herbert Walker, 12 Hortense place; Mrs. Harry B. Wallace, 4976 Berlin avenue; Mrs. Sadie Knox Taussig, 5290 Waterman avenue; Mrs. Hugh McKittrick, Clayton; Mrs. Claude S. Kennerly, 16 Lenox place; Mrs. Louis LeBeaume, 5340 Waterman avenue; Mrs. W. H. Little, 6310 Waterman avenue; Mrs. Laura S. Love, 19 Lenox place; Mrs. E. E. Magill, 30 Lenox place; Mrs. William Henry Elliot, 5023 Westminster place; Mrs. Charles Parsons Pettus, 33 Westmoreland place; Mrs. Howard O'Fallon, 4543 Berlin avenue; Mrs. E. H. Semple, 4411 Westminster place; Mrs. Frances D. Seward, 5257 Westminster place; Mrs. J. P. Boogher, 6345 Washington avenue; Mrs. Robert Burkham, 5035 Westminster place; Mrs. Walter T. Campbell, 14 North King's highway; Mrs. Ray Carter, 18 Portland place; Mrs. Isaac Cook, 3 Hortnese place; Mrs. Eugene Cuendet, 4 Hortense place; Mrs. Oliver L. Garrison Jr., 5746 Von Versen avenue; Mrs. Tankerville J. Drew, 4543 Berlin avenue; Mrs. Aldin C. Garrison, 5340 Westminster place, and Frank P. Hays, 5260 Westminster place.

An Interesting Curriculum.

Among the society girls enrolled are the Misses Anna D. Boone, Buckingham Hotel; Mary H. Bullen, 17 Washington terrace; Violet Bullock, 16 Kingsbury place; Emily Hobart Cale, 12 Lenox place; Elise M. Pettus, 4373 Westminster place; Zoe Schotten, Buckingham Hotel; Annie Laurie Warmack, St. Regis Apartments, and Mildred McCluney, 4427 Westminster place.

The curriculum, which has had such attraction as to draw hundreds of prominent women to the classroom, is interesting in its variety. In art, there are studies in Greek architecture, and in the methods, material and design in art. In economics, there are courses in child study, the economic position of women, municipal government and problems, and social progress and problems.

War Lectures Discontinued.

The mathematical courses comprise algebra, analytic and descriptive geometry and problems of astronomy. The science courses are in botany, chemistry, geology, physics and food analysis. The biggest division is under the heading, "Language and Literature," and includes the following courses: "American Literature," "Shakspeare's Tragedies," "Middle-high German Literature," "Homer and Herodotus," "Culture History of Rome" and "French Literature," besides elementary French, German and Latin. Because of the war, the courses in the French and German languages and literature are especially popular.

One of the most interesting features announced has been discontinued—a series of lectures upon the European war by Prof. Roland G. Usher, author of the famous book, "Pan-Germanism." It was feared that the lectures, expressing the author's own opinions, might transgress President Wilson's injunctions concerning neutrality. For the same reason, it is explained, other colleges have canceled proposed courses dealing with the war. Prof. Usher is however, conducting a course on "Modern Democracy."

MOTORMAN WHOSE CAR KILLED A MAN NEVER ARRESTED

Police Let Lawrence De Clue Walk Off After Coroner's Jury Finds He Was Careless.

The police have not yet arrested Motorman Lawrence De Clue of the Wellston line, who stands charged by a Coroner's jury with criminal carelessness for having turned his back while his car ran at high speed into a wagon at Nineteenth and Morgan streets at 6 p. m., last Thursday, killing Christian Buehler and injuring George Wahle.

Not even an order issued yesterday by Samuel B. McPheeters, President of the Police Board, has interrupted the time-honored courtesy shown United Railways employes by exempting them from the customary arrest and bond that is imposed on drivers of automobiles, wagons or other vehicles, who participate in a serious accident.

When DeClue was brought to the Carr Street Station Thursday night by Patrolmen Storm and Putnam, he was not booked for police court and compelled to give bond. Instead, Acting-Lieutenant Dennis Gleason signed an official report which says DeClue was not arrested, "because as far as we have been able to learn the accident was unavoidable."

McPheeters Ordered Arrests.

Early last summer, on complaint of the Post-Dispatch that police station "trials" were being accorded United Railways employes, President McPheeters of the board issued an "oral order" directing that motormen were to be arrested at the end of their trips following every serious accident. For more than two years there had not been a single arrest of a motorman recorded, it had been learned by the traffic committee of the Civic League. Appeals to the Police Board by this committee had brought no resuts and the Post-Dispatch made an inquiry at the request of the committee which showed that its complaint had been understated if anything.

When informed of the Coroner's jury action in the De Clue case, McPheeters acknowledged that his "oral order" had been violated by the failure to arrest De Clue and have him tried in a court of law instead of giving him a "station trial." He said he would investigate the matter thoroughly and announce his conclusion.

At his home in the evening, McPheeters told a reporter he had investigated and had instructed Chief Young to arrest the motorman and renew his instructions to the various commanding officers in the districts.

The charge against De Clue was preferred by the Coroner's jury on the testimony of J. F. Gillaspie, 1111 North Seventh street. Gillaspie testified he was seated in De Clue's car, about three seats from the front, and saw the motorman turn to adjust a window curtain at his rear as the car approached Nineteenth street on Morgan He said De Clue had turned off the current but had not set the brakes and the car ran at high speed into the two-horse wagon driven by Buehler. Buehler died almost instantly, and Wahle was sent to the city hospital, but has been discharged from that institution. One of the horses had to be shot after the collision.

Buehler was 55 years old and lived at 1915 Warren street. Wahle lives at 1640 North Nineteenth stret. Motorman De Clue lives at 1526 Bacon street.

DeClue attended the inquest, but made no statement. Ot its conclusion he left the Coroner's office without objection on the part of patrolmen present. Deputy Coroner Henry Fath, who conducted the inquest, later notified the police that DeClue had been charged with criminal carelessness. The Coroner can only detain persons through the assistance of the police.

Chief Young when asked late last night if he had been directed by McPheeters to have DeClue arrested, said he had received no such order. When informed of this reply, McPheeters told a reporter that he had directed the chief in geenral terms to have the rule enforced in this case and to issue anew the old order to every district.

"The motorman should have been arrested whe nbrought to the station," said McPheeters, "and he should have ben arrested yesterday just as soon as the Coroner notified the department of the jury's action I presume the officers are looking for the motorman now."

CHILD RUN DOWN BY AN AUTO AS SHE LEAVES CAR

An automobile driven by Mrs. William J. Steinwender of 4943 Laclede avenue ran down 8-year-old Alice Braznell, of 6420 Lloyd avenue, at King's highway and Manchester avenue, about 5:30 p. m. yesterday.

With her mother, Mrs. George Braznell, the child had left a Taylor car, and running around the rear end, sprang into the automobile's path. Mrs. Steinwender took the girl and her mother in her car and drove them to a physician's office. He said the child was only bruised.

Mrs. Steinwender was taken to the Magnolia Avenue Police Station, but was released when Mrs. Braznell declined to prosecute.

SAYS PROFESSOR TEACHES INFIDELITY AT PRINCETON

"The Presbyterian" Joins in Attack on Lucius H. Miller, Head of Bible Department.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 17.—Prof. Lucius H. Miller, head of the department of Bible instruction in Princeton University, is charged with teaching "Infidelity" by the Presbyterian, a national weekly organ of that denomination, edited by the Rev. Dr. David H. Kennedy, who has joined in the attack being made on Prof. Miller.

The Presbyterian asserts that parents who permit their sons to take up the Bible course at Princeton yield them up to the "baldest infidelity."

"Those who join the class of Prof. Miller will be instilled with infidelity, both as to the scriptures and our Lord Jesus Christ," says the editorial. "He believes in the divinity of neither and has publicly declared his unbelief. We know that to such teaching the money and energy of Princeton is devoted and the sons of Evangelical believers are exposed."

Not only with the idea of securing a position with a salary of $60 to $90 per month, but because it is a stepping stone to larger and better things. Many railroad officials receive very large salaries, and it is interesting to note that many of the men who are receiving the largest salaries are men who started as telegraph operators. For 30 years this school has been qualifying young men for these positions, and they are now found on every railroad and telegraph line in this part of the country. Many of them hold important positions. We can do the same for you. Call or write today. SOUTHWESTERN RAILROAD TELEGRAPH SCHOOL, 410-416 Granite Bldg., 406 Market st., St. Louis, Mo.

THINK this over and consider it. You have a vacant lot, you can not live on it and it brings you no interest and besides you have to pay taxes on same and the longer you keep the lot the more you lose; now one of our clients has a house and lot in good locality, for which he has no use because he wants to leave town; let us know where your lot is; we might induce him to take your lot as part payment for the house and you will then live in your own house and will be better off than you are today.
TOMBRIDGE AGENCY, 509 Chestnut st.

KINGSLAND COURT

Think this over: A 6-room and alcove slate-roof residence in a restricted private residence place (4200 S. Grand av.), convenient to car lines, churches and schools; sale price $5750; easiest of terms to reliable parties. We have several of these high-class homes left and are anxious to move them before the winter sets in. Let us figure with you on one of these beautiful homes and we can show you the folly of paying rent. Or we will take your vacant lot as part payment, or take your flat or other investment property in trade. Submit anything—let's talk it over. We mean business. Remember this: These homes have large attic, brick and cut stone porch, tile bath, hardwood floors, hot-water heat, with d. and t. system (self-regulating), Dutch dining room, large reception hall, wall safe, combination fixtures, copper screens and shades, wine cellar, etc.; 1 block from new $1,000,000 Grover Cleveland High School. Take Grand or Bellefontaine car to Grand and Meramec, then a few feet south of Kingsland court. Salesman there daily from 2 to 6. You'll be surprised. "SEE US."

CENTRAL

Better Future } { Lower Figure

We can interest you in the northwest corner of Beaumont and Pine, a corner the owner will dispose of at a special figure for quick action. This is cheaper ground now than similar corners on Olive or Locust, but Pine has been reconstructed, is becoming a motor thoroughfare, and the central parkway would mean a tremendous advance for this corner.

Altogether it's the sort of piece you'd buy if you could get it cheap enough. Let us show you that you can.

MAN FLEECED OF $47 IN VANDEVENTER PLACE

Stranger Takes Him to See St. Louis Mansions and They Find Coin Game.

Vandeventer place was the stylish setting given yesterday afternoon by two confidence men to the comedy in which they fleeced John Klippel, a clerk of Saint Fort, Ind.

The Hoosier was strolling about Union Station at noon, waiting until his train home was due, when he saw another man, similarly unoccupied. After they had passed each other several times, the stranger spoke to Klippel and suggested they go and see St. Louis' magnificent residence district.

They took a car and Klippel was guided into Vandeventer place. While he was looking at the mansions, a third man joined them. He explained he had had an engagement to meet a society belle, but that she had failed to keep the appointment, making him so desperate that he was ready to match half dollars with anyone. Klippel's companion took up the challenge, and ringing his coins down on the sidewalk, proceeded to "lose" $57. He then turned to Klippel and asked him to back him, promising to repay him when they returned downtown. Klippel obliged him to the extent of all his money, $47, which was lost, and then put up his watch against a $10 bill. The watch went the way of the money, and the two men, bidding their victim goodday, walked briskly away. Some time later Klippel decided to relate his adventure to a policeman.

CHURCHILL TELLS WHY BRITISH WERE SENT TO ANTWERP

Answering Criticisms, Declares City Could Have Held Out Some Time Longer.

THEIR HELP VALUABLE

Thinks Loss of Men Interned in Holland Does Not Call for Censure.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, who has been severely criticised in some quarters for dispatching naval brigades to Antwerp to assist in the defense of that fortress, has sent these organizations a congratulatory message on their return, which is made public by the Admiralty. The First Lord defends the action taken, and says:

"The loss of a portion of the First Brigade through a mistake in no way reflects upon the quality or character of the division.

"The brigades of Royal Marines, throughout the operations, sustained fully by their firmness, discipline and courage, the traditions of the corps.

"It is not necessary to say more than this. The naval brigades bore themselves admirably under the artillery fire of the enemy, and it is to be regretted that no opportunity of closer contact with his infantry was afforded them.

Reasons for Choice.

"The despatch of the naval brigades to Antwerp has interrupted, for the time, the progress of their instruction and training. They were chosen because the need of them was urgent; because mobile troops could not be spared for fortress duties; because they were nearest and could be embarked the quickest, and because their training, although incomplete, was as far advanced as that of a large portion, not only of the forces defending Antwerp but of the enemy's forces attacking.

"The naval division was sent to Antwerp, not as an isolated incident, but as a part of a large operation for the relief of that city. Other and more powerful considerations prevented this from being carried through. The defense of the inner lines of Antwerp could have been maintained for some days, and the naval division withdrew only when ordered to do so, in obedience to the general strategic situation, and not on account of an attack or pressure by the enemy.

"The prolongation of the defense, due to the arrival of the division, enabled the ships in the harbor to be rendered useless, and many steps of importance to be taken.

Value of Delay.

"It is too early now to judge what effect the delaying, even for five or six days, of at least 60,000 Germans before Antwerp, may have had upon the fortunes of the general battle to the southward. It was certainly powerful and helpful, apart from the military experiences, which have been invaluable.

"The divisions have been witnesses of the ruthlessness of the German foe toward a small and innocent State. These facts should inspire all ranks to fit themselves in the shortest possible time for further service in the field, not merely as fortress, but as mobile, units.

"The Belgian people will never forget that the men of the Royal Navy and Royal Marines were with them in their darkest hour of misery, as, please God, they may also be with them when Belgium is restored to her own by the armies of the allies."

Going Out of Business.

Rothgiesser Bros., northwest corner Broadway and Chestnut, one of the old clothing and furnishing establishments of this city, are quitting the retail business in St. Louis. Due to their over 30 years of business dealings, they have had numerous offers from various large stores to purchase their remaining stock, which have been refused, because the Rothgiessers prefer giving their patrons the advantage of savings at all times. Mr. Louis Rothgeisser, president, said that they would maintain the reputation of their firm and quit with a sale in which even price-restricted lines are being sacrificed, because everything must go.

Only 36 days remain in which to dispose of almost $62,000 worth of merchandise. Rothgiesser Bros. started originally in a small store 30 years or more ago on South Broadway. Their growth has been constant and their going out of business at this time will be keenly felt by their thousands of followers. They make an especial appeal to all their old friends, whom they want to participate in the sale now going on.

4-ACRE UNION AVENUE SITE SOLD FOR $17,000

Holbrook-Blackwelder Co. Financing Erection of Manufacturing Plant on Property.

The Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Trust Co. has effected the sale of four acres of ground on Union avenue, at the northern terminus of the viaduct which has just been built over the Terminal Railroad tracks on Union avenue.

This property is connected with the Terminal Railroad Association tracks by a switch line. The sale price was $17,000 and the purchaser was the Martha Real Estate Co. Holbrook-Blackwelder are now financing a manufacturing plant to be built by the purchaser.

This property extends from Union avenue to Calvary avenue, and contains about four acres of ground. The new plant will cover the entire property.

ENGLAND BEGINS A STRICT WATCH ON "ALIEN ENEMIES"

Restaurant Is Raided in London, and German and Austrian Owners Are Detained.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The authorities are taking more stringent measures against alien enemies who remain undetained in England. This afternoon the police raided a large restaurant owned and managed by Germans and Austrians. These were taken to a detention camp.

Even those who were recently naturalized are being detained for an examination. The agitation against permitting natives of hostile countries to continue their vocations here is growing as reports come in of alleged operations of German spies in Antwerp before that city fell.

At the American embassy today an emphatic denial was made of the charge that "Americans are being imprisoned in England, although carrying passports," as was asserted in a Berlin dispatch sent to New York yesterday.

Americans Held for Inquiry.

The embassy statement was: "No American citizens whose identity as such has been clearly established, have been imprisoned in England, so far as the Ambassador is aware, except for offenses against English law. That is to say, a good many Americans suspected of being enemy aliens, have been detained pending an investigation into their nationality, but none have been held longer than was necessary for assurances to be received from diplomatic or consular representatives that they were entitled to claim American citizenship."

It was pointed out that this establishing of American citizenship is difficult in some cases. For instance, the embassy received a frantic letter about a woman, born in America, and whose forefathers were Americans for generations, who had been subjected to indignities on registering herself with the police. An investigation showed that the woman had married a German and therefore came clearly in the class of "enemy aliens."

Obtained German Passport.

One man in a detention camp claimed to be an American citizen and complained about his arrest until it was found that his only claim to being an American was that he took out papers certifying to his intention to become naturalized 10 years ago. Two months ago he obtained a German passport.

Because some Americans here fear a German invasion, the embassy does not consider that a valid reason for departing from its new rule regarding the passports which have been issued by Ambassador Page. This ruling, posted at the headquarters of the American Relief Committee a few days ago, explains:

"The American Ambassador has been informed by the British Government that His Majesty's authorities do not require passports from American citizens for residence or travel in or exit from the United Kingdom. The Ambassador will, therefore, no longer issue passports except in cases where it can be clearly established that they are necessary."

May Appeal to Washington.

Although that was the announced attitude of the embassy there was a modification to the effect that it might be changed should the fear prove to be based on more substantial grounds than it now is.

A number of resident Americans have been insisting that the Ambassador has no right to refuse them passports if they can establish citizenship whether by birth or naturalization.

They are considering taking to Washington the question whether Ambassador Page has a right to refuse a passport to a citizen.

Germans Arrested in Paris; Some Are Sent to the Provinces.

PARIS, Oct. 17.—Sixty-four German men, from 18 to 25 years old, were arrested in Paris today. Though of military age, they had been allowed to remain here under permits issued to such aliens.

Two more groups of Germans, Austrians and Hungarians were sent to the provinces this afternoon. One group consisted of 350 old men, women and children and the other of 150 men varying in age from 17 to 60 years.

BORDEAUX, Oct. 17.—The French Government, pursuing the campaign against German-owned businesses, today seized six concerns. One was a department store and the others wine establishments.

PEN RECORD IN NATIONAL LAYING CONTEST BROKEN

Average Production Per Hen Higher—American Birds Show Improvement.

By T. E. QUISENBERRY.
Director of State Poultry Experiment Station.

MOUNTAIN GROVE, Mo., Oct. 17.—The pen record has been broken in the tenth month, also the average number of eggs laid by each hen is in excess of any record made in any of the previous national egg laying contests. This is by far the best contest we have ever held, and the hens are going to average at least 20 eggs each more than they averaged in the first contest, three years ago. This shows the good results coming from such contests and from the interest and attention which poultry raisers have manifested in selection and breeding for egg production in the past few years. If this increase in the average hold good throughout the State, it means an increase of over $5,000,000 each year in Missouri alone, to say nothing about other states.

We have been more than pleased to have foreign birds compete with our American pens, for they have stimulated us to greater things. While foreign birds seemed destined to win all the prizes the first two years, it is not so much so today. We find good individual and good pen records being made by Missouri birds and by pens from other states. Outside of the one English pen, Missouri and American birds have been in the lead at all times. The Rock Island reds, Wyandottes, barred Plymouth Rocks and the other large breeds have been crowding the Leghorns for first place, which shows that the larger varieties can lay as well as any variety if properly selected and bred.

The English pen of white Leghorns got such a lead and made such consistent records each month of the year that they made a record which was hard to equal. The trouble with the average pen is that they have a few record-breaking hens and then they usually have a few hens that lay but very few eggs, and this brings the average down and causes the pen to lose out. We think it is up to most of us to so fix the egg-laying characteristics in our flocks that they will practically all make a good average egg yield for each month of the year. It will be so when we have continued our selection and breeding for egg production a few more years. This English pen is apparently all going to lay over 200 eggs each. All but two out of the 10 hens are already over 200 eggs. Another only lacks four eggs of that number, and the other is only a few eggs behind. This is consistent laying. Not a bad hen in the pen. At the present time the 10 hens average over 213 eggs each for only 10 months. The Rhode Island reds, the Wyandottes, Plymouth Rocks, Minorcas, Orpingtons and others have also made good averages. All the good qualities are not confined to any one variety. You can take your choice of any of the leading varieties, and by using a little common sense and gumption, can get satisfactory results.

The English white Wyandottes made the best record for September. Also buff Wyandottes, white Plymouth Rocks and s. c. reds, as well as American, New Zealand and English leghorns, did well for last month. The highest scores were as follows:

Pen 24, white Wyandottes, England, 201 eggs; pen 69, s. c. white Leghorns, Kentucky, 190 eggs; pen 108, s. c. white Leghorns, New Zealand, 189 eggs; pen 18, white Wyandottes, Pennsylvania, 178 eggs; pen 57, white Plymouth Rocks, Texas, 177 eggs; pen 65, s. c. white Leghorns, Missouri, 173 eggs; pen 0, s. c white Leghorns, England, 172 eggs; pen 79, s. c. white Leghorns, Pennsylvania, 170 eggs; pen 25, buff Wyandottes, Missouri, 170 eggs; pen 39, s. c. reds, Missouri, 166 eggs; pen 75, s. c. white Leghorns, England, 166 eggs.

There are a number of hens in many of the varieties which have laid over 200 eggs in 10 months. The Nebraska hen is still in the lead. The highest hen in each variety is as follows:

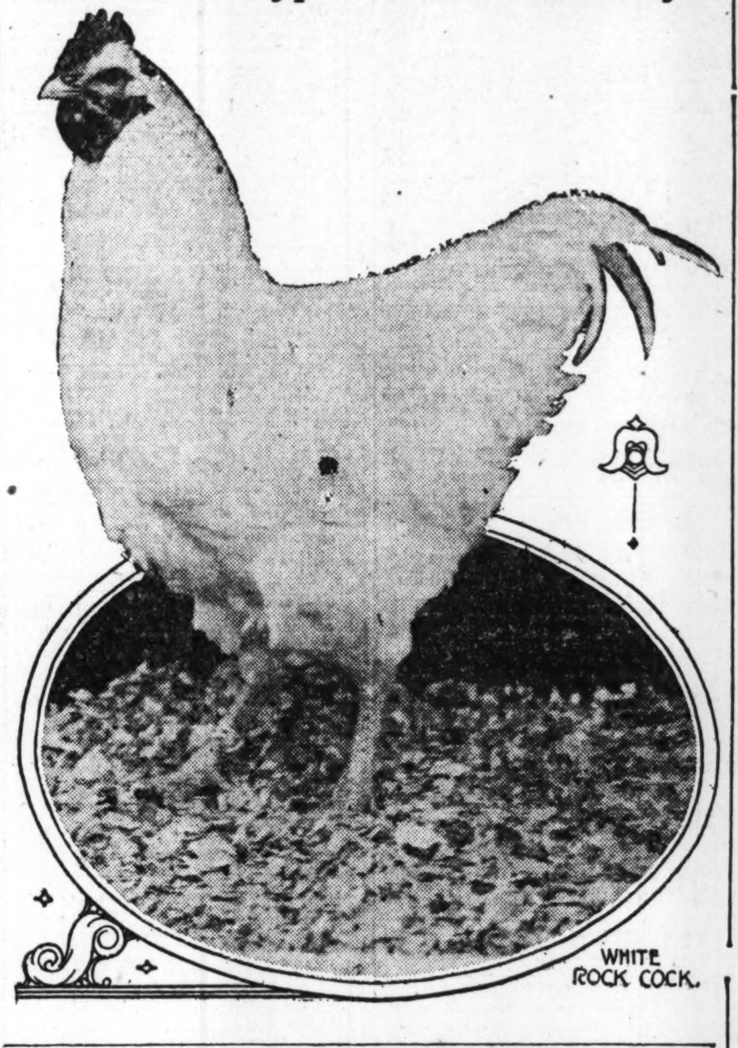
611.	S. c. White Leghorns, Neb.	239 eggs
566.	Barred Plymouth Rock, Io.	228 eggs
180.	White Wyandottes, Penn.	222 eggs
476.	S. C. Reds, Missouri	220 eggs
456.	R. C. Reds, Missouri	215 eggs
576.	White Plymouth Rocks, Texas	215 eggs
335.	Black Orpington, Nebraska	214 eggs
24.	Ancona, Missouri	210 eggs
A13.	Campine, New Jersey	199 eggs
236.	Silver Wyandotte, Missouri	198 eggs
446.	S. C. Black Minorca, Missouri	196 eggs
42.	S. C. Buff Leghorn, Michigan	195 eggs
B32.	Buff Orpington, Missouri	192 eggs
304.	White Orpington, Missouri	192 eggs
389.	White Orpington, Pennsylvania	192 eggs
524.	Buff Plymouth Rock, Missouri	191 eggs
310.	Black Langshan, Missouri	190 eggs
256.	Buff Wyandotte, Missouri	188 eggs
141.	Rhinelander, California	171 eggs
429.	R. C. Black Minorca, Missouri	158 eggs

PRATT ENTRIES GET MANY FIRST PRIZES

The Pratt Food Co.'s experiment station at Philadelphia and Morton, Pa., made a clean sweep of every possible first and second prize in the Rose Comb Black Minorca class at the poultry show of the Hagerstown, Md., fair. They also won three firsts out of a possible five in Single Comb Black Minorcas. The Pratt Food Co. had entered but 22 birds and each one secured a winning ribbon.

In the White Rock class the Pratt Food Co. entered a pen of birds and won a first.

Excellent Type of Fine Variety



WHITE ROCK COCK.

Poultry Problems Solved.

Scabby Combs.

Can you tell me why my pullets and cockerels have dry, dark scabs form on their combs? Some of them also have their eyes swollen shut. Also tell me what kind of house is best. Last winter I used an open front, a fourth of the south front being open, half glass, the rest boards. My birds had colds and roup all winter. My Leghorns don't lay like they ought to.—Constant Reader, St. Louis, Mo.

Your birds undoubtedly have sorehead or chicken pox. See replies to W. S. G., Madison, Ill., and J. R., St. Louis. We could not recommend a better house than the open-front type, but of course they must be tight on all sides except the south, and dry. If there are any cracks or holes there will be drafts and colds and roup will result. We believe it would improve your house to take out part of the glass and leave this space open. A curtain should always be provided, to drop on cold nights and stormy days. The feeds you described in your letter are all right and ought to bring the eggs, if you have a laying strain and the birds are healthy. Of course, the ailing birds can not be expected to lay in that condition.

Early Molting.

Why do some hens molt as early as August and others not until November? Can they be fed so as to make them molt not later than Oct. 1, and if so, how is it done?—A. R., Palm street, St. Louis, Mo.

Just why one hen will molt sooner than another is too much of a mystery for this department to solve. It is one of nature's secrets. The molting season can be controlled to some extent by feeding. When the birds first show signs of losing feathers, many poultrymen begin feeding heavily on green food and cut down on the grain ration, especially corn and kafir. The chickens are even allowed to go a little hungry. These practices tend to loosen the feathers and hurry the molt along. Tame sunflower seeds, and a little epsom salts in the drinking water once or twice a week, are also beneficial at this period. When the molt is finished plenty of nourishing food is given to bring the birds back into good condition for laying in the shortest possible time.

General Information.

Would eggs from a lame hen be all right for hatching? How often should dropping boards be cleaned? Would it be all right to let ducks run with hens? How high should ducks roost and nests be placed?—A. B., St. Louis, Mo.

If the lameness has not impaired the vitality of the hen there is no particular reason why her eggs should not be used for hatching. The oftener dropping boards are cleaned, the better. The accumulations should at least not be allowed to remain longer than a few days at a time. If there is time to do it, it will pay to clean them off every morning. Ducks and chickens should be kept separate if it is at all possible to do so, because of different feeds required and different feeding habits. Let the ducks roost on the ground floor of their shelter, and this is also the best place for their nests. But their roosting quarters should be dry. Let them have straw or other dry litter to roost on.

Sore Combs.

I have a number of fine R. I. cockerels whose combs are broken out in black places. Sometimes their heads are swollen, too. Can you tell me where I can get the last copy of "Red Hen Tales," by W. H. Card?—Mrs. C. L. R., Sedalia, Mo.

Are you sure your cockerels have not been fighting and that these marks are not the scars of battle? If so, then the remedy would be self-evident. If not due to this, apply treatment recommended for chicken pox elsewhere on this page. You can get a copy of "Red Hen Tales" from any poultry supply house. Card is secretary of the Rhode Island Red Society and the "Tales" is the official publication.

Growths on Bills.

I have some Barred Rock pullets that have had hard lumps about the size of peas form on the upper side of their bills. These lumps are black in appearance. I removed the lump from one and the bill underneath was soft. There are no lumps on head or comb and no discharge from nostrils or eyes.—W. S. G., Madison, Ill.

If these growths are scablike, or sores, wash them with carbolic soapsuds and soften with vaseline until they drop off. It is possible that they are of a warty nature and harmless. If so, would leave them alone.

Chicken Pox.

I have some Plymouth Rock chickens that have hard, callous substances about their bills, and the odor from their throats is very foul. I also had two other birds that appeared to be in perfect health on going to roost at night, but next morning they were dead. I cut one open but could find nothing wrong with it. What causes these ailments?—J. R., St. Louis, Mo.

See the reply to W. S. G., Madison, Ill. It is also possible that your birds have the chicken-pox or sorehead. Small, yellow ulcers about beak, nostrils and other parts of the head characterize this disease. In addition to the advice given W. S. G. would isolate all ailing birds and disinfect the quarters, as this disease is very contagious. It would be difficult indeed to tell what killed your other two birds, as any one of several ailments might be responsible.

Egg Eating.

I have about 150 young hens and they have started to eat their eggs. This has happened to me before and I killed all the offenders. What would be your advice in this case?—L. B. F., St. Louis, Mo.

Egg-eating may be merely a bad habit acquired through picking at a broken egg or it may be due to a craving for something that the birds do not get. In case it is the latter, a cure may be effected in most instances by feeding more nourishing food—meat scraps, green bone, etc. Also give them plenty of green feed which at this season may include cabbage, turnips, mangels, alfalfa hay, etc. Feed less corn and kafir and more meat and vegetables. Darkened nests will also break up the habit in most cases. Have the entrance to nests at the back where it is dark and cover the other sides. Another remedy is to open an egg at one end and stir in some cayenne pepper, then stick a piece of cloth over the opening and let the egg-eaters have it. Many poultrymen also leave porcelain eggs lying about and keep the real eggs closely gathered. The hens soon get tired of picking at the imitations.

Colds are the forerunners of roup.

A bone cutter is worth all it costs and will soon pay for itself.

Change the nesting material often and burn the old litter.

Grit should be hard and sharp or else it will not be of much use to the birds.

"Luck" seems to hover around the clean poultry house and yards.

Missouri Show Will Be Held in St. Louis

St. Louis will have one of the half dozen greatest shows in the country Thanksgiving week. It will be a combination show, held under the joint auspices of the Missouri State Poultry Association and the St. Louis Association.

There is no place like a great poultry show for learning the characteristics of the different varieties. If you are a beginner and want ot know what first-class birds of your variety look like you will get the information by seeing this show. And best of all, you will learn much if you are an exhibitor. If you have birds you think are good, show them, if only one or two. If they don't win compare them with the winners.

The state-wide character of the show is shown by the fact that the secretary is Fred Crosby, 3251 Gilham road, Kansas City. Wire Crosby for information. T. E. Quisenberry, Mountain Grove, Mo., secretary of the Missouri State Poultry Association, is superintendent of the show.

A RUSSIAN BAYONET CHARGE

THIS first picture from the field of war in East Prussia to be drawn from material supplied by an eye-witness, represents a Russian bayonet charge against the German center on the evening of Aug. 26, between Korschen and Bartenstein.

When the Russians invaded Germany, W. R. Ames was manager of a large estate in East Prussia. Before making his escape he witnessed the charge through his field glasses. He said that 10,000 Germans were engaged against 15,000 Russians. After a bayonet charge the Germans fled, scattering into small parties. This picture was drawn by F. Matania, a special artist of the London Sphere, from a description furnished by Ames on his arrival in England.

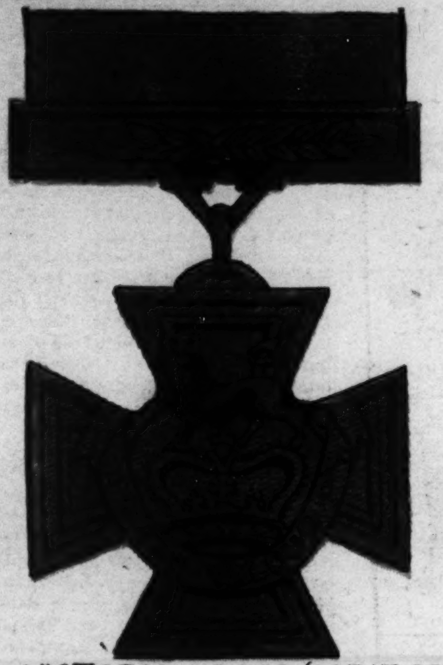
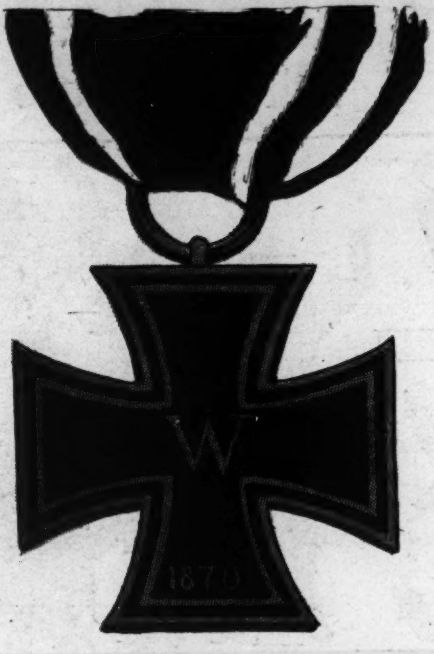
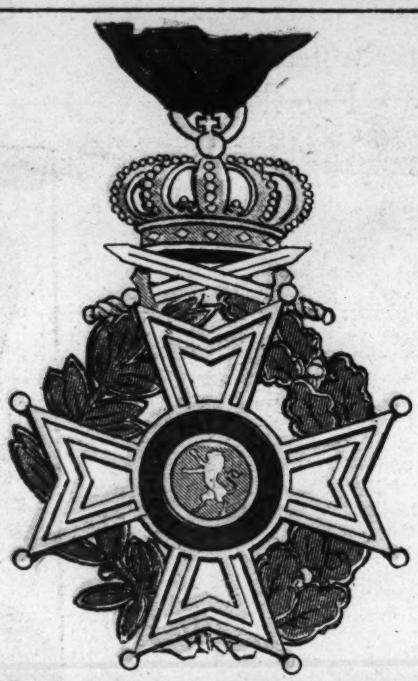
MEDALS WAR HEROES WIN



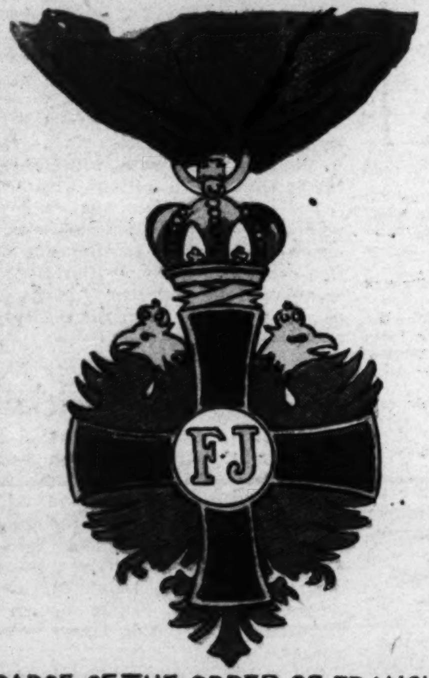
VICTORIA CROSS (GREAT BRITAIN)



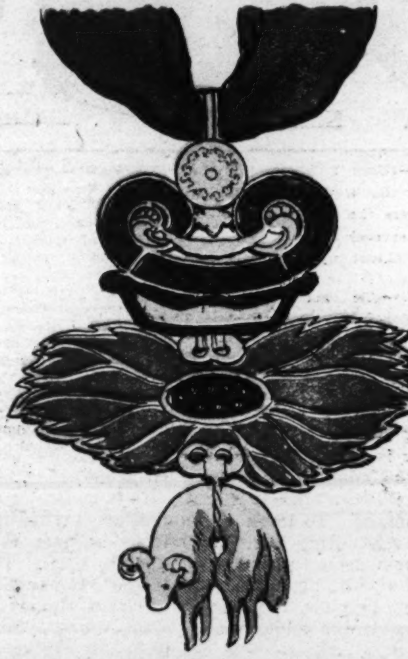
THE IRON CROSS (PRUSSIA)



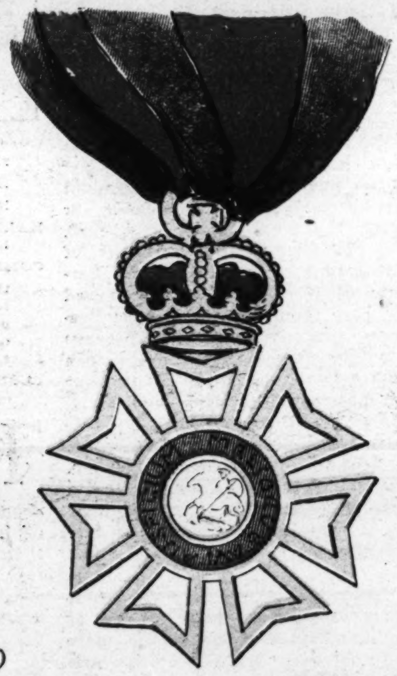
BADGE OF THE (MILITARY) ORDER OF LEOPOLD: REVERSE (BELGIUM



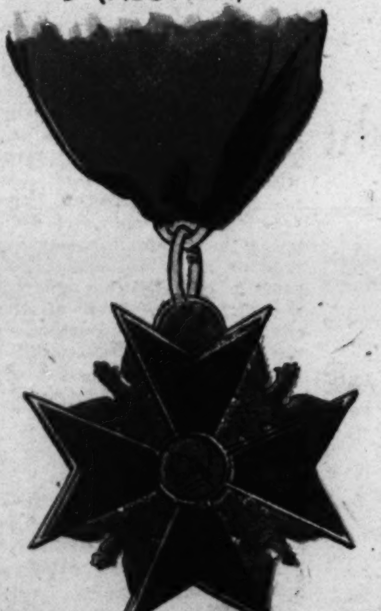
BADGE OF THE ORDER OF FRANCIS-JOSEPH (AUSTRIA)



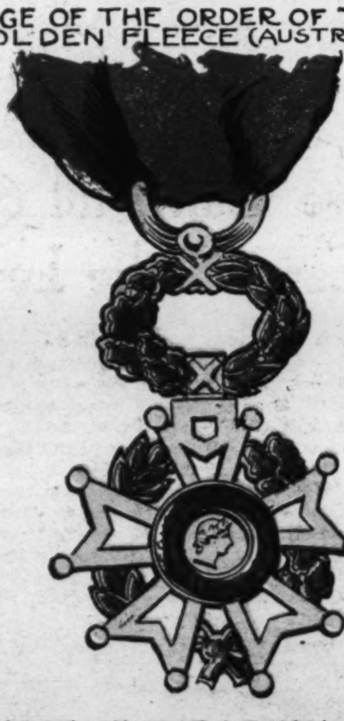
BADGE OF THE ORDER OF THE GOLDEN FLEECE (AUSTRIA HUNGARY)



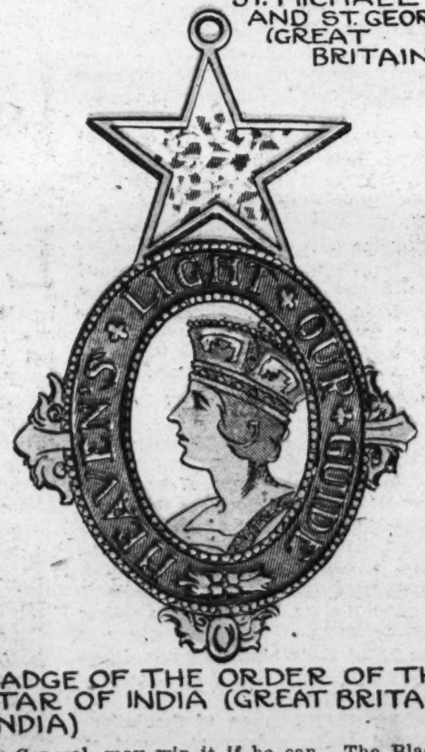
BADGE OF THE ORDER OF ST. MICHAEL AND ST. GEORGE (GREAT BRITAIN)



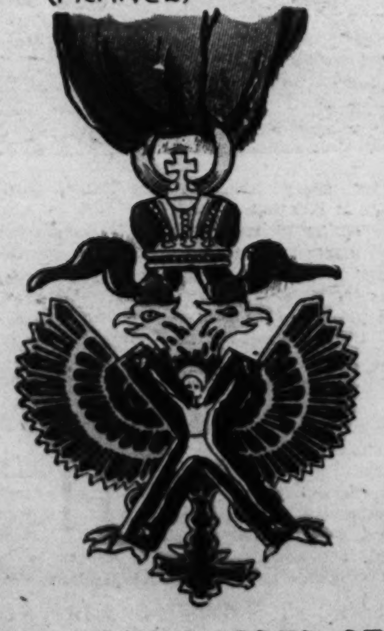
BADGE OF THE ORDER OF THE BLACK EAGLE (PRUSSIA)



BADGE OF THE LEGION OF HONOR (FRANCE)



BADGE OF THE ORDER OF THE STAR OF INDIA (GREAT BRITAIN, INDIA)



BADGE OF THE ORDER OF ST. ANDREW (RUSSIA)

MILITARY decorations as awards for conspicuous gallantry have long been coveted by soldiers as the highest honors to be won in the field. The Knights of St. John, or, as they afterwards were known, Knights Hospitallers and Knights of Malta, first used the Christian cross for this purpose and in later times military insignia for that reason have become known as "crosses," the cross vying for supremacy with the star and the eagle as a symbol of knightly valor. Each European country has its own badges to distinguish its heroes.

The most coveted badge in England is the Victoria Cross, which is awarded for extraordinary valor in the field. It is a simple cross, hung from a red ribbon for men in the army and on blue ribbon for those in the navy. An additional bar across the ribbon is added for every additional act that would entitle the holder to a cross.

The Order of the Garter is another British order, reserved for members of the royal families, certain of the nobility and a maximum of 25 knights. The crosses of St. Andrew, St. Michael and St. George are bestowed for extraordinary civil, military and political services to the British empire.

In Germany the goal of every soldier is the iron cross of Wilhelm I. It is bestowed for conspicuous service in the field [illegible] soldier, from the private to the commanding General, may win it if he can. The Black Eagle of Prussia may also be won on the battlefield and it carries with it a patent of nobility. It is, however, open only to the aristocracy. Other chief German decorations are the Order of Merit, the Crown, the Red Eagle (principally civilian) the Hohenzollern, the Lippe Cross of Honor, the Bavarian Merit, the Hessian Military Merit, the Saxon Military.

France honors civilian and soldier alike with the Cross of the Legion of Honor. One may obtain it by great constructive work in the arts of peace, or by bravery or intelligence in the moment of conflict.

Austria-Hungary values chiefly the Iron Crown, for the generality of soldiers, and the Golden Fleece for worthy citizens of exalted station. The Iron Crown was founded by Napoleon I, but was revived by Emperor Francis I. It has three ranks: those of the Grand Cross, Commander, a higher rank, and Chevalier, highest of all. The order of Francis Joseph I is issued for civil merit.

Belgium decorates its deserving sons with the insignia of the order of Leopold I, founded in 1832. It is a reward for military, civil, architectural, literary and scientific achievement. It also has ascending grades, such as Grand Cross, Officer, Commander and Chevalier.

THE BEST POEM THE WAR HAS INSPIRED

AUGUST, 1914—By John Masefield

The author of "Everlasting Mercy," which Barrie pronounced "the finest literature of the year."

HOW still this quiet cornfield is tonight
By an intenser glow the evening falls,
Bringing, not darkness, but a deeper light;
Among the stooks a partridge covey calls.

The windows glitter on the distant hill;
Beyond the hedge the sheep-bells in the fold
Stumble on sudden music and are still;
The forlorn pinewoods droop above the wold.

An endless quiet valley reaches out
Past the blue hills into the evening sky;
Over the stubble, cawing, goes a rout
Of rooks from harvest, flagging as they fly.

So beautiful it is I never saw
So great a beauty on these Engilsh fields;
Touched, by the twilight's coming, into awe
Ripe to the soul and rich with summer's yields.

* * * * * *

These homes, this valley spread below me here,
The rooks, the tilted stacks, the beasts in pen,
Have been the heartfelt things, past-speaking dear
To unknown generations of dead men.

Who, century after century, held these farms,
And, looking out to watch the changing sky,
Heard, as we hear, the rumors and alarms
Of war at hand and danger pressing nigh.

And knew, as we know, that the message meant
The breaking off of ties, the loss of friends,
Death like a miser getting in his rent
And no new stones laid where the trackway ends;

The harvest not yet won, the empty bin,
The friendly horses taken from the stalls,
The fallow on the hill not yet brought in,
The cracks unplastered in the leaking walls;

Yet heard the news, and went discouraged home,
And brooded by the fire with heavy mind,
With such dumb loving of the Berkshire loam
As breaks the dumb hearts of the English kind.

Then sadly rose and left the well-loved Downs
And so, by ship to sea, and knew no more
The fields of home, the byres, the market towns,
Nor the dear outline of the English shore;

But knew the misery of the soaking trench,
The freezing in the rigging, the despair
In the revolting second of the wrench
When the blind soul is flung upon the air;

And died (uncouthly, most) in foreign lands
For some idea but dimly understood
Of an English city, never built by hands,
Which love of England prompted and made good.

* * * * * * * *

If there be any life beyond the grave
It must be near the men and things we love
Some power of quick suggestion how to save,
Touching the living soul as from above;
An influence from the Earth, from those dead hearts
So passionate once, so deep, so truly kind,
That in the living child the spirit starts
Feeling companioned still, not left behind.

Surely above these fields a spirit broods,
A sense of many watchers muttering near,
Of the lone Downland with the forlorn wood
Loved to the death, inestimably dear.

A muttering from beyond the veils of Death
From long dead men, to whom this quiet scene
Came among blinding tears with the last breath,
The dying soldier's vision of his Queen.

All the unspoken worship of those lives
Spent in forgotten wars at other's calls
Glimmers upon these fields where evening drives
Beauty like breath, so gently darkness falls;

Darkness that makes the meadows holier still,
The elm trees sadden in the hedge, a sigh
Moves in the beech-clump on the haunted hill,
The rising planets deepen in the sky,

And silence broods like spirit on the brae;
A glimmery moon begins, the moonlight runs
Over the grasses of the ancient way,
Rutted this morning by the passing guns.

Reading War News—One Man's Experience

By GERALD STANLEY LEE

Mr. Lee Addresses the Readers of the Sunday Post-Dispatch Magazine Every Sunday From This Page.

THE other day I woke up.

I have been dreaming since the war broke out. I have gone about in my sleep doing things—the things I usually do—but it seemed all the time to be somebody else that was doing them, and I was just tagging around.

But the other day I woke up.

It all came over me—what I had been letting the war do to me.

The sun is rising as usual. The chestnuts are ripening in the trees. Gasoline keeps making wheels go round. Electricity works as usual all day and all night. Cocks crow and dogs bark and horses go by in the street. Everything is being itself and fulfilling itself and quietly making the world go round—except me.

I have been eating and drinking and breathing War. I buy ten papers a day. I read in the streets and I read while I eat. The people I am with if there is a new headline near by, drop off the face of the earth. They are as though they were not. My whole being has been scooped up and drunk away with war. Now and then I would forget a minute perhaps. There would be a group of us and we would be swept off in sheer weariness, into a gale of laughter about nothing. Then I would see men rolling dead bodies up a hill to lie behind—those cold still entrenchments—and shoot, or I would wake in the night and remember out of deep sleep and listen to a roar three thousand miles away. I think of the gay little flaxen-hair children, I saw playing in the streets of Cologne, crying as if their hearts would break. I think of silent mothers * * * If I have time to eat I have time to read about the war. Why should I know whether there are peaches or cantaloupe upon my plate?

Then the other day, as I have said before, I woke up.

It occurred to me that it was about time, with a great absorbing event like this going on before my eyes, that I be of some use. Reading all day and all night about disasters that are happening to other people does not help them much. There must be some way of reading news about war which will put one in a position to help. I do not know how it is striking other people as they look back over what has been happening in the last few weeks, but with me it has been as if I were in the middle of some huge interminable, idle, helpless dime-novel. I have been profoundly and hopelessly absorbed day and night, but I have not helped the characters in the novel.

It was this that woke me up apparently—thinking how I could help. I began thinking out my own personal relation to the war, the relation of the war to my vision of human nature, my vision of the next hundred years and my vision of my own people and of the world.

It made a great difference to me in my reading of the war news when I began to slow my reading down and try to see the relation of what I was reading by my vision of human nature and of the next hundred years.

Everything became steadied. I noticed one or two things. I spent less time on papers themselves—on finding out what the news was and I spent more time in finding out the news about the news—in determining for myself what the news was for, and where it belonged and what it logically would do with me and with a world and, most of all, what is this news going to do with us—with us in the United States, and how are we going to assimilate it, understand it and act on it?

With this point of view in mind—this searching behind the news for news about the news, I have begun to get some satisfaction out of reading news about the war. Instead of being sucked up against the subject and flattened out into not knowing who I am by it, or where I am, or what I am doing I am steadied, while reading, into action. And when I read at table I know whether it is peaches or cantaloupe on my plate. It does not help Europe for me not to know whether it is peaches or cantaloupe on my plate. The way to help Europe is to think, and to think first; to get into the habit as soon as possible of knowing what I am about.

Perhaps this experience of mine in reading war news has something to do with all of us.

* * * * *

The most important thing that is happening in the world today is not what is happening to the men in the battlefield of Europe.

The most important thing that is happening in the world today is what is happening to us.

All that they can do is to kill each other.

They cannot decide anything by killing each other. They can decide possibly (which has nothing to do with the subject) which can kill the most. But even then, having spent a hundred thousand or two hundred thousand men on each side and forty millions dollars a day to decide who can kill the most, nobody except those who are dead will be in any position to help. The dead will help because they will be through fighting. They will be quiet and strong and assured. They will call out reverence and love. That will help. But the living will not help. They will be helpless and useless because they will be filled with rage for five hundred years—with the weakness and helplessness of rage.

So what is most important is not what is happening in Europe. But what is happening to us. We will have to decide the matter—unravel the five-hundred-year rage, and the way we decide—the ability we are to have to decide, to sit in judgment on the fate of a world, will depend on what is happening to us now from day to day, while we look on, upon the spirit and the insight with which we look on, on the deep still fair-mindedness, the daily hope, love and prayer, the daily fighting for truth with which we read our daily papers, which will make us strong when the real battle comes—the battle which will fold away the giant-little, roaring-futile helpless battles like the Aisne and the Marne into darkness and forgetfulness—that mighty battle in American thought, on American soil, that is soon to come for the peace of the world, for the continued existence of fearless men upon the earth.

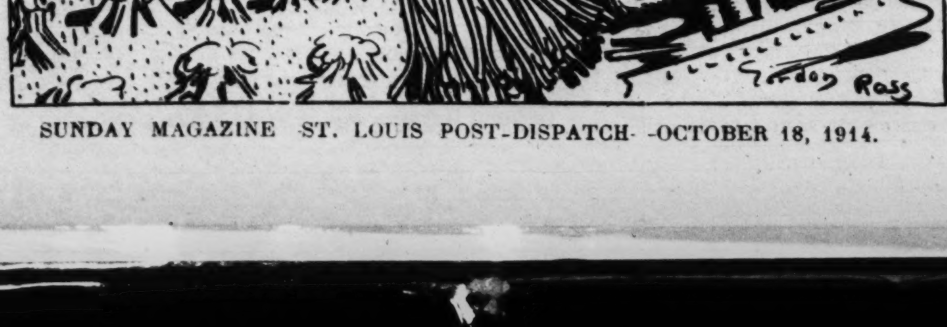
It is our American battle that is going to settle things. How are we daily schooling ourselves as we look on, drilling our hearts to wisdom, to self-control and quietness, reading the temperatures of the nations, keeping close in spirit to each of the nations, making them feel it and know it, so that they will turn to us at last as the only power on earth that shall supply the world with its breathing space. We must prepare ourselves in our thoughts and actions to make America the clearing house of all peoples. We will make our Capitol at Washington a kind of temple in which the tired nations come to think and to pray.

And then shall we save them, in their weariness and fear, from destroying themselves when they are too tired to destroy one another.

A great many things are happening in our minds underneath while we read up and down our columns of battles. Mighty faiths and indignations and hopes, and little mean unbeliefs. A great many questions come, questions about human nature and about the world. It is the mighty, daily task of American men today to pursue and face these questions; to arrange what is happening to us in our minds, and make our hearts ready to arrange a world, instead of reading one more rumor of one more twist or turn in a rumor of another blind, helpless, useless, wasted battle.

Battles always have to be taken back. Only men who undestand, who possess themselves and love others, do things. What other men are doing we might do. But God has given us 3000 miles of open sea. What America does with that open sea—its perspective, its freedom, its youth, joy, sunshine—its mighty-heartedness shall be the self-expression, the communion of America with all the peoples of the earth.

God save America!



NEW AND ODD THINGS IN SCIENCE

Ipecac Holds Out Hope to Sufferers From Pyorrhoea

IT looks as if a cure had at last been discovered for pyorrhoea alveolaris, or Riggs' disease. This trouble manifests itself by the formation of pockets of pus about the roots of the teeth, which become loose and eventually fall out. Ipecac seems to be the long-sought cure.

Two almost simultaneous announcements that an amoeba is always present in if not actually the cause of pyorrhoea led up to the trial of ipecac as a cure. Ipecac kills the amoeba coli, which is responsible for amoebic dysentery, and this fact suggested to Prof. Allen J. Smith and Dr. M. T. Barrett of the School of Medicine, University of Pennsylvania, that it might have a similar effect upon the amoeba of the mouth.

Prof. Smith and Dr. Barrett announced their researches into the causes and cure of pyorrhoea at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania State Dental Society on July 1. Prof Angelo Chiavaro of Rome, Italy, read a paper on his investigations at the meeting of the American Dental Society of Europe in Paris on July 20. And at a meeting of the Orleans Parish Medical Society on Sept. 14 Dr. C. C. Bass announced the results of experiments conducted by him in collaboration with Dr. F. M. Jones at Tulane University.

A large number of vegetable bacteria—notably those of pneumonia and of pus formation—have been found in the pockets of pyorrhoea. The occasional presence of amoebae—real animals—in the mouth has been known since 1862, but has not been looked upon as of much importance. Drs. Smith and Barret examined 46 cases of pyorrhoea and in every case found the endamoeba buccalis in the pus cavities. Prof. Chiavaro hunted for the same amoeba in the mouth of 68 patients in the Royal Dispensary at the Umberto I. Polyclinic and found it in every case of pyorrhoea and in the soft white deposits on sound teeth which are not kept in good hygienic condition. He never found it in carious cavities in which the process of decay was still going on. As this process is due to acid he concluded that the amoeba was killed by acid.

Drs. Smith and Barrett describe their amoeba as varying in size from six or eight micromillimeters to 30 or more micromillimeters in diameter. They project only a few pseudopods at one time, and these are lobular or like thick fingers. The nucleus is invisible until they are stained. They contain numerous food vacuoles, which are well seen in the larger specimens, and these contain fragments of both white and red corpuscles.

Prof. Chiavaro's description is much the same, only he thinks the contents of the food vacuoles are the debris of bacteria, from which he draws the conclusion that these amoebae help in disinfecting the mouth. This conclusion, of course, is exactly opposite to that found by Smith and Barrett, who, while not prepared to say positively that the amoebae are the cause of the infection, are inclined to believe so, because of the uniformity of their occurrence in the pus cavities and their failure to find them in really healthy mouths.

An additional reason for their belief is their success in effecting cures by the use of ipecac in the form of injections of one-half per cent solution of emetin hydrochloride. They force a blunt-pointed hypodermic syringe into the pockets, its point passing directly into the wall of the pockets, and as they withdraw it they squirt the solution until the pocket is entirely filled.

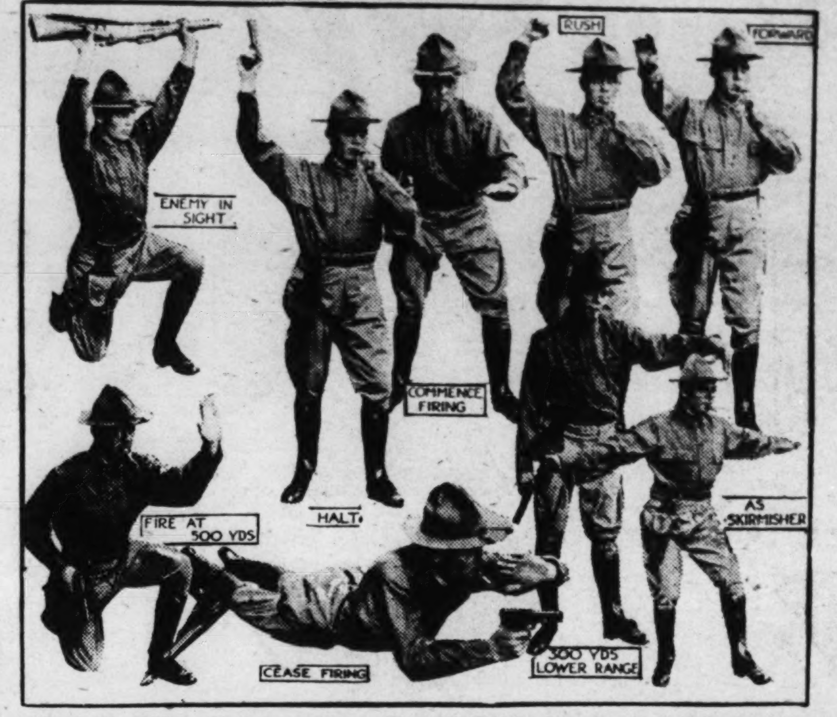
In some of their cases the pus disappeared in 24 hours. In all cases it vanished within three days.

"Whether the cessation of the lesions is destined to be permanent cannot at present be stated," said Dr. Barrett in his Philadelphia address, "but in the experience of the writer no other method of dealing with these peridental suppurations has shown any influence."

Dental Cosmos, which publishes these addresses in full, remarks editorially that "emetin appears to have in pyorrhoea treatment a therapeutic action of far greater efficiency than any other medicament known to dental materia medica."

ELECTRIC switching locomotives of unusual design have been placed in service for sorting and distributing cars at the ore docks at Cleveland, O. These locomotives run on a narrow-gauge track, alongside and parallel with that on which the cars to be distributed are standing, and handle the cars by means of a pusher arm that is pivoted to the side of the locomotive.

Signals Order Movements in Din of Battle



ENEMY IN SIGHT—(Used by patrols). The rifle is held over the head in both hands; if in great numbers the rifle is raised and lowered rapidly several times.

HALT—The arm is thrust up vertically and held there.

COMMENCE FIRING—The arm is raised to the waist, palm down, and swept back and forth in front of the body. If this is repeated while firing is going on it means to fire faster or slower, according to the speed of the sweep of the hand.

RUSH—The arm is thrust up rapidly to its full length several times.

FORWARD—The arm is held horizontally in the direction of the march.

FIRE AT FIVE HUNDRED YARDS—The fist is opened and closed, displaying the number of fingers corresponding to the hundreds of yards; in this case, five fingers for five hundred yards.

CEASE FIRING—Raise the forearm and swing it several times in front of the face.

CHANGE ELEVATION OF RANGE—The amount of range to be decreased is indicated by the number of fingers pointed downward; in this case three fingers mean three hundred yards less.

AS SKIRMISHERS—Both arms are raised laterally until horizontal.

TODAY there is a signal for everything to be done by soldiers battling. Officers silently signal their command. To learn these signals is the part of every recruit at drill. To know them perfectly and obey them readily is the only hope for success in battle; even, perhaps, the fate of a nation; very possibly the soldier's own life.

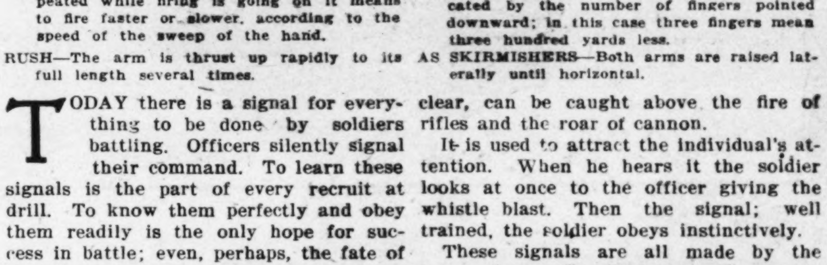
Uncle Sam's military experts have worked out a set of arm signals for use when the din of shot and shell drowns all other sound—all, save one. A whistle blast, experiment has shown, shrill and clear, can be caught above the fire of rifles and the roar of cannon.

It is used to attract the individual's attention. When he hears it the soldier looks at once to the officer giving the whistle blast. Then the signal; well trained, the soldier obeys instinctively.

These signals are all made by the arms alone. Possibly the officer may have his revolver in his hand at the time, or his hat. If a noncommissioned officer is giving the command he may be holding his rifle—this makes no difference. And all the signals may be given either lying down, kneeling or standing; in fact, from any position.

Locomotive Can Pull 640 Freight Cars on the Level

LARGEST of all locomotives is the Matt H. Shay, just completed for the Erie Railway by the Baldwins. It is called a "centipede" by the men, not because of its more than one hundred feet of length (105 feet), but because of its numerous driving wheels. There are 24 driving wheels on six cylinders, two complete sets under the engine and one set under the tender, the weight of the latter being utilized for adhesion. This is the most novel feature of its construction. It is capable of hauling 640 freight cars—a train four and three-quarter miles long—on the level. In practice it is a helper and will be placed in the center of 100-car trains going uphill; with one-half its power it will push the cars in front, relieving the smaller locomotive, and with one-half its power it will pull the cars behind. It is so powerful that if coupled at the head of a train it would pull out the couplings and ruin the draft gear of the train.



This gaint weighs 853,050 pounds, has a tank capacity of 10,000 gallons and a coal capacity of 16 tons. The coal is fed to the firebox by a mechanical stoker, so that the fireman simply sits in the cab and operates the lever and the coal is automatically carried into the firebox. This locomotive will consume so much coal that it would be impossible for a single fireman to supply fuel without the aid of some such mechanical device.

The water is fed to the boiler by means of pumps connected with the middle driving wheels and in its passage to the boiler it passes through a feed water heater, the heat being supplied by the exhaust steam from the rear pair of low-pressure cylinders. Thus an economy is effected by returning much of the waste heat from the exhaust steam to the boiler.

The cylinders on the central unit are high-pressure cylinders. One of them exhausts into the two low-pressure cylinders on the front unit, while the other exhausts into the two low-pressure cylinders on the tender unit. The exhaust steam from the latter unit passes through the feed water heater already mentioned and up the stack at the rear of the tender. The exhaust steam from the low-pressure cylinders on the front unit passes through the usual nozzle in the smoke box and creates the blast necessary to burn the immense quantity of coal.

HOLLAND'S safety in time of war lies in her ability to flood great tracts of land. The movement of a lever at Amsterdam is sufficient to open every dike and dam in Holland simultaneously.

The Pumpkin as a Diuretic in Medicine

THAT common articles of food may possess in addition to a high dietetic value certain medicinal virtues is indicated in the use of oatmeal as a diabetic cure, in the employment of buttermilk in gastrointestinal disorders, in the administration of acid fruits as antiscorbutic remedies, etc. A. Kakowski in the Zeitschrift fur physikalische und diatetische Therapie, June and July, 1914, extols the value of the pumpkin when administered in large quantities in the treatment of nephritic edema. He finds that it fulfills the following requirements of the ideal diuretic food: It should contain considerable water and natural salts, but should be relatively free from sodium chloride; it should be well borne by the alimentary tract and should act as a mild laxative; it should have nutritive value and should be palatable; it should not irritate the kidneys and should not give rise to harmful metabolic products; and it should be easily obtainable, cheap and easily preserved.

The edible portion of the pumpkin is prepared by Kakowski in the form of a porridge, by being cut into small pieces, covered with water, and boiled over a slow fire for two hours. It is administered to the patient with butter, milk or cream, or preferably mixed with rice soup. The preparation most agreeable to the patient is one in which the pumpkin is boiled with milk or with cream.

The pumpkin cure was employed in severe cases of chronic nephritis in which an edema had been rebellious to the entire range of medicinal diuretics. Long standing and massive edemas disappeared within a short time under this method of treatment.

New Uses for Quicksilver

THE quicksilver production of the world during 1913 is estimated at 4171 metric tons, against 4262 tons in 1912 and 4083 tons in 1911. The countries of production last year were: United States, 688 tons; Austria-Hungary, 855 tons; Italy, 988 tons; Spain 1490 tons; Mexico and others, 150 tons. These figures were gathered by the United States Geological Survey.

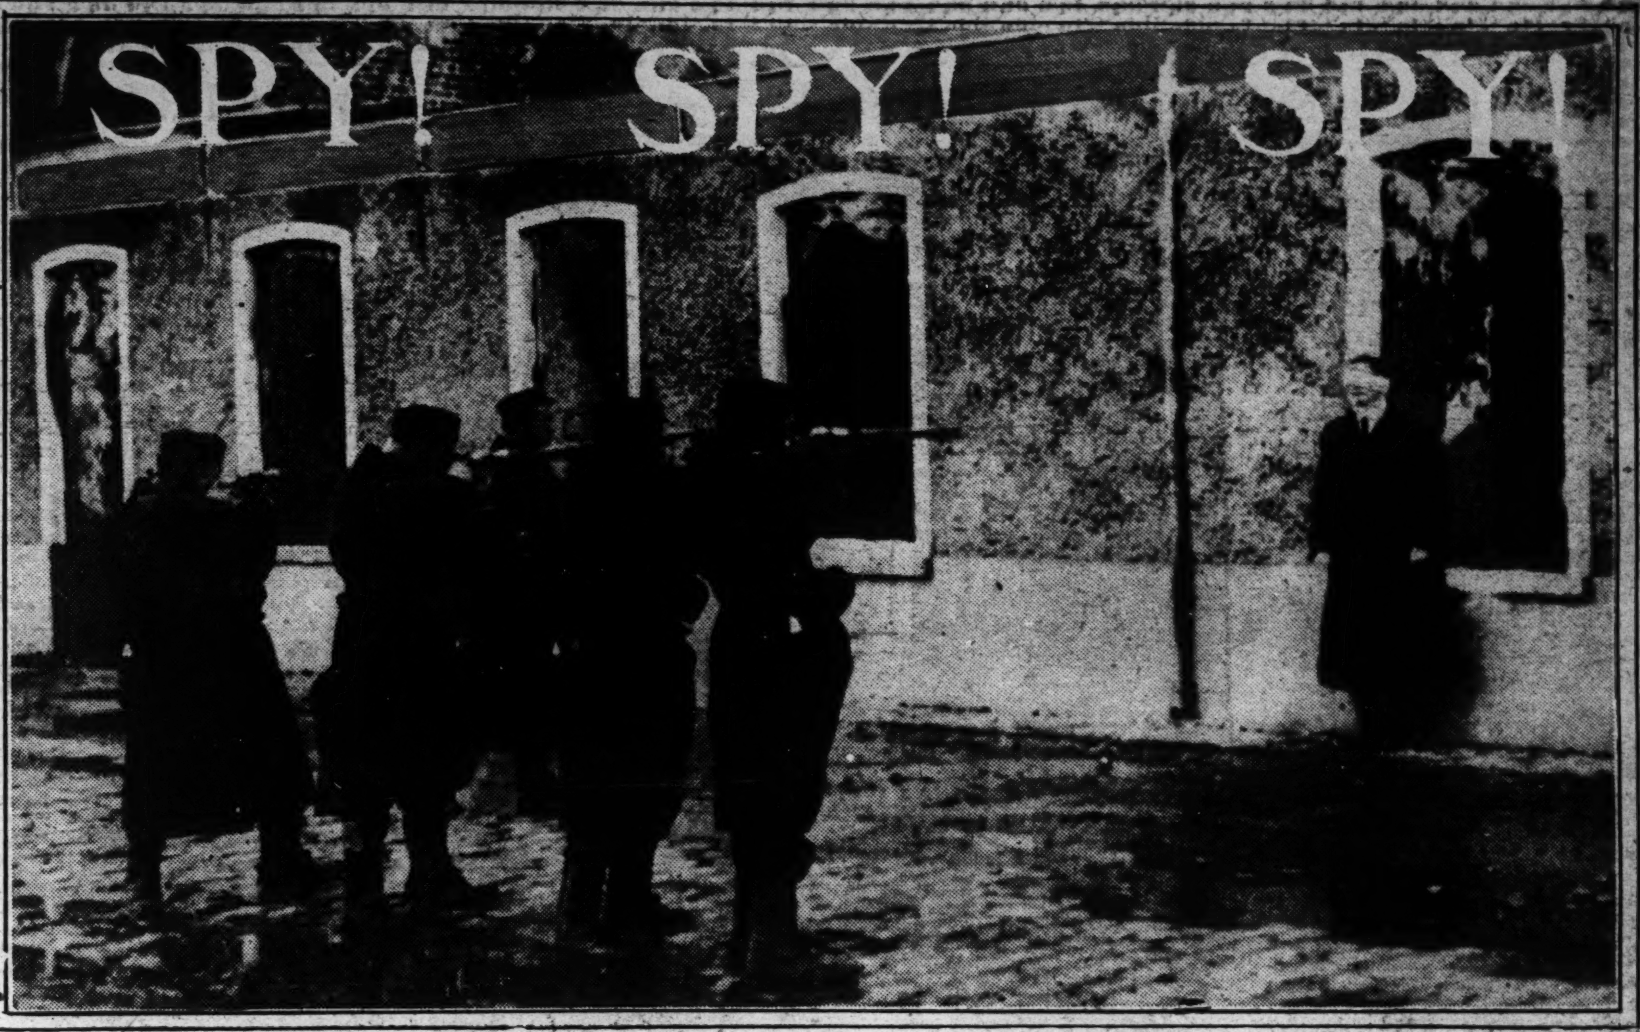
Quicksilver is used mainly in the manufacture of fulminate for explosive caps, of drugs, of electric appliances and scientific apparatus, and in the recovery of precious metals, especially gold, by amalgamation. A new use in Scotland is the floating of lights of lighthouses upon a body of quicksilver. A use in England, in the United States, and possibly elsewhere is the coating of ships' bottoms with a paint containing quicksilver to prevent organic growth. Mercuric oxide (red oxide of mercury) is the active poison in anti-fouling paint successfully used on ships' bottoms. The metal appears to be but little employed in silvering mirrors, as nitrate of silver is now chiefly used for the purpose. Increasing use of quicksilver is probably to be expected in the manufacture of electrical appliances and of fulminates, and possibly of paints for protective coatings on metals. The demand for quicksilver for amalgamating gold and silver has greatly decreased, as is well known, with the decreased supply of free milling ores and the increased application of cyanidation to gold and silver ores. Industrial chemistry and inventive genius are to be looked to for increasing the demand.

Cancers That Cure Themselves

IN the annual report of Dr. Bashford of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund an announcement of great importance is made. It is to the effect that transplanted tumors fall into two categories, a very small group that grow progressively because they do not produce resistance to their own growth, and a large group that tend to disappear spontaneously because they induce in the body a powerful resistance to their growth.

While this remark is applied only to tumors artificially produced in animals for experimental purposes, it may be that some at least of the apparently extraordinary cures of cancer in human beings have been due to this power of the body to resist the growth of the cancer. If further experiments shall result in the discovery of the method by which certain resistant bodies throw off the cancerous growth, it will be a long step toward finding a way of conferring this power upon those who do not possess it.

SPY! SPY! SPY!



An actual photograph of the execution of a German spy by a Belgian firing squad. The spy was captured near Termonde, blindfolded, led out at dawn and put to death.

> Warring nations go spy-mad, and hundreds of men and women, many perhaps innocent, have been done to death ❧ Mrs. George W. Goethals one of those arrested ❧ To release a carrier pigeon is to seal one's death warrant ❧ German bandmen, waiters and servants accused in England . . .

ALL Europe, including even its neutral nations, like Italy, is hysterically engaged in declining the verb "spy" in all its persons, moods and tenses. The entire Continent is afflicted with an acute atack of "spyitis" and as a result of its ravages, hundreds of persons, men and women, no doubt many of them most unjustly, have been summarily shot. In all the warring countries, particularly in Germany, a savage spy-hunt has been on since the outbreak of hostilities, and woe to the man or woman who can give no convincing account of themselves! The game is everywhere being played in a bloodthirsty form.

The spy madness is no respecter of persons. Mrs. George W. Goethals, wife of Gov. Goethals of the Panama Canal zone, was arrested at Ville Franche as a German spy, shortly after the war began. She is of German descent and speaks the language fluently. She had finally to produce her marriage certificate to prove her identity. When the French officers learned she was the wife of the builder of the Panama Canal, they could not apologize sufficiently, and ordered her immediate release.

This incident would seem to indicate that the spy frenzy is a case of national hysteria and nerves. But is it? Even so sober and staid a nation as Great Britain is reported to be spy mad, and with good reason. The story is told of the arrest of a German governess in the household of Premier Asquith himself, on a charge that the woman, who was recommended to the place by the former German Ambassador, Prince Lichnowsky, was a spy in the employment of the omnipresent German Intelligence Office. German servants, ideal and trusted menials in English families for years, are declared to have been patient spies, biding their time "Ah Tag" (Germany's toast, foreshadowing this war—"To the day"). When arrested they are said to have been found in possession of bombs, maps of fortifications and water reservoirs, of rifles and cartridges sufficient to arm a regiment.

It is asserted as a fact that, when war began, it was discovered that German secret service men had established three powerful wireless stations inland in England, and that they were prepared to inform the German Government by code messages of every movement made by the British army and fleet. The stations were destroyed. The assertion is also made that on one night a dirigible balloon, held in readiness by Germans lurking in Cornwall, set out on a cruise to drop dynamite on the British coast fortifications. On good authority the story is told that the dirigible was destroyed by artillery fire from English forts.

"Every German living abroad," says an inspired report from London, "knows that if he sends any sort of useful information to the Intelligence Office at Berlin he will be thanked; and, if he needs it, will be paid for it. They do not all do it for pay; on the contrary, probably the bulk of unofficial spies of the German Foreign Office are actuated by patriotic motives."

It is no wonder that, with this belief, the 60,000 Germans and Austrians marooned in England by the war are under constant police surveillance, and are forbidden to remove from one district to another without permission.

Englishmen used to laugh when it was suggested that the innocent-looking German band men who haunted the watering places about the coast might be spies. But, says a London dispatch, it has now been established that a large corps of German officers, divided among several bands, visited the east coast watering places for years and learned as much about the coast line as the British army and navy intelligence departments knew themselves.

Suspicion was aroused by the amount of money spent by the band men, and particularly by the expensive presents given by one of them to his English sweetheart at Lowestoft. A raid on their quarters, it is alleged, unearthed minute drawings of the coast line, its soundings, its hinterland and its landmarks. Needless to say, any person thus detected immediately lost his life, without benefit of clergy or of inquest by the Coroner.

International law does not forbid the immemorial custom of punishing a spy by immediate death. The Hague conventions, however, declare that aeroplane and dirigible scouts are to be considered as combatants and not spies, as is also the case with persons openly wearing uniforms and carrying dispatches between their own forces or between their officers and those of the enemy. But a message carrier disguised as a civilian or as a member of the hostile army is liable to instant execution.

This accounts for the almost incredible daring of some of the spies reported captured during the war. At St. Die, the story goes, a horseman in the uniform of a French Major galloped up to a body of French troops and heartily congratulated them on some success they had just achieved against the Germans. Something in his manner aroused suspicion, and he was disarmed and searched. His papers showed he was a German spy. He was shot on the spot.

The official British Press Bureau, on Sept. 29, published the following statement:

"Espionage plays so important a part in the conduct of war by the Germans that it is difficult to avoid further reference to the subject. They have evidently never forgotten the saying of Frederick the Great: 'When Marshal Soubise goes to war he is followed by a hundred cooks; when I take the field I am preceded by a hundred spies.'

"Men in plain clothes signal to the German lines from points in the hands of the French and English by means of colored lights by night and puffs of smoke from chimneys by day. Pseudo laborers working in the fields between the armies have been detected conveying information, and persons in plain clothes have acted as advance scouts for the German cavalry.

"German officers in plain clothes, or in French or British uniforms, have remained in localities evacuated by the Germans in order to furnish them with intelligence. One spy of this kind was found hidden in a church tower. His presence was discovered only through the erratic movements of the hands of the church clock, which he was using to signal his friends by means of an improvised semaphore code.

"Women spies have also been caught; secret agents have been found at the railroads observing entrainments and detrainments. It is a simple matter for spies to mix with refugees moving about to their homes; difficult for our troops, who speak neither French nor German, to detect them."

To baffle would-be spies, the French adopted rules that wayfarers must be searched for carrier pigeons, that

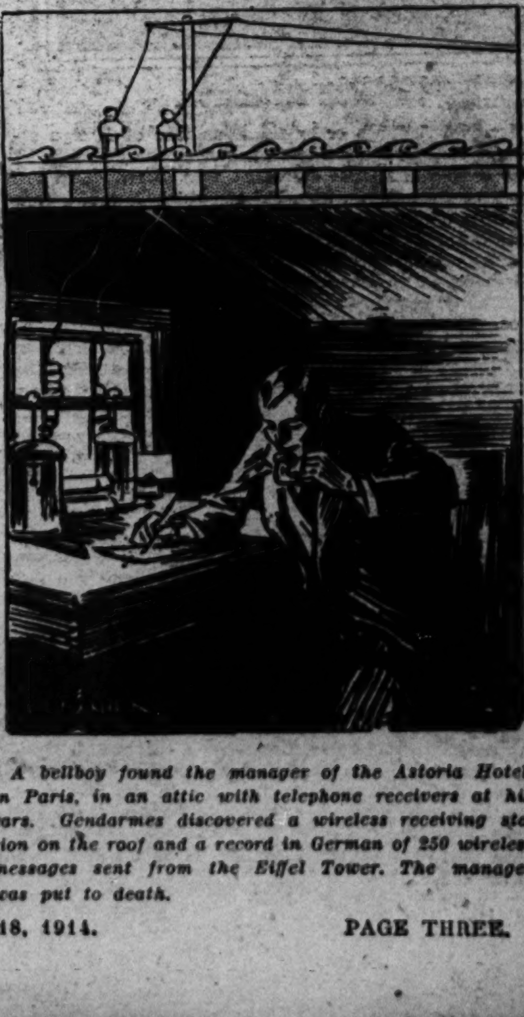
Because three American women, in a cafe at Cologne, remarked that two "women" diners had such big feet they must have come from Chicago, the "women" were seized and found to be men—Russian spies.



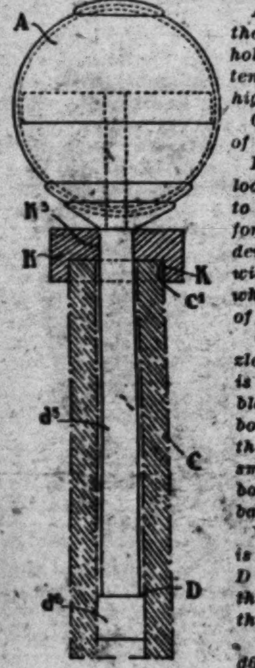
A bellboy found the manager of the Astoria Hotel, in Paris, in an attic with telephone receivers at his ears. Gendarmes discovered a wireless receiving station on the roof and a record in German of 250 wireless messages sent from the Eiffel Tower. The manager was put to death.

NOVEL THINGS WORTH KNOWING

German Shell Generates Deadly Gas to Kill All in Range

FOR more than five years past Germany has been experimenting with guns and projectiles adapted for the use of explosives that cannot be safely placed in the ordinary shell. On Aug. 24, 1909, the United States Patent Office issued letters patent to Karl Wieser of Bredeney-am-Ruhr for a projectile the diameter of which is greater than the bore of the gun which fires it. The shell, in the Wieser patent, was to be attached loosely to a steel shaft, then the shaft was to be fired, with the shell on the forward end of it. Attached to the muzzle of the gun was a weight so arranged that when the shaft was projected out of the barrel it engaged stops which checked the flight of the shaft and so detached it from the flying shell.

Wieser transferred his patent right to the Krupp Co., and came back with an application for a new patent (granted Sept. 12, 1911) for a simpler shaft. Evidently the Krupps saw enough merit in the diabolical contrivance to urge the inventor to perfect it.



A is the body of the projectile, a hollow globe intended to hold high explosives.

C is the barrel of the cannon.

D is a shaft loosely attached to the bomb; is formed of a cylinder, d5, and a wider cap, d6, which fits the bore of the gun.

Over the muzzle of the gun, c1, is fitted a metal block, k, with a bore, k3, fitting the shaft, d5, and smaller than the bore of the gun barrel.

When the charge is set off the shaft D is driven from the gun, carrying the bomb A.

When the plug, d6, strikes the inner edge of the weight, k, the impact releases the shaft from the bomb, which goes on alone.

A handful of gun-cotton placed in a thin-walled shell of the Wieser type with forty, fifty or more pounds of cyanide of potassium will scatter the cyanide so thoroughly that when the day's work of destruction is over there is nothing to show how the dead men met their end.

Gases could be generated in the shell in many ways. When an acid comes into contact with cyanides the reaction produces prussic acid gas, probably the most dangerous gas generally known. One brick—the commercial form in which cyanide is handled—with a teacupful of vinegar, would make enough gas, if properly dispersed, to suffocate as many men as could be crowded into the Coliseum, especially if the chemicals were scattered, as they would be by the bursting of a charge of high explosive.

Kissing the Shuttle Is Dangerous

THREADING a shuttle in weaving mills is almost always accomplished by a quick, sucking motion at the eye of the shuttle, which draws the end of the yarn through until it can be caught with the fingers. This is known as kissing the shuttle writes Augustus E. Ingram, United States Consul at Bradford, England.

It has always been considered bad for the lungs of the operators, as small particles of loose lint and dust are certain to be inhaled. Latterly another objection is being urged against the practice—namely, the danger of infection, as shuttles are interchanged from one operative to another.

The health authorities throughout Lancashire and Yorkshire have condemned this practice and the last annual report of Dr. H. C. Alderton, the medical officer of Barnoldswick, particularly refers to the evil effects upon the health of cotton weavers of the practice of shuttle kissing. The report stated that 33 cases of pulmonary tuberculosis had been reported during the year.

Provisioning a Dreadnaught

Electric Welding While You Wait

AN incident is related in the Electrical World where a workman in a railway shop approached his foreman with a request for a new machinist's hammer, showing his former tool split into longitudinal halves as the result of a heavy blow. Being busy, the foreman, in a half joking manner said: "Take it to the electric welder; we're out of hammers."

Without question the workman obeyed. Later the foreman noticed the man lustily chipping a nut, and asked him where he got the new hammer. The inquiry elicited the fact that the two pieces of the broken hammer, small and irregular as they were, had been welded electrically with a neatness almost defying detection. Whether this was an economical process or not has yet to be determined, out as evidence of the electric welder's skill and general usefulness the incident is well worth chronicling.

He Was Deaf

Astonishing Improvement in Hearing, Edward Gregory, Engineer, Gives Information Free.

An engineer who had ear trouble for years finally became so deaf he could not hear the sound of a steam engine, bells or voices. After vainly seeking relief he was compelled to give up his position. His case seemed hopeless. His deafness was aggravated by head disturbances, dry catarrh, nervousness and despondency.

To the surprise of all, he began to hear and continued improving until he could listen to conversation, could hear a train at a distance and even the singing of the birds in the trees. His head and nerves became tranquil. He got his position back again. This was no miracle, no surgery, no artificial hearing devices, no electric apparatus, no loss of time.

Whoever is becoming deaf can obtain particulars free by writing to Edward Gregory, 66 K. Forbes St., Jamaica Plain, Mass.

What Is the Color of Gold?

GOLD that is used in jewelry and coins is always alloyed with copper or sometimes, as in the former, with silver. Additions of copper make the color the popular "golden-yellow," orange or reddish gold. Silver turns gold pale yellow. We seldom see pure gold, but it has that indescribable yellow that so often fascinates.

The pure metal is so malleable that it can be beaten between strips of vellum into sheets one two-hundred-and-fifty-thousandth of an inch in thickness. In this form it is transparent, and transmits green light.

When very finely divided gold is suspended in a liquid, by precipitation from a solution, it transmits green light similar to that of the leaf gold. Yet in ordinary well-diffused light it seems purple, for this is the color it reflects. In other words, if a light is placed behind a jar containing a liquid with gold in fine suspension, it looks green; whereas, if the light is placed in front or at the side, the color is purple. The vapor from boiling molten gold is also purple.

What then is the real color of gold? The color of a substance depends on its ability to reflect only light of that color, which, in turn, is due to the arrangement of the molecules. It seems, then, even the simple mechanical changes which we mentioned before as altering the physical properties, are accompanied by radical changes among the molecules as far as their mutual relationships are concerned.

When France and Germany Made Peace

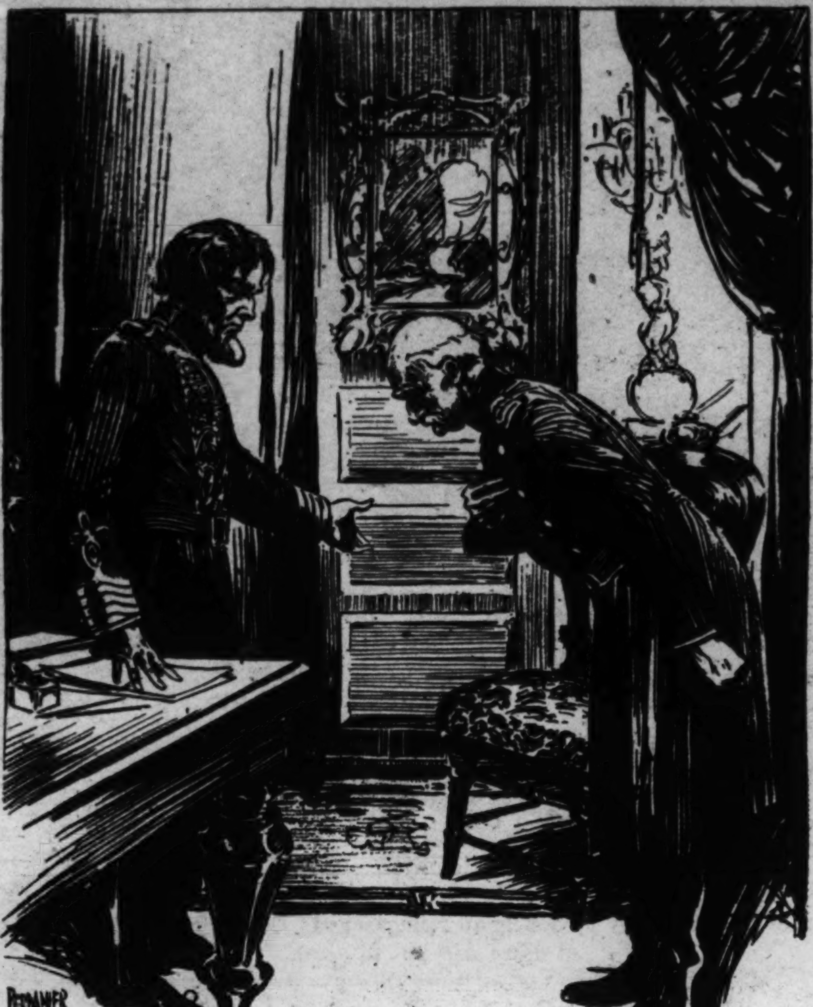
(Secret History of 1871)

Bismarck, foreseeing that a driven France was consenting only to an armistice, compelled the acceptance of the harshest terms and only yielded one humiliation to impose another . . . .

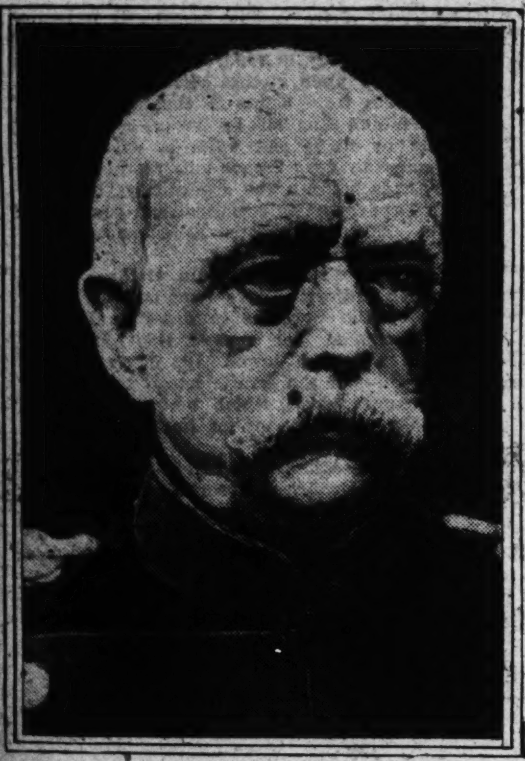
PEACE, when it comes in the present European turmoil, may arrive through the friendly offices of a neutral nation. In that case, the negotiations will be somewhat in the general style of the dignified conferences which wound up the Russo-Japanese War. Yet, of course, it is not impossible, if either side obtains an overwhelming advantage, that the victors may themselves dictate terms in one of the capitals of the vanquished.

If that should come to pass, it will be a repetition of the conclusion of the Franco-German War of 1870-71, when the mailed fist of Prussia banged upon the conference table and there was no recourse for France but to accept humiliating terms. Peace made in this way is rarely enduring. In 1870 Bismarck, the Iron Chancellor of Prussia, said, with almost prophetic insight:

"France is sure to consider every peace now concluded merely in the light of an armistice. To revenge her defeats she will again attack us wantonly and iniquitously as the last time, as soon as, by her own strength or by the assistance of foreign allies, she feels competent to do so."



" 'I salute in you the worthy representative of a great and heroic nation.' "



PRINCE BISMARCK.

Yet it was this same Bismarck who forced down the throat of France the humiliation which has stuck in the gorge of every Frenchman since. There are no more tragic chapters in history than the narratives of how, on three occasions, Bismarck received suppliant French ambassadors, twice sending them away in impotent rage and finally compelling them to submit to his harsh terms.

"Do not bombard Paris," Jules Favre said to him, on the first visit. The Frenchman pointed out that the defense of Paris would be desperate and that many lives would be lost, although some kind of a settlement might be reached in another way.

"We have foreseen all this," replied Bismarck, "and we prefer undergoing it at present to reserving it for our children. Necessity may make a bombardment of Paris legitimate."

"I propose a simple means of escaping this difficulty," Favre countered. "Let us convoke an assembly; you will treat with it, if you are truly politic; you will impose acceptable conditions and you will insure a solid peace."

"For that," Bismarck retorted, "an armistice would be necessary. I will not have one at any price."

The guns were already thundering at besieged Paris when Favre sought the next interview. Once more the Frenchman begged for an armistice until some sort of an election could be held to select a responsible Government authorized to treat with the Germans for peace and accept any honorable conditions. In the East Germans were besieging all the French fortresses in the Vosges, including the garrison at Strasbourg. The following narrative of the interview is in Favre's own words:

'The King' (William of Prussia), said the Count, 'accepts the armistice on the conditions and with the object determined on by us. As I told you, we demand the occupation of all besieged fortresses in the Vosges, that of Strasbourg and the garrison of that place as prisoners of war.'

"It was with difficulty," Favre afterwards wrote, "that I restrained myself, and, interrupting him almost impetuously, 'Count,' said I, 'I have promised to report to my Government the conversation of Your Excellency, omitting nothing; but I do not know if I shall have the strength to repeat what you now say. The garrison of Strasbourg has attracted the admiration of the world by its heroism; to surrender the members of that garrison voluntarily as prisoners of war would be an act of cowardice which no man would counsel.'

" 'I cannot agree with you,' replied the Count, 'and my reason is a simple one. Strasbourg is exhausted; we have only to make a last assault. I should be very glad to avoid it; but if we do not come to an agreement, on Friday it will certainly be in our hands and its garrison will belong to us.'

" 'Certainly,' said I, 'is a word very difficult to use in war.'

" 'Add if you like,' said he, 'as certainly as human prediction can be. It is an affair of engineers, and, under this reserve, I am certain not be mistaken.' "

Bismarck then demanded the surrender of forts of the Paris line of defenses. Favre refused to yield this point and the bombardment of the city went on. As it was in these two interviews, so was it in all the other negotiations—Bismarck stern, unyielding, implacable; the French Ambassadors supplicating mercy where no mercy was to be found.

To understand fully these negotiations, a brief recapitulation of the events immediately preceding them is necessary. The French Emperor, Napoleon III, after playing into Bismarck's hands provoking a war when his country had been isolated from the rest of Europe by the skilled diplomacy of the Prussian Chancellor, had taken the field with his poorly prepared army. The German hordes swept over his country in an avalanche. In six weeks one French army had been annihilated and the Emperor himself taken prisoner at Sedan, another army was cooped up at Metz, whence it was not to emerge except as prisoners of war, and the German road to Paris was open.

The wholly unexpected debacle stunned France. Sept. 4 a group of French legislators proclaimed the fall of Napoleon's dynasty and constituted themselves the "Government of National Defense," with Gen. Trochu President, and Jules Favre, a lawyer, Vice-President and Minister of Foreign Affairs. This committee, for it was little else, set about frantically preparing Paris for a siege. As repeated disasters had shown the German advance irresistible, Favre was sent forward to treat with the Germans and, if possible, prevent an assault upon the city.

Near Baron Rothschild's palace, at the village of Ferrieres, Favre and Bismarck met. The grizzled Chancellor showed the effects of the whirlwind campaign, which he had accompanied, while Favre was conspicuously neat in his attire. The two men sized each other up before actually beginning negotiations.

What Favre saw was a heavy-jowled, gray-mustached man in the yellow undress uniform of the heavy Landwehr cavalry, with its white cap and great top boots. Strapped across his back was a leather case which carried his field glasses and often a revolver. Pinned to his blouse was the Cross of the Order of the Red Eagle.

Bismarck saw a big man of rather a Jewish type, with gray whiskers under his chin, his upper lip closely shaven, the somewhat pendulous under lip betokening a man of emotional tendencies. His manner was in sharp contrast to the brusqueness of the Chancellor, for it was suave and polished, although likely at any time to give way to explosions of wrath or despair.

"What is it you want?" Bismarck asked after the usual formalities had been gone through.

"First, an armistice of 15 days," Favre replied.

"Very well," returned the Chancellor, "these are our terms," and he handed Favre a memorandum. It was a demand upon the French to surrender immediately Strasbourg, Toul, Phalsburg and a fort dominating the city of Paris.

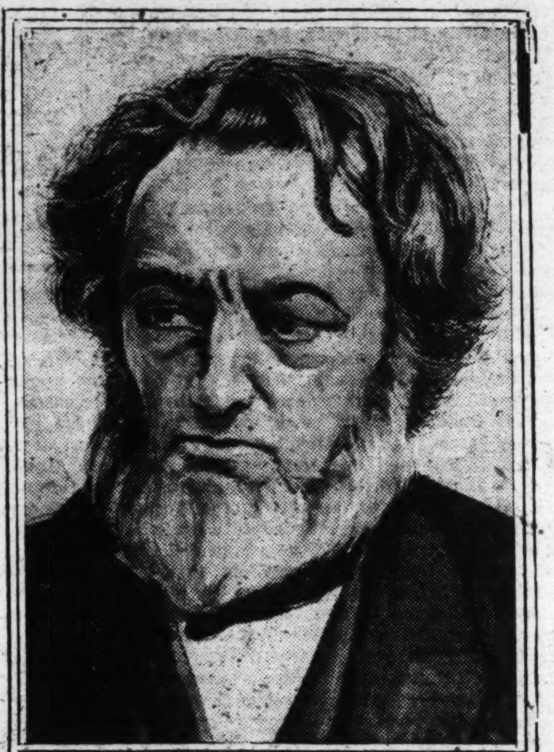
"What!" shouted Favre, "a French assembly deliberate under your cannon? I really dare not tell my Government of such a proposal."

Then followed the first conversation, quoted above, in which Favre pleaded against a bombardment of Paris.

"I shook with anguish," he declared afterwards, "and rising, cried: 'You forget M. le Comte, you are speaking to a Frenchman. Never! And I cannot even promise to report that you said such a thing.' " Adding that while France might be willing to pay an indemnity, it would not yield an inch of French soil, Favre took his departure.

The Frenchmen settled back to a despairing defense of their city and the Germans set about their implaacble siege, memorable in the history of warfare. Month after month the German guns battered at the city's walle and their lines encircled it so closely that its inhabitants were on the verge of starvation. The French tried to obtain foreign intervention, but were checkmated everywhere by the superb policies of Bismarck. Gambetta escaped from Paris in a balloon and tried to raise new armies in the provinces.

At last it was decided to make one more effort to get terms from the Prussians. Favre again went to Bismarck, this time to suggest an armistice and the revictualing of Paris until a new national Government could be formed.



JULES FAVRE.

The Chancellor was living in luxury at a chateau of a Madame Jesse, not far from the city. All the best foods and finest wines were at his command. Favre, on the other hand, was a sharer of the misery of his fellow citizens and was positively weak from hunger. At first he declined Bismarck's invitation for dinner, thinking it unfair to his starving colleagues, but finally consented to partake of the first square meal he had enjoyed in a long time.

Again Favre's rapier clashed vainly against the heavy saber of the Prussian. The Germans would consent to an armistice only on consideration that forts dominating Paris should be surrendered. For five days the diplomatic duel went on, and finally the baffled Favre returned to his city.

Jan. 26, 1871, Favre was compelled to yield. An armistice of 21 days for the election of a national assembly was granted during which Paris was to be revictualed. The city consented to pay a war indemnity of $40,000,000, its garrison was to be declared prisoners, its walls were to be disarmed and its outer forts turned over to the Germans. As a concession to French pride, Bismarck permitted the French to fire the last cannon shot before the armistice became effective.

When Jules Favre was next ushered into the grand salon of the palace at Versailles, where the German General Staff had established its headquarters, the Iron Chancellor, in the full dress uniform of a Prussian General, walked toward him with outstretched hands and greeted him with these words:

"Your Excellency, I salute in you the worthy representative of a great and heroic nation."

Jules Favre bowed and answered:

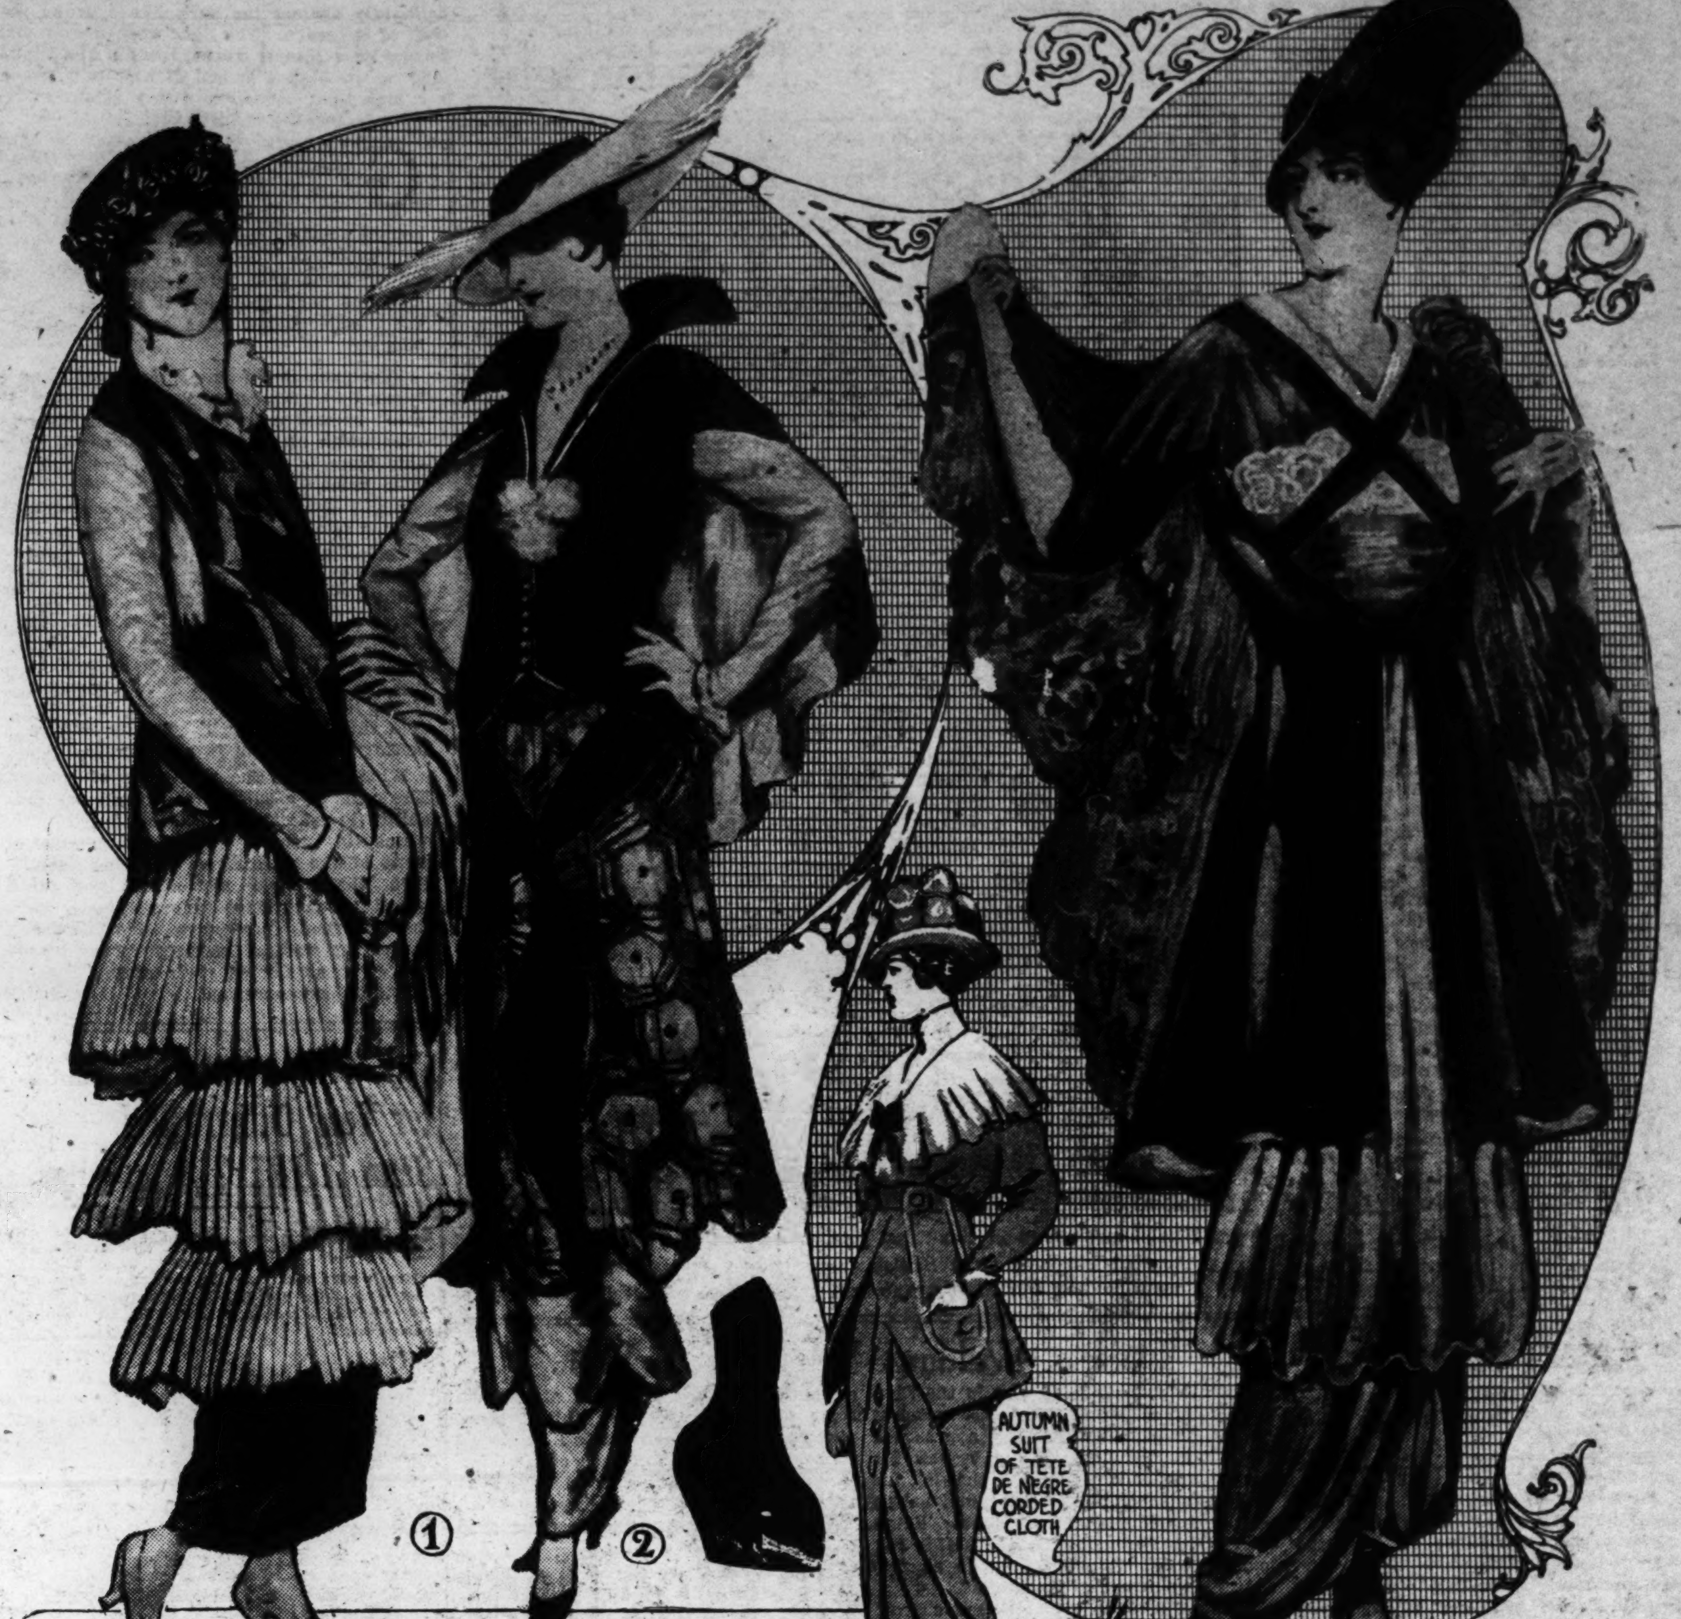
Style Novelties in Spite of War



AUTUMN SUIT OF TETE DE NEGRE CORDED CLOTH

THREE COSTUMES SEEN AT THE PIPEING ROCK (LONG ISLAND) HORSE SHOW: MISS MARIE TAILER, MRS. STEPHEN PEABODY and MISS LOUISE TREVOR

A SERGE SUIT WITH COAT OF PLAIN NAVY AND SKIRT OF STRIPED CLARET AND NAVY SERGE

THE coat-like aspect of le dernier cri in dress is evident in these original designs. It follows the most elementary lines in No. 1, where leaf-brown charmeuse is contrasted with plisse frills of white crepe bordered with the brown.

Brown again, but in its deepest tones, appears in No. 2, with its new cape coat and wired upper tunic of figured mousgaline, beneath which two narrowing tiers of oyster-white satin bordered with brown appear.

No. 3 gives a charming contrast, the bouffante skirt being of lemon yellow crepe de chine, with coat in lovely purple-blue velours.

THE new fashion calls for straight lines and loose figures.

The modish bust is low, the back straight, the hips long, and the waist free.

Above all, the figure must be supple and not unduly confined.

One of the novelties of the hour is the Gladstonian collar. The high stock which the great politician wore, and which now goes by his name, comes straight up to the chin and turns out in two points. He wore it sufficiently stiff to keep up at the neck.

There is a burnt green that is very fashionable now, and in some of the skirts there is a curious effect produced, pannier fashion, by lifting up the skirt with a couple of pleats on each side.

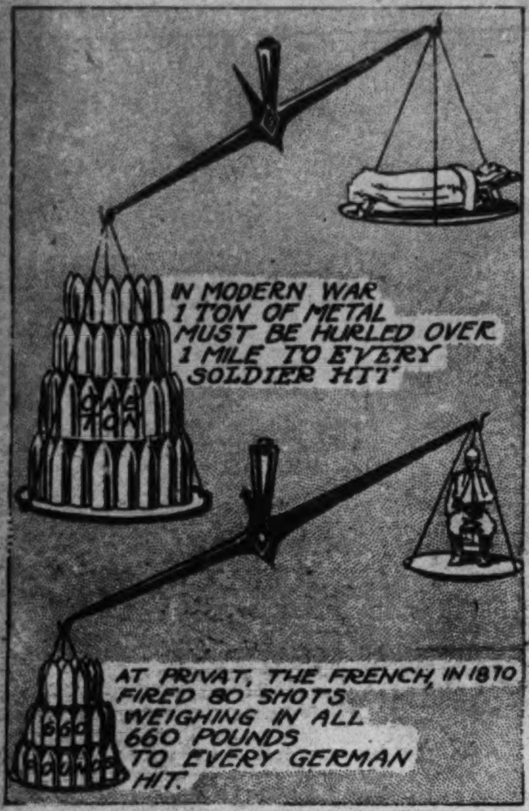
Man-to-Man Fighting Wins Wars

Military expert says that big guns, aeroplanes and all the modern machinery will not affect the result, which must be won by the direct clash of men



IN MODERN WAR 1 TON OF METAL MUST BE HURLED OVER 1 MILE TO EVERY SOLDIER HIT
AT PRIVAT, THE FRENCH, IN 1870 FIRED 80 SHOTS WEIGHING IN ALL 660 POUNDS TO EVERY GERMAN HIT.
660

THIS is the lesson of the European conflict as a United States army officer, who has been a deep student of strategy and tactics, sees it:

Regardless of all advantages in modern facilities and equipment, war is now as it always has been, reducible to the personal equation. In other words, the ultimate decision of a campaign, however large its scale, lies in the personal grappling of the combatants. Sooner or later the men must come face to face and fight it out.

All of which is only another way of saying that in spite of bomb-dropping aeroplanes, in spite of rifles that will kill at a mile, in spite of field guns spitting shrapnel shells at the rate of 40 a minute, in spite of huge cannon that will pound a fort to pieces at four miles, in spite of all that science and invention have been able to devise for the destruction of men from a safe distance, the battle must come finally to the crash of horse and man against horse and man.

And then, as always before since the first savage tribes went upon the warpath, strength, endurance and above all that hazy, uncertain thing sometimes called moral courage and sometimes called the fighting spirit—a vastly different thing from mere physical courage—will tell the tale.

Put thus baldly, the officer's opinion sounds like the roar of rampant militarism. Since it would be unfair to leave that impression with the reader, something of a picture of its author ought to be drawn. Imagine, then, an upstanding man more than six feet tall whose shoulders at once set you wondering what they could do in a football scrimmage. Imagine a goodly proportioned head, sufficiently covered with a crop of short dark hair in which the gray is beginning to show. Imagine a strong, smooth-shaven face and eyes that meet you squarely.

And then, if you please, imagine a voice low and with a hint of that liquid intonation found only among men of southern climes and some Irishmen. And then, if your imagination can contrive it, think of a man whose trade is war and whose ideals are peace; a man expected to talk like a martinet who actually talks like a man of books; a man whose life study has been the wholesale slaughter of other men and yet one who profoundly hopes he may never have to put his knowledge to the touch; a man who in short, is an embodied paradox, an anti-military militarist.

He talked a long time about the transoceanic war and somehow managed to avoid partisanship. His discourse was always straight to the point, and sometimes he seemed to be simply thinking aloud as you may have observed scientists doing often when they were explaining work in the laboratory. He spoke of the French army as he might have spoken of a crucible and the German army as he might have of a retort. And the sum and substance of what he said was that, after all, in warfare there is no adequate substitute for the two-fisted man.

The strategic principles of warfare have not greatly changed, he pointed out. It is true that modern means of communication and transportation make it possible for Generals to marshal armies infinitely greater than the world has before known. It is likewise true that because of the widespread battle lines the field of action is almost unlimited. And yet at the bottom of things the essentials have not been greatly changed.

Frederick the Great perfected a system whereby a great mass of men could be concentrated quickly and moved with a rapidity until then unknown. Napoleon, with his famous idea of "moving around a pivot," developed the art of engaging the enemy at a pre-determined place and, at the psychological moment, hurling his greatest force at the weakest point of the opposition, even forsaking the traditions of maintaining a strong reserve in order to do so. Sheridan and Jeb Stuart brought cavalry flanking and screening operations to the point of art. Jackson and Lee evolved from the Napoleonic mass formation the craft of turning and covering movements. Grant demonstrated for all time the inability of a weaker force to stand relentless pounding, when the superior force can give two men for one and remain superior.

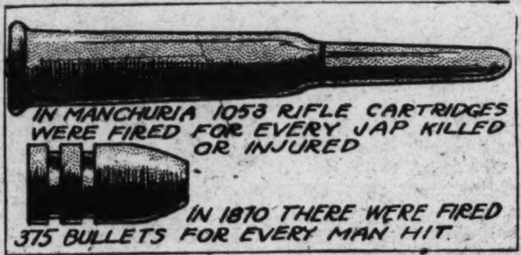
What the Generals of the past did on a relatively small scale, the officer declared, the European Generals of today are doing on a grand scale. It is true that individual pitched battles have virtually become a thing of the past. The modern battle consists of a series of attacks and counter attacks. An army advances here and is forced back there until as the net result of many days of maneuvering one force has obtained a series of positions which, in the opinion of its General, give it a decided advantage. Then, just as Napoleon did he tries to hurl an overwhelming force at a weak objective.

If the opposition cannot avoid contact without disaster, he concentrates his men and hurls them into the breach. And then comes the rush and shock of the charge, man against man, horse against horse, bayonet against bayonet just as such things have always been done.

A great deal has been printed of late about the differnt methods of employing infantry by the French and the Germans. The French favor, it is said, what is known as extended order and the Germans are supposed to prefer mass formations. In the opinion of the officer, each method has its own merits, entirely dependent on what is to be accomplished.

The great value of extended order formations was demonstrated in the Boer War. British infantry, charging en masse against enemies hiding behind natural obstructions, afforded shining targets for the Dutch marksmen. The logical answer to such a problem is to abandon mass formations in favor of a long, thin line. This means that the units of the charging force, for instance, are actually conducting a series of advancing maneuvers. Ostensibly while it is safer for the individual soldier, it is nothing like as rapid as the rush of a close-order charge.

"Whenever time is of the essence of the thing," the officer said by way of illustration, "the mass formation will be employed, provided the commander can afford to lose men. Suppose, for instance, that a vast army with perhaps a preponderance of forces enters upon a campaign that depends largely upon its velocity for success. In other words, suppose a General believes he can afford to sacrifice many men to gain a certain objective in a certain time. He will send his infantry into the attack in close order. Man for man infantry in extended order cannot stop the swirl of a mass charge. It must be stopped, if possible, before it comes to hand-to-hand fighting.



IN MANCHURIA 1053 RIFLE CARTRIDGES WERE FIRED FOR EVERY JAP KILLED OR INJURED
IN 1870 THERE WERE FIRED 375 BULLETS FOR EVERY MAN HIT.

"On the other hand, suppose time is not the essential thing. Suppose an army has a difficult campaign mapped out in which it can afford to move slowly, or even in which its very purpose is to delay decisive fighting as long as possible. Then you would naturally expect extended order maneuvers. They save men at the cost of time."

When the officer was reminded that all accounts of the fighting in Europe describe the terrific artillery fire and was asked whether he thought this might indicate a weakness in his theories of man-to-man fighting, he answered in the negative. Of course, he said, the destructiveness of well-directed artillery fire must be admitted. Yet it must be remembered also that a vast lot of shrapnel thrown towards intrenched troops is wasted. He recalled that in the Spanish War he and his men were lying in trenches with shrapnel shells bursting above them. Some of the bullets actually rattled down upon them without any damage. Two horses at a distance back of the trenches were killed.

When artillery fire can be concentrated on a spot, it of course is deadly. The principal value of artillery in actual combat lies in its co-operation with the more mobile forces. In an attack its principal function is in silencing the guns of the enemy so as to enable the infantry and cavalry to deliver an assault. In an infantry action, for example, it can fire over the heads of the charging line and into the ranks of the enemy almost up to the moment of man-to-man contact. Naturally the guns become invaluable in breaking up a counter attack. But it must always be remembered that unsupported field artillery is always open to attack and even capture by infantry.

It is generally known that for many years both France and Germany have been engaged in an artillery-building race. It is popularily supposed that the Germans have placed their chief reliance in guns of large caliber, hurling vast quantities of metal, while the French have relied upon smaller, more mobile and faster working guns. It is supposed that this war will demonstrate which theory, if either, is the best. The American officer declined to give an opinion before more complete returns are in. He said he had been much interested in rumors that the Germans are using some enormous cannon, the shells of which are fitted with a more powerful explosive than the rest of the world knows. He admitted that such guns, if they exist, might change the complexion of siege operations particularly.

Each army in the field has guns of various sizes for different purposes and it is necessary to keep a varied supply of ammunition on hand all the time. Very often a single gun may fire [illegible]00 rounds in a single day. That was frequently the case in the Russo-Japanese War and when it is remembered that at Mukden 3000 guns were employed, it is not hard to arrive at the conclusion that in the present war 1,200,000 rounds of ammunition may be required each day.

In spite of this vast avalanche of metal, the number of men killed is relatively small. At Privat in the Franco-Prussian War it is estimated that for every German hit the French had fired 80 shots, weighing in all 660 pounds. In the Russo-Japanese War, the Russians fired about 1500 shots for every Japanese disabled. From this it has been estimated that in modern war one ton of metal must be hurled more than a mile for every soldier killed or maimed.

Shrapnel, a shell containing from 200 to 300 bullets, timed to explode at any distance, is the favorite ammunition for field artillery. Yet the figures prove that it is not so deadly as infantry rifle fire. In the war of 1870 the casualties due to infantry fire were 90 per cent, 8 per cent to artillery fire and 2 per cent to other causes. In Manchuria 85.5 per cent of the casualties were due to infantry fire. Yet in the Russo-Japanese War, 1053 rifle cartridges were required for every Japanese soldier killed or wounded. When these figures are compared with the ratio of 375 bullets to each soldier hit in the war of 1870 it becomes apparent that in spite of the improvements in weapons, the average soldier's chances are much better than formerly.

The reason for this is not hard to find. Battle lines are longer and thinner now than then. At Austerlitz 75,000 Frenchmen fought along an eight-mile front. At Wagram 150,000 Frenchmen were in a battle line only 10 miles long. At Gravelotte 185,000 Germans were massed in a line only five miles long.

The Boer War's lesson, that walls of living men were not ramparts for modern rifle bullets, saw the end of such concentrations. At Mukden the Russian and Japanese.

BLAMING IT ALL ON NIETZSCHE

Creator of "Superman" fired the German military caste with the belief that might is right and the weak nations of the earth are the lawful prey of the strong . . .

> YOU shall love peace as a means to new wars, a short peace more than the long.
> A good cause, ye say, sanctifies even war; but I say unto you that a good war sanctifies every cause.
> This new table, O my brethren, I put over you: Become hard!
> I am opposed to parliamentary government and the power of the press, because they are means whereby cattle become masters.

MANY there are who believe that, behind the huge avalanche of invasion in Belgium and France, the real propulsive force was not so much the Kaiser and his General Staff as the ideas spun in solitude some 30 years ago by an obscure and impoverished German professor of philology, half blind and tortured by disease, who died in a madhouse.

As Voltaire, Rousseau and Diderot are called the literary fathers of the French Revolution, so Friedrich Nietzsche (1844-1900) is the arch-prophet of German militarism, manifest in the war of 1914.

Apostle of "The Will to Power," which glorifies ruthless force as being in itself its own justification; of the Superman, to whom weaker men are, of right and necessity helots; and of master morality as opposed to slave morality (of the latter he considered Christianity the consummate and most pernicious example); Nietzsche has been called the German Machiavelli. Both he and the subtle Florentine found their ideal "man of prey" in that brilliant and monstrous virtuoso in iniquity, Caesar Borgia.

At the feet of Nietzsche's intellect, one of the haughtiest and fiercest ever possessed by man, sat as pupils of the spirit those prophets of military conquest by right of might, Treitschke, Von Sybel and Von Bernhardi. Although fame did not find Nietzsche out until night had fallen forever upon his faculties, it came at last with a world-wide rush. His vogue in his own country has been enormous. Probably no philosopher has been so popularly read.

It is one of fate's ironies that Nietzsche, despite the Franco-Prussian War, by no means considered his own countrymen to be potential Supermen; he is at pains to point out that they possess little resemblance to his ideal "blond brute"; and toward the last he came to regard his compatriots with an immoderate aversion.

He was born near Leipzig, the son of a Protestant clergyman, and at the age of 25 became professor of classical philology at the University of Basel, in Switzerland. After supporting for 12 years, with heroic fortitude, a life which was really a lingering death, he became hopelessly insane in 1888.

Herewith are presented characteristic passages from four of his best-known works: "The Will to Power." "Beyond Good and Evil," "The Genealogy of Morals" and "Thus Spake Zarathustra."

*THE essential thing in a good and healthy aristocracy * * * is that it should accept with a good conscience the sacrifice of a legion of individuals, who, for its sake, must be suppressed and reduced to imperfect men, to slaves and instruments.*

IT is not surprising that the lambs should bear a grudge against the great birds of prey, but that is no reason for blaming the great birds of prey for taking the little lambs. And when the lambs say among themselves: "These birds of prey are evil, and he who is far removed from being a bird of prey, who is rather its opposite, a lamb—is he not good?" then there is nothing to cavil at in the setting up of this ideal; though it may also be that the birds of prey will regard it a little sneeringly, and perchance will say to themselves: "We have no grudge against them, these good lambs; we even like them: nothing is tastier than a tender lamb."

THE strong man, who is mighty in the instincts of a strong and healthy organization, digests his deeds just as well as he digests his meals.

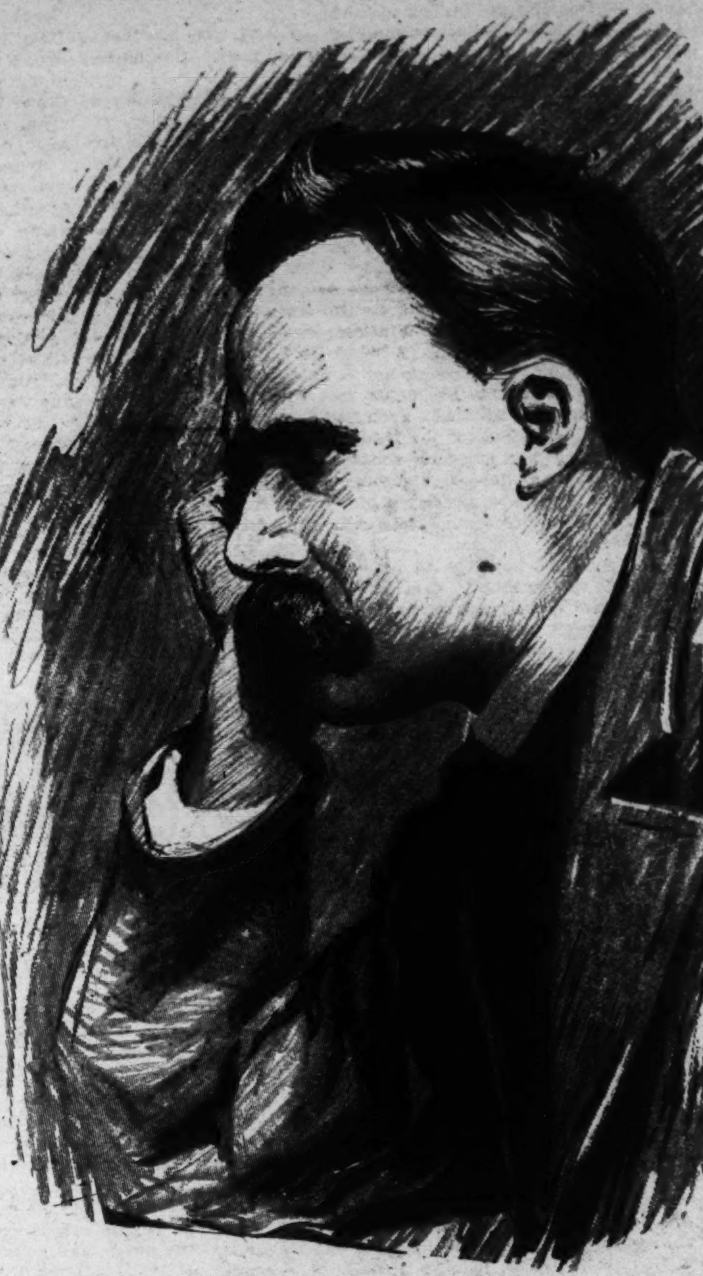
THE Revolution made Napoleon possible: that is its justification. We ought to desire the anarchical collapse of the whole of our civilization if such a reward were to be its result.

IT is impossible not to recognize at the core of all aristocratic races the beast of prey; the magnificent blond brute, avidly rampant for spoil and victory; this hidden core needed an outlet from time to time, the beast must get loose again, must return into the wilderness—the Roman, Arabic, German and Japanese nobility, the Homeric heroes, the Scandinavian Vikings, are all alike in this need.

THE great majority of men have no right to life, and are only a misfortune to their higher fellows.

THE sight of suffering does one good, the infliction of suffering does one more good—this is a hard maxim, but none the less a fundamental maxim.

THE magnitude of a "progress" is gauged by the greatness of the sacrifice that it requires; humanity as a mass sacrificed to the prosperity of the one stronger species of man—that would be a progress.



BYRNES

FRIEDRICH NIETZSCHE.

EVERY elevation of the type "man" has hitherto been the work of an aristocratic society—and so will it always be—a society believing in a long series of gradations of rank and differences of worth among human beings, and requiring slavery in some form or other.

THE profound, icy mistrust which the German provokes, as soon as he arrives at power—even at the present time—is always still an aftermath of the inextinguishable horror with which for whole centuries Europe has regarded the wrath of the blond Teuton beast.

AT the time when mankind was not yet ashamed of its cruelty life in the world was brighter than it is nowadays.

I SUBMIT that egotism belongs to the essence of a noble soul, I mean the unalterable belief that to a being such as "we" other beings must naturally be in subjection, and have to sacrifice themselves.

THE Brandenburg nobility and the Prussian nobility in general comprise at present the most manly natures in Germany. That the manliest men shall rule: this is only the natural order of things.

HE who can command, he who is a master by nature, he who comes on the scene forceful in deed and gesture—what has he to do with contracts? Such beings defy calculation, they come like fate, without cause, reason, notice, excuse; they are there like the lightning is there, too terrible, too sudden, too convincing, too different, to be personally even hated.

IN a tour through the many finer and coarser moralities which have hitherto prevailed or still prevail on the earth, I found certain traits recurring regularly together, and connected with one another, until finally two primary types revealed themselves to me, and a radical distinction was brought to light. There is master-morality and slave-morality.

WHAT I observe with pleasure in the German is his Mephistophelian nature. * * * The true German Mephistopheles is much more dangerous bold, wicked and cunning, and consequently more open-hearted: remember the nature of Frederick the Great, or of that much greater Frederick, the Hohenstaufen, Frederick II.

IT is the aristocratic races which have left the idea "Barbarian" on all the tracks in which they have marched; nay, a consciousness of this very barbarianism, and even a pride in it, manifests itself even in their highest civilization (for example, when Pericles says to his Athenians in that celebrated funeral oration: "Our audacity has forced a way over every land and sea, rearing everywhere imperishable memorials of itself for good and evil."). Pericles sets in special relief and glory the "rhathumia" of the Athenians, their nonchalance and contempt for safety, body, life and comfort, their awful joy and intense delight in destruction, in all the ecstasies of victory and cruelty.

THE submission to law: Oh, with what qualms of conscience was it that the noble races throughout the world renounced the vendetta and gave the law power over themselves.

LET us acknowledge unprejudicedly how every higher civilization has hitherto originated! Men with a still natural nature, barbarians in every terrible sense of the word, men of prey, still in possession of unbroken strength of will and desire for power, threw themselves upon weaker, more moral, more powerful races, or upon old mellow races in which the final vital force was flickering out in brilliant fireworks of wit and depravity.

THEY are ignorant of the meaning of guilt, responsibility, consideration, are these born organizers; in them predominates that terrible artist-egotism that gleams like brass, and that knows itself justified to all eternity in its work.

TO require of strength that it should not express itself as strength, that it should not be a wish to overpower, a wish to overthrow, a wish to become master, a thirst for enemies and antagonisms and triumphs, is just as absurd as to require of weakness that it should express itself as strength.

ONE may be perfectly justified in being always afraid of the blond beast that lies at the core of all arisocratic races, and in being on one's guard; but who would not a hundred times prefer to be afraid, when one at the same time admires, than to be immune from fear at the cost of being perpetually obsessed with the loathsome spectacle of the distorted, the dwarfed, the stunted, the envenomed? And is not our fate? What produces today our revulsion toward "man"?—for we suffer from "man," there is no doubt of it. It is not fear; it is rather that the tame man, the wretched and mediocre creature, has learnt to consider himself a goal and a pinnacle, an inner meaning, a "higher man."

*A MAN today must be a soldier first and foremost that he may not afterwards lose his credit as a merchant. Here, as in other matters, the coming century will be found following in the footsteps of Napoleon—the first man, the man of greatest initiative and advanced views of modern life. For the tasks of the next century, the methods of popular representation and parliaments are the most inappropriate imaginable * * * No American future!*

THE noble man honors in himself the powerful one, who takes pleasure in subjecting himself to severity and hardness, and has reverence for all that is severe and hard. "Woten placed a hard heart in my breast," says an old Scandinavian Saga; it is thus rightly expressed from the soul of a proud Viking. Such a type of man is even proud of not being made for sympathy; the hero of the Saga therefore adds warning: "He who has not a hard heart when young, will never have one."

IT is not so very long ago that a masculinized woman could dare, with unbridled presumption, to recommend the Germans to the interest of Europe as gentle, good-hearted, weak-willed and poetical fools. Let us only understand profoundly enough Napoleon's astonishment when he saw Goethe; it reveals what had been regarded for centuries as the "German spirit." "Viola un homme!"—that was as much as to say: "But this is a man! And I only expected to see a German!"

THE oppressed, downtrodden and overpowered say to themselves with the vindictive guile of weakness: "Let us be otherwise than the evil, namely, good! and good is every one who does not oppress, who hurts no one, who does not attack, who does not pay back, who hands over revenge to God, who holds himself, as we do, in hiding; who goes out of the way of evil, and demands, in short, little from life; like ourselves the patient, the meek, the just."

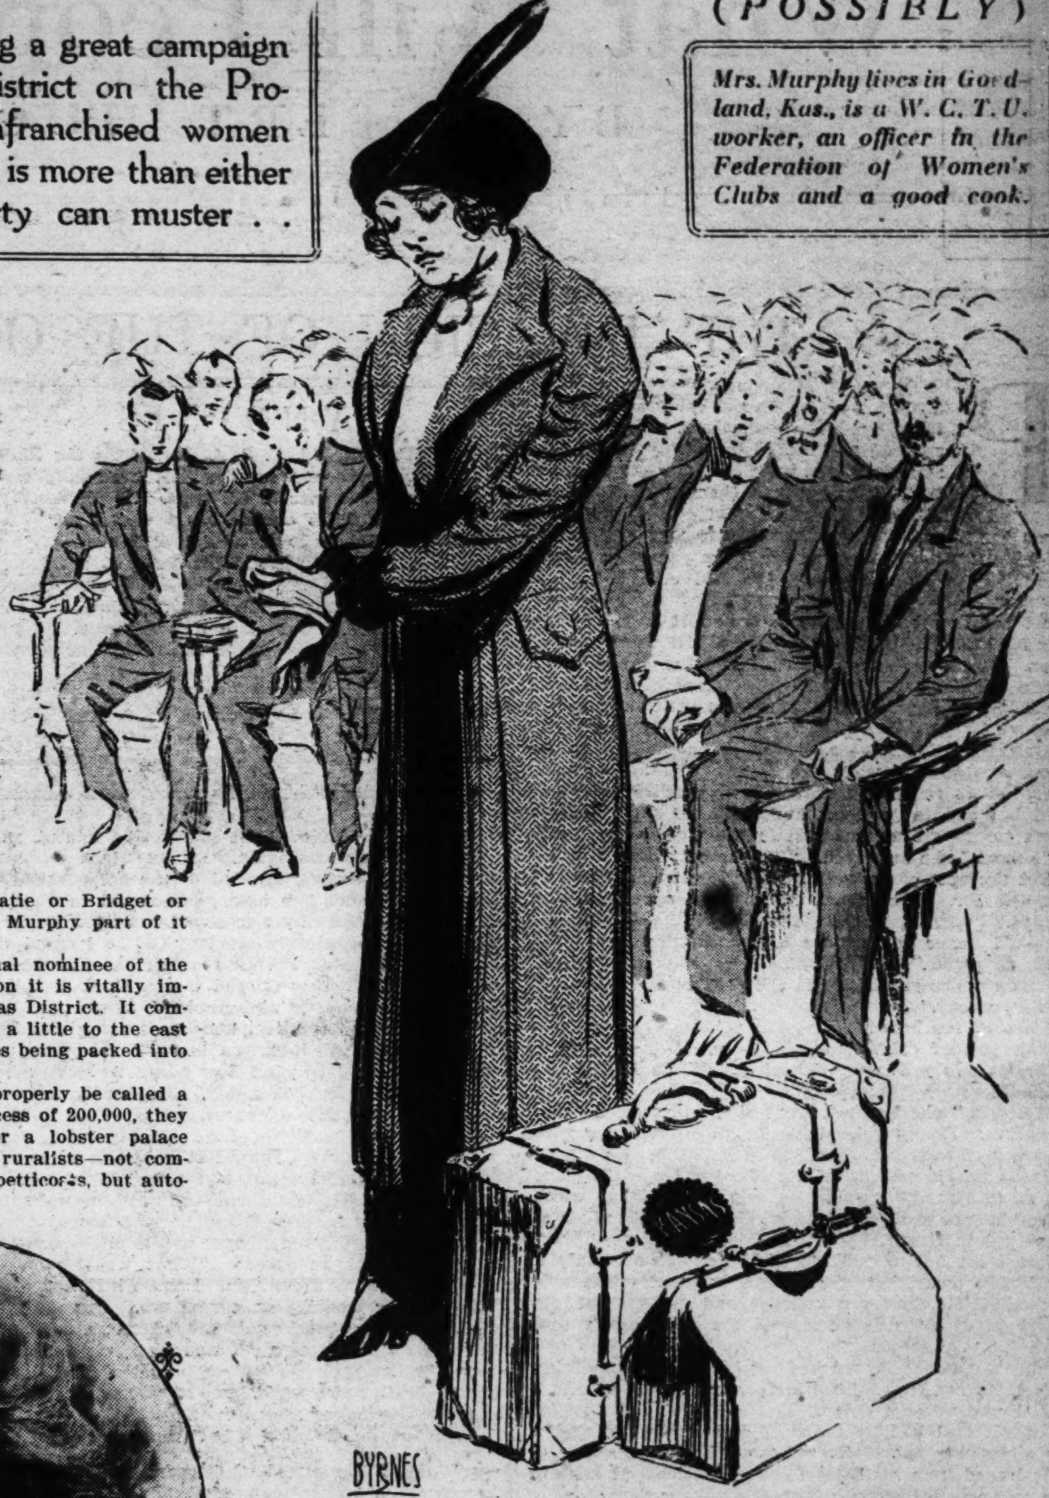
MODERN Germany exhibits a great amount of hereditary and indoctrinated capacity, so that it can spend prodigally for a while its accumulated treasure of force. It is not a high civilization which has here gained the ascendancy, still less a delicate taste or a superiority of instincts, but manlier virtues than any other country in Europe can exhibit.

OUR FIRST WOMAN MEMBER OF CONGRESS

(POSSIBLY)

Mrs. Eva Morley Murphy is making a great campaign for election in the Sixth Kansas District on the Progressive ticket ❧ 25,000 newly enfranchised women will vote in her district, which, alone, is more than either the Republican or Democratic party can muster . .

Mrs. Murphy lives in Goodland, Kas., is a W. C. T. U. worker, an officer in the Federation of Women's Clubs and a good cook.



SOMETHING rather more conclusive than an outside guess indicates that the next Congress of the United States will have at least one woman member. There! Knew you'd guess it, first thing! From Kansas, of course. When it comes to trying anything new, from farm machinery to the latest wrinkle in sociology, there is none in the whole sorority who can beat Sister Kansas to getting her little footsies wet.

Three women are running for Congress in Kansas this fall. One of them has splendid chances of success, according to William Allen White and Victor Murdock. And when these busy, efficient and experienced feelers of the Kansas pulse go so far as to say that, it is already time to remove the cuspidor from under one of the seats in the Hall of Representatives and to dig up an old-rose blotting pad.

The very name of this prospective membress of Congress is a prognostication. It is one of those staunch, tried and true names that are inalienably associated with triumphs at the polls. Instinctively you picture a candidate bearing such a name as a master handshaker; as a world-beating jollier of voters and osculator of babies; as the silver-tongued haranguer of crowds; as one who certainly knows what the boys in the Fifth Ward will do and whether Bill Smith will be able to deliver on election day. Her name is Murphy—nay, more—her middle name is Morley. Mrs. Eva Morley Murphy is the way she signs it. If the first name were Katie or Bridget or Hannah her chances might be better, but, then, the Morley Murphy part of it ought to pull her through.

Mrs. Eva Morley Murphy is the Progressive Congressional nominee of the Sixth Kansas District. In estimating her chances of election it is vitally important to remember a few statistics about the Sixth Kansas District. It comprises 22 counties in that part of the State which lies from a little to the east of the center clear west to the Colorado line, the 22 counties being packed into the three northernmost tiers.

Now, in all these 22 counties is no center which might properly be called a city. Although they have a total population slightly in excess of 200,000, they have no congested district, not a single White Way; ne'er a lobster palace reservation. For the most part, these 200,000 Kansans are ruralists—not comedy-theater ruralists, with hayseeds, top boots and flannel petticoats, but automobile-driving, debt-paying, Sabbath-observing country folk, who send their sons and daughters to the State University and hate the Demon Rum with a holy, implacable hatred.

MRS. EVA MORLEY MURPHY

The present representative of that district in Congress is one John R Connelly. Mr. Connelly is an able and patriotic Democrat, who, in the last election, defeated the equally able and patriotic eRpublican, I. D. Young, by a majority of 988. As between Democrats and Republicans, this majority indicates that the difference is small enough to provide a somewhat exhilarating contest for supremacy. In the Connelly-Young campaign, however, the Progressives did not figure as partisans. Many Progressives voted the Democratic ticket and many other Progressives voted as often as they could for Young.

Now, according once more to those eminent statisticians, Messrs. Wiliam Allen White and Victor Murdock, things are different. Based on primary and other election returns, it is estimated that in the Sixth Kansas there are 18,000 Democratic voters, 14,000 Progressives and 8000 Republicans. But since the last election 25,000 women have been enfranchised. If the three parties should maintain their present eatios, and if a considerable number of women voters got behind a woman candidate, it is not difficult to determine who will be the next Congressman—rather Congresswoman. This is precisely what Mrs. Murphy, Allen, Murdock, et al. expect to happen.

Mrs. Murphy goes into the contest as the accredited Progressive nominee, a distinction she obtained at the polls in the recent primaries. Besides being prophets, Mr. Allen is the National Progressive Chairman for Kansas and Mr. Murdock has been suspected of having strong, one might almost saw inflexible Progressive leanings. Furthermore, Messrs. Allen and Murdock have mastered somewhat the essential elements of practical Kansas politics. So when Mr. Allen and Mr. Murdock, not content simply with prognosticating, chuck their coats and get out to fight for the election of Mrs. Murphy, the betting odds against her are bound to take a slump.

Mrs. Eva Morley Murphy is not altogether ungrounded herself in Kansas politics. She lives at Goodland and is justly celebrated in her own community as a writer, a W. C. T. U. worker, an officer in a federation of women's clubs, a zealous supporter of the church. She is highly accomplished, too, her greatest successes having been as cook and as a practical, working, satisfactory, everyday grandmother. Her husband is a successful lawyer.

Of course she entered her political career with the natural feminine shyness and efficiency. The efficiency is shown in the fact that she organized the women voters in every community in her district. She left nothing to chance. When the returns from the primary election were in, the practical masculine politicians had to admit that, when it came to organization, Mrs. Eva Morley Murphy had taught them all something. She relies upon this organization to pull her through the elections.

A great many Kansas women are going to vote in the general elections this fall. No Kansas politician deludes himself with the theory that the woman voter will follow any lord and master at the polls. Past events have demonstrated this effectively. That eminent and sterling Kansan, Gov. Hodges, Democratic nominee in the coming gubernatorial election, and that equally e. and s. K., Arthur Capper, the Republican nominee, are carefully trying to avoid alienating the women's vote, not only in the Sixth District, but everywhere else throughout the State. As for Henry J. Allan, also an e. and s. K., leader of the Progressive ticket, there aren't enough nice things for him to say about the lady voters.

That all parties concede the women's vote is to be a deciding factor in the campaign becomes apparent from a glance at the various party tickets. Already 21 women have positions on important boards appointed by the Governor. The tickets of all parties contain the names of women. One woman, Mrs Lizzie S. Sheldon of Lawrence, appears among the six nonpartisan nominees for the Supreme Court of the State. Miss Helen N. Eacker, club woman and suffragist, is Progressive nominee for State Auditor. Anna E. Arnold is Democratic nominee for State Superintendent of Public Instruction. Ella R. Baldwin is Republican candidate for Secretary of State. All of which shows that none of the parties is willing to take a chance of offending the ladies.

MRS. LENA HARTZELL WALLACE

Prohibition candidate for Congress from Second District.

MISS ESTHER MEADE

Justice of the Peace by appointment and 1st Woman Judge in Kansas.

KATE L. COWICK

Democratic candidate for Treasurer of Wyandotte County.

Besides Mrs. Murphy, there are two other women Congressional candidates. They are Mrs. Sena Hartzel Wallace of Kansas City, Kan., in the Second District, and Mrs. Emma W. Grover of Winfield, in the Third District. Of these it is hard to say which has the hardest sledding ahead. Mrs. Wallace's district is now represented by Joseph Taggart, former Prosecuting Attorney of Wyandotte County, a Democrat. Wyandotte is nominally Democratic and is the strongest county in the district, although the last Progressive nominee polled 2097, as against Taggart's 25,879.

The Third District, now represented by Philip P. Campbell, a Republican, is in the southeastern part of the State. There it was where the sturdy yeomanry held out longest against what they called the ignis fatuus, prohibition. There it was where the oases flourished longest and most luxuriously when all about them was dry. The Third may be about to capitulate at last dear girl too well. But, as it happens, I can give a very fair account. When I left for the meeting which I was to attend that evening, I picked up the doctor--Dr. Brabant--half-way down the High street, and we drove to the hall together. Sartoli let me in when I returned and came up to the dressing room and must have heard me lock the door."

CLEEK whipped around on him like a flash.

"Sartoli? Who is he?"

"My valet. And the best friend I ever had.

"As I was saying"——

But Cleek interrupted him with an uplifting of the hand.

"I think," said he quietly, "if you don't mind, I should like to see this Sartoli. A matter of form, but one has to probe into the most unlikely depths before the particular oyster with the pearl turns up."

They bent their steps to the octagonal room as if by common consent and Mr. Shadbolt gave a whispered command to a servant as they passed through the old hall.

They had barely reached the room when there sounded a soft knock at the door, and there entered a timid little dark man, with the face of one of the Italian saints, his soft step hardly sounding on the thickly-covered floor.

"Ah, signor, signor, I watch for you," he broke out, as he caught sight of his master. "You eat nozzing."

"That's all right, Sartoli, that's all right," interrupted Mr. Shadbolt in kindly impatience. "This gentleman wants to ask you just a few questions. Tell him as quickly as you can."

"Yes, sare. The Signor quite right. In ees room all ze night. I swear zat." He stretched out a shapely hand, as if to raise it, and Cleek's sharp eye fell forward eagerly and scanned the spot upon a little wound on the underpart of the wrist, scarcely healed. He bent with narrowed eyes.

"Hullo," said he, "what's that? Hurt yourself?"

"No, sare, it is nozzing—poor Pollee—ze parrot sare. Mees Mary's pet bird—she bit me when I feed him."

"Mrs. Shadbolt liked birds?" interrupted Cleek, whipping around on the Squire and fixing him with a tense look.

"She had an aviary of them," returned Mr. Shadbolt. "But Polly was an especial favorite, though she was of an uncertain temper. She usually kept the bird in her boudoir—in fact, I believe she was there the night she disappeared."

"Hum! I'd like to have a look at the beauty, if I may," said Cleek. "Where d'you keep her?"

But Sartoli shook his head. "Poor Pollee dead—I bury her myself yaisterday."

"What's that? The parrot dead, too! 'Pon my soul, the house will be a regular mortuary."

"Just so," said Cleek. "Oh, well, I can soon find you another. I've got the address of a splendid bird fancier who has done good work for me many times. Here, Mr. Narkom, if you wouldn't mind running back to the Firefly my man would give you my private address book. Here's a note for him. Off you go, and we'll have another Polly here in no time"—and before Mr. Shadbolt could interfere he had scribbled something on a leaf and put it into Mr. Narkom's only too willing hand.

"If that man doesn't bring you the finest talking parrot you ever came across, I'll eat my hat," said he calmly, as the door closed behind the Superintendent's retreating figure. "Now, Mr. Sartoli, I shan't keep you many minutes—but you helped break open this door, did you not?"

"Yes, sare, I push and beat it down."

"That settles it, then," said Cleek quietly, and he moved slowly across the room.

SARTOLI turned as if to go, when there came the sound as of hurried footsteps, and the door was flung open by the Superintendent. Outside could be heard the sound of the hubbub of voices.

Cleek's face looped into a smile of triumph. "Right, was I, Mr. Narkom?" he queried triumphantly.

"Good God, yes—right as rain! We found her just as you said in the chapel in an underground receiving vault before the altar."

"Dead?" asked Cleek. "Have courage, Mr. Shadbolt. If my theory is correct we may yet restore your bride to you."

"Yes, there is still life," panted Mr. Narkom. "Restoratives have been given. It seems to be a strange case of suspended animation if life does actually remain."

As Ailsa rushed from the room to go to her friend, Shadbolt in a terrific agony of suspense started to follow her. Cleek, with a panther-like movement stood between him and the door.

"No! No! Mr. Shadbolt," he broke out. "She does not need you now, but will need you later on. Miss Lorne will do all that can be done."

"What do you mean?" he cried.

Sartoli crossed the room; but Cleek was before him.

"No, you don't, my beauty! I know your little methods too well!"

Speaking, he sprang with a sharp, flashing movement, more like a cat on a hapless mouse. There was a yell, a brief struggle, a click of grating handcuffs, and a minute later the startled watchers saw him rise and stand looking down at Sartoli lying crumpled in a heap, his eyes flashing mingled hate and despair.

"You seem to take it hard, my friend," said Cleek, in a voice full of loathing. "Just for the present I merely want to gain a little more information about that key to Mrs. Shadbolt's room and a little more information about that parrot. If I am not wrong I think we shall get the whole story shortly now. You are in for the surprise of your life. Look!"

POINTING to the door for one dramatic second Cleek held the attention of the manacled Italian and the cowed husband as tremblingly the beautiful Mary Shadbolt entered.

She was supported by Ailsa Lorne on one side and Mr. Narkom on the other. Yet she walked as though hardly conscious of what she did.

"Mary!" shrieked the distracted husband as he stood with outstretched arms; "Mary, my wife, are you really alive?"

An entirely different cry was that of the Italian, who, lifting his hands above his head, fell to his knees.

"Take the ghost away!" he cried in a disgusting abandon of terror. "She has come back to haunt me. Signor, do not let her touch me. Take the ghost away. I love her. I would take much wealth and fly with her, but she will not. I killed her, yes."

Wonderingly the young wife looked about her, and, pointing at the abject Italian, asked:

"What has happened? Where have I been? What have I been doing? I seem to have returned from the dead."

"You have been in a perfectly safe place," broke in Cleek, "and you have only been there for a little less than forty-eight hours."

"Mr. Narkom," said Cleek, "did Potter find the bird buried in the garden as I suggested in my note?"

"Here it is, sir," said the constable, advancing with the dead bird in a pasteboard box.

Taking the bird in his hands, Cleek examined the sharp beak and sniffed.

"As I thought," he said. "Sartoli wants to say something else."

"I did not mean that he should die," insisted Sartoli. "When he came asking for Signora I make the accident with roses in a vase scratching his hand with the poisoned thorn. He seem like he got too much, for he fell over dead. Then I drag body to conservatory and lay pistol by his hand like you found him."

"Did you actually put the bullet in his heart in order to divert suspicion on the poor fellow?" asked Cleek.

The Italian, with a shrug of his shoulders, replied: "He was already dead; it could not hurt him."

"So much for that," said Cleek turning away as the others stood horror stricken at the shameless confession of the thieving valet. "Perhaps now Mrs. Shadbolt would like to see the place where this amiable Sartoli placed her for a short sleep. I think he intended that she should never awake."

The party then made for the door, but Cleek stopped them with a gesture.

"There is another way—look!"

He crossed to the carved Madonna and beckoned to Mr. Shadbolt.

"Push," he said, and in another minute the figure slid back, revealing a flight of steps leading down into what appeared a dark circular passage. They go right down through one of those fluted columns underneath and into the chapel. Strange you never discovered this before. The somewhat insecure look of the statue upon its pedestal gave me an inkling of the truth immediately. Well, after you had gone, Sartoli came through this way, but there is no need for us to follow his example. Call a guard for that devil, Mr. Narkom, and let us go. I want to clear one other point."

The struggling, cursing figure was speedily given over to Sergt. Potter, and the others passed swiftly to the chapel.

In front of the altar the flowers and stone step had been removed, and there lay revealed the stone vault into which the unconscious Mary Shadbolt had been placed.

Mr. Narkom leaned over and touched Cleek on the arm.

"How did you know she was in the chapel?" whispered he.

"The piece of rosemary. It is often put on Italian graves, and when I stepped up to the altar and felt the stone beneath my feet shift uncertainly, and smelled the strong scent of the gardenias and hyacinths they also aroused my suspicions. The dead parrot settled the question."

He turned to Mr. Narkom and led him away.

"Come," he said, "the riddle is ended."

They swung upon their heels and with Ailsa passed out into the glorious sunlight. In the doorway they paused and on the brink of the grave from which the young wife had arisen the husband and wife stood in a long embrace.

SPY! SPY! SPY!

automobiles and bicycles not bearing officers in uniform are banned from the roads; that all residents must remain in their homes after 8 o'clock at night, and must not quit their localities between 6 p. m. and 6 a. m. No person is privileged to pass the British lines on any pretext whatever without an authorization signed by a British officer.

Any German encountered in civilian dress by the allies is considered as prima facie a spy, and the rule is to shoot first and investigate afterwards. Germans who do not surrender at the first summons are to be instantly executed.

Carrier pigeons are considered a favorite equipment of spies, and anyone seen releasing a pigeon in the warring countries of Europe seals his own death warrant. A Belgian woman, on a train from Antwerp, detected a man stealthily releasing through a window pigeons which he had concealed in a bag. She seized him and held him until other passengers went to her aid. He was courtmartialed and shot.

At Louvain a German and a Belgian man and woman were coutmartialed and shot for warning the Germans after the battle of Diest of the prospects which awaited them at Haelen. The Postmaster and Mayor of Thann, German officials in Alsace, were executed as spies after the French occupied Muelhausen.

A bellboy of the Hotel Astoria, in Paris, reported to gendarmes that by accident he had found the manager of the hotel sitting in an attic of the building with telephone receivers to his ears. The place was raided and the manager was arrested. He was shot as a spy when there was found on the roof a complete wireless receiving station, together with 250 sheets of German script recording wireless messages sent out from the Eiffel Tower. A Paris tradesman, who had sent reports to a French secret service man under the delusion that he was a German agent, was also shot as a spy.

A German girl spy was arrested by English soldiers on the bridge over the Oise River at La Croix. In her possession were plans of all the bridges and forts in the vicinity of Paris. She was scarcely 17 years old.

A German officer, wearing the uniform of the French automobile corps, was arrested and executed, 18 miles south of Paris, after the retreat of the German army. In Paris three men were detected sending illuminated signals to Bellevue, an eastern quarter of the city; and in a vacant house in Bellevue they found a fourth man with a safe-conduct issued to him by the German general staff in Belgium. They were put to death.

Mrs. C. J. Devlin of New York and her three daughters, they related on their return home in September, noticed that two "women" sitting near them in a cafe in Cologne had unusually large feet. One of the daughters whispered that the "women" must hail from Chicago, and the others laughed. Instantly German officers leaped upon the large-footed persons and found they were Russian men, acting as spies.

In Paris a number of Uhlans hid themselves in a house, and their strange actions aroused the suspicions of neighbors. A company of zouaves took the house by storm, being fired upon by the defenders, and found it harbored a nest of spies.

Many spies, French, English and German, protest when arrested that they are Americans. One such, with wire-cutting implements in his pocket, was arrested while asking information of peasants as to the movements of troops near Chalons. When it was ascertained that he was not an American but a German, he was executed. Nearby a spy was taken who wore on his arm a badge inscribed "English interpreter."

Lieutenant-Marshal Wadinaski of the Austrian army, a Slav, was shot on a charge that he had delivered information to the Russians. The same fate overtook the station master at Lemberg, a man named Redl.

The Austrian reverses in Galicia were attributed to exact information possessed by the Russian Foreign Office as to Austria's mobilization and campaign plans. Liege is said to have fallen because German spies, sent into Belgium as salesmen of scythes, supplied precise facts as to the position of the Belgian batteries. Namur fell, according to one report, because spies gave information which enabled the Germans to lower the tide gates of the Meuse, thus lowering its waters, extremely deep at that point, and to cross the river. When the commander at Namur attempted to call reinforcements by underground telephone, he found that the wires had been cut by spies.

When France and Germany Made Peace

"Your Excellency might have added, 'and unfortunate.'"

"Si vous voulez" ("If you so wish"), retorted Bismarck, motioning his interlocutor to a seat.

At one of the very last sessions the entire peace work, so slowly and so painfully built up, threatened to crumble to pieces.

There is no official account of it, but the Ministry of Foreign Affairs relates the incident as follows:

Meeting of March 3, 1871:

Bismarck: We have now come to the conditions relative to the occupation of Paris by our troops.

Jules Favre: Your Excellency is aware that such occupation is impossible.

Bismarck (smiling): Isn't there a French proverb which says that the word impossible is not French? ("Le mot impossible n'est pas Francais.")

Jules Favre: There is also a Latin proverb which says "Vae victis."

Bismarck: Very true, Your Excellency; but the occupation of Paris is necessary as a reward to our troops for their valiant conduct. Moreover, you Frenchmen always say "there is but one Paris." We wish to convince ourselves that it is what you claim it to be. Property will be protected and our men, I give you my word, will behave. ("Se conduiront bien.")

Jules Favre: Does Your Excellency realize what it means to us to see Paris occupied by German troops?

Bismarck: Fully.

Jules Favre: Then I must tell Your Excellency that neither the French Government nor I can prevent rioting which the sight of the Prussian uniforms on our boulevards will incite. O, mon Dieu! Who can realize what it means to be the peace delegate of a defeated nation? To stand before a haughty conqueror, to try to soften a heart which does not want to be softened? That burden is too much for my own shoulders. You may walk into Paris, you may burn it up, but we will not be disgraced by permitting you to do so. Your Excellency, allow me to retire.

Thiers and Favre negotiated the final terms of surrender, which resulted in the cessation of hostilities and the treaty of Frankfort, by which France ceded Alsace, part of Lorraine, including the cities of Strasbourg and Metz, and an indemnity of 5,000,000,000 francs. Bismarck for a long time insisted upon the cession of Belfort also, but the French held out against this.

"I do not believe," said Favre, in writing of the final scene, when Bismarck and Gen. von Moltke were closeted over this proposition, "that any criminal ever waited for judgment with more feverish anxiety. Motionless and mute, we followed with bewildered gaze the advancing hands of the clock. The door opened and Bismarck announced he would not insist on the entry of German troops into Paris provided we gave him Belfort.

"'Nothing,' replied M. Thiers, 'will equal the grief of Paris when it opens its undesecrated walls to the foe which could not force them. Nevertheless, it is willing to drain the cup to the dregs in order to preserve to the nation a spot of ground and a heroic city.'

"'Think well over it,' said the Count. 'Perhaps you will rue the rejection of our proposal.'

"'We should be wanting in our duty if we accepted it,' replied M. Thiers.

"The doors closed again and the two Prussian statesmen resumed their consultation.

"It seemed to us to last a century. Moltke left, but the King had to be seen. At 6:30 he went to His Majesty and at 8 M. Thiers reaped the reward of his heroic exertions. He had saved Belfort."

The grim German Chancellor kept his part of the bargain, too, for he marched German troops under the Arc de Triomphe into Paris, perhaps the bitterest humiliation that the entire war brought to the people of that city.

V. THE INVASION OF THE OGRE'S CASTLE.

SYNOPSIS.

LIEUT. FORBES, U. S. A., back from the Philippines, sees New York after many years' absence and it goes to his head. He follows, by means of a Fifth avenue bus, a motor car containing a lady who fascinates him, although he does not see her face. That night at a theater Murray Ten Eyck introduces him to Persis Cabot and he learns she is the lady he followed. Her party adopt him and teach him to tango. In 24 hours he is deeply in love with Persis, who seems to be engaged to Willie Enslee, principaly because Willie is rich and elder Cabot is losing his footing in Wall street. In order to lunch with Persis Forbes is compelled to ask Mrs. Neff to make up a party for the Ritz.

PERSIS was growing drowsy-eyed and heavy limbed, with an almost voluptuous longing for sleep. She drooped like a flower at sunset. She ceased to smuggle her yawns and sighs, and once or twice she forgot to lift her hand to hide them.

Forbes was so infatuated that he admired even her yawns. He wanted to whisper over her round shoulder: "How pretty you are when you are a sleepyhead!" But he had been lessoned enough for one evening.

At last, however, she gave up the effort to go on dancing forever. She inquired for Willie. He was hot to be seen. Ten Eyck went exploring, and found him in retirement, clutching a big highball glass with his little raccoon-like fingers and blinking his little raccoon-like eyes.

However, as they were all waiting on the curb in the fresh auroral air, while the starter whistled up their cars, Forbes ventured a chance to murmur to Persis:

"I beg you to go home and sleep till noon. Please don't try to get up and ride in the morning."

"I must," she answered. "It's the only duty I do."

But the note of protecting solicitude in his voice had touched her. She turned softer eyes upon him and smiled.

"We'll dance some more tomorrow afternoon. Till then, au revoir."

"But I am to revoir you in the park in a few hours?"

"So you say."

"Also at luncheon?"

"Oh, yes, of course."

"Persis, are you never c-coming?" Willie Enslee hiccoughed.

"Yes, pet," she laughed, ironically, and nodded again to Forbes. Forbes winced at the endearment she gave Enslee, even though he felt it to be sarcastic. He winced again as Enslee took her white elbow in his white glove and made a fumbling effort to help her in. The white fleece she was vanished into his dark car like a moon slipping into clouds.

Forbes set out to walk to his hotel. It was only a few blocks away, but it seemed a hundred miles. He plucked off his clothes in a stupor, and slid straight into the abyss of sleep as he shoved his dance-weary toes down into the sheets.

When he awoke he reached for his watch, wondering if he could not have a little further nap to get back into that dream without delay.

But the dial blandly informed him that it wanted a few minutes to noon. Horror shook him wide awake.

He leaped from his hateful couch, swearing at himself like an army teamster. He was doubly indignant with himself because he had counted upon that morning gallop. He rode like a centaur, though with the military and not the park seat, and he had expected his horsemanship to commend him to Persis.

How should he apologize? He could not wait till he saw her. The offense must be erased before it set. He must call her up instantly. He ransacked the dangling telephone tome. Her father's office was mentioned, but not his residence. Yet he must have a residence, and it must have a telephone.

At length he screwed his courage to the point of calling up the office of her father. Here he learned only that Mr. Cabot had left the office, and it was contrary to orders to give his house number.

After beating his head and hands vainly for a long time against those walls that New Yorkers have to build about themselves if they are ever to know seclusion, Forbes remembered Ten Eyck and called up his house. He was not at home and his whereabouts were unknown.

Forbes gave up. He telephoned for "coffee and rolls and a morning paper in a powerful hurry" and stormed into his bathroom. When he came out as sparsely dressed as most of the gentlemen are in the advertising pages of the magazines, he found his breakfast on a little half table mysteriously brought in.

WHILE he danced into his trousers his eyes were caught by headlines on the paper folded at his plate:

"Mayor Puts Lid on Thes Dansants."

According to the newspaper account of a typical dancing tea, it was apparent that Forbes had failed to grasp the depravity of the crowd he had been dancing with; it seemed that the women were all fat fiends pursuing immature schoolgirls, and the men all evil-eyed brokers whose corpulence alone was proof enough of their wickedness.

Forbes stared aghast at a wholesale condemnation that must include Mrs. Neff, Persis, Winifred, Alice and the respectable set.

The curious mania for public dancing had enabled him, though come to town a stranger, to join immediately in festival relations with people to whose homes he would normally have been months in penetrating. The Mayor's edict revoked this democracy, and he was once more a stranger in the city. He must meet his new-found friends formally and at long intervals, if at all. He thanked his stars that he had arranged to give the luncheon in time. He must set about ordering it at once, and he must see to it that there was no flaw in its perfection.

On his way to the Ritz-Carlton, Forbes stopped at his bank to draw some money. He decided that he would better take along a hundred dollars. It would look impressive when he paid the waiter. He realized that it would drag his bank account below the acceptable minimum. But he set his teeth and determined to do the thing right if he bankrupted the Government. He would probably need most of the rest of the hundred before the week was out. He could begin to save when he was in his uniform again.

He drew the money, strolled to the hotel, asked for Fernand and found him at a glass screen in a superb room that ran from street to street.

Fernand was cautiously gracious till he learned that Miss Cabot had sent Forbes to him; then he became quite paternal. Forbes slipped him a $10 bill, and he listened almost tenderly as Forbes explained:

"I want to give a little luncheon—nothing elaborate, but—well, something nice, you know."

"Perfectly, M'sieur. And how many will there be?"

Fernand spoke English glibly, with hardly more accent than a sweetish thickness.

"We are seven," said Forbes.

"Very good, sir. Will you select what you wish, or"—

He handed Forbes the card of the day. Forbes looked at the French. He could read military memoirs and strategical works in French, but he was floored by the technical food terms. A glimpse at the prices unnerved him further; but he asked: "What would you suggest—I'm just home from Asia. I feel a little out of it."

"If Monsieur would permit me," said Fernand, with the eagerness of a benevolent conspirator, an artist with a mission, "I will arrange it and give you a pleasant surprise or two."

Forbes swallowed a small lump of embarrassment, and was careful to ask carelessly:

"About how much would it be?"

FORBES felt ashamed of discussing prices, though many a richer man, especially Enslee, would have fought all along the line and delivered an oration on the extortions of restaurateurs. But Fernand began to compute:

"Let me see; seven cocktails at 25 is $1.75. Caviar would be $1.25 per person; for seven would be $8.75. The puree St. Germain we shall make it special—say, about $5. I should recommend the poulet de grain aux cepes; it is $2.50 per person. You do not really need any legumes except the asparagus. Oh, this morning, what asparagus! I saw it! Asparagus, yes?" Forbes nodded desperately. "That will be $7 more, but then you will not wish salade—no, you will not wish salade, though the endive is—no, we will not have endive. For the sweet would you wish special favors? No, it is too much; the Neselrode pudding is nice. Miss Cabot adores the marrons—good. We might serve cheese, though it is too much. But we will have it ready. Then the coffee is special, and a liqueur, perhaps—yes? Miss Cabot likes the white mint. There will be some cigars for the gentlemen, of course—and the ladies will take their cigarettes with their coffee down the steps here, I presume. Now, let me see." He mumbled his addition a moment, then broke the news. "That makes—about $54.75. Yes—ah, no! We have not added the sherry—one bottle, perhaps two. So you see, monsieur, it will come only to $65, roughly."

Forbes thought the word "roughly" appropriate. In his soul there was a sound like the last sough of water in an emptying bathtub. He added mentally the $10 he had given Fernand and the $10 he must give the waiter. He wondered if he looked as sick as he felt; as sick as his hundred dollars would look.

He gave Fernand the order to go ahead. Fernand was upset by the brevity of the time allotted him, but promised to do his best.

Forbes, having a little while to kill, set out for a stroll round the block. It came to him suddenly that the precious hundred dollars, he had drawn to make a good show would evaporate and leave almost nothing. He went to his bank and wrote a check for $50 more. As he stood waiting at the paying teller's grill, he felt as if he were a forger, taking money he had no right to. But the teller expressed no surprise.

WHEN Forbes returned to the Ritz-Carlton he found his guests already gathering in the lounge. Willie Enslee came in late and surly. He explained that his man had had the impudence to fall ill and had left him to dress himself.

They had their cocktails, and then Forbes led his little flock up to the rich pasture. He had to beg pardon through a knot of people pleading vainly for tables in the circle. They were being turned off into the side rooms of mediocrity.

It gave Forbes a feeling of elation to be greeted with homage by name and led at once to his table. It made a brave showing with silver, glass and napery already disposed, and a great bouquet of fresh lilacs in the center.

He attempted to grovel before Persis in apology for oversleeping. But she refused to take the offense seriously, and she congratulated him for having the courage and honesty to confess the real excuse for absence. He told her that he was sure, from her alert and lustrous eye, that she, too, had overslept, but she vowed she had not, and he wondered again that such delicate beauty should be cojoined to such unfailing strength.

Save when it was interrupted by exclamations of applause for the choice of the dishes, or childish yum-yums for exquisiteness of their preparation, the talk was all about the Mayor's order closing the thes dansants.

"They call this a free country," Mrs. Neff grumbled, "and yet they tell us we may not dance with our tea!"

Ten Eyck, the consoler, came to the rescue. "Sigh no more, ladies! There'll be turkey-trotting in this old town when we're all trotted out to Woodlawn. Forbsey, were you ever in Yellowstone Park?"

"Yes."

"Did you see the Old Faithful Geyser geyse?"

"Yes."

"Remember how she would lie quiet as a tub for an hour, and then blow off her head and explode a stream of water to the clouds, make an awful fuss for a few minutes, and then drop off to sleep again?"

"Yes."

"Well, that's reform in New York or any big town. There's wild excitement now; there'll be editorials and sermons and police raids and license revoking for a few days. Then everything will quiet down and in a week all the old dancing stands will be running away as before."

WILLIE changed the subject with his usual abruptness. All this time he had been revealing an unexpected enthusiasm for the little purple forest of lilacs in the centerpiece. He kept pulling the nearest sprays to him and breathing their incense in.

"Do you know I simply adore lilacs," he smiled. "Up at my country place they must be glorious. My gardener writes me they have never been so good as this year. I wish I could see them."

Nobody paid much heed to his emotions until, a little later, he broke out suddenly:

"By Jove, I believe I'll take a run up in the country and see my lilacs and spend a night in real air."

"That's a fine idea," said Winifred, "we'll all go along."

"No, no, you won't," said Willie. "The place isn't open yet. Nobody there but the gardener and his helpers."

This checked Winifred only for a moment, then she returned to the charge.

"All the more fun," she exclaimed. "Let's all go up and make a week-end of it."

"We have to eat, you know," Willie reminded her, coldly, "and nobody to cook it."

"I'm a love of a cook," said Winifred. "And I've been through your kitchen up there. It's a model—electric dingbats and all sorts of things. I'll cook the meals if the rest of you will build the fires and make the beds and wash the dishes."

"But there are no servants there, I tell you," Willie reiterated. "You don't seriously expect us to go up there and do our own work?"

"Why not?" said Winifred. "It's time you learned to use your lazy hands before they drop off from neglect."

"No, thank you!" Willie demurred. "If we've got to go, we'll take along some deckhands. What do you say, Persis?"

"The only thing I like about it," said Persis, "is the absence of the servants. I can't remember a time when they haven't been standing round staring or listening through the doors. Oh, Lord, how good it would be to be out from under their thumbs for a few days!"

"We can't afford the scandal," said Willie. "Servants are the best chaperons there are. If we went up without them there'd be a sensation in the papers."

"You and your fear of the newspapers!" Winifred retorted. "They need never know."

"You can't go up to my place without some chaperon!" Willie snapped, with a pettish firmness. "I don't run a roadhouse, you know."

"If you've got to have a chaperon, maybe you'd take me," said Mrs. Neff.

"You!" Willie laughed cynically. "And who'll chaperon the chaperon? You'll make more mischief than anybody."

Forbes dared not speak, but he was aglow with the vision of a few days with Persis in the country. As he crossed the continent he had seen the traces of spring everywhere; everywhere the mad incendiary had been kindling fires in tree and shrub and sward. From the train window he had watched the splendors unroll like a moving film. He had wished to leap from the car and wander with somebody—with a vague somebody. And now he had found her, and the golden opportunity tapped on the window.

WILLIE fenced with Winifred till the luncheon was finished. Then they retired to the lounge for coffee. Here women had the franchise for public smoking, and they puffed like small boys. Winifred renewed the battle for the picnic.

Then Willie gave in, but on the ground that Persis wanted it. He attempted a sheepish gallantry and a veiled romantic reference. He, too, had a touch of April in his frosty little heart. Forbes winced at the rivalry; but at any price he wanted to be with Persis where the spring was.

Willie went to call up his gardener and have the house thrown open to the air and fresh provisions ordered in.

"CLEEK pointed to a little red mark on the man's hand. 'That's what I mean,' said he quietly, in a low-pitched voice. 'Just that tiny spot, but big enough to open wide the portals of death, my friend. Maurice Ward has been murdered with poison—possibly aqua torfana.'" always thought he had forgotten her. That was on Friday, and nothing happened at all. There was no further sign of Maurice Ward."

"Wasn't there any letter?"

"No, nothing."

"I see. I see," said Cleek quietly. "And now, what about Mrs. Shadbolt's health? Was she in her usual spirits all day?"

"Quite," said Ailsa, "until after dinner, when she complained of headache, and after Mr. Shadbolt had driven off to a meeting some 20 miles away, she said she would go and rest in the octagonal room. I was busy finishing a pen-and-ink drawing, and did not offer to accompany her. Oh, if only I had!

"It was just half-past ten when I finished. I was quite startled when I glanced down at my wrist watch to see how late it was. So I put away my things quickly and went upstairs. I looked in at the octagonal room, but Mary was lying asleep in her chair near the fireplace, so I wouldn't disturb her, and tiptoed out, shutting the door softly."

"She was alive then, I suppose?" said Cleek.

Ailsa looked at him—startled, afraid.

"What makes you say such a thing as that? Yes, I'm sure she was all right—though I didn't see her dear face. That was turned to the wall. Well, 10 minutes later, Jane Kent"——

"Another factor in the case, eh?"

"Yes, her maid," said Ailsa. "A good girl, but a very awkward one. Jane tapped at the door and tried it, but it was locked, so that proved Mary was alive."

"One moment," ripped Cleek. "Let us be clear on this point. The door was not locked when you passed, but was locked 10 minutes later?"

"Exactly. And what happened from that moment God alone knows. At 8 o'clock in the morning Jane went to Mary's bedroom on the other side of the landing, but found that the bed had never been slept in at all. Mr. Shadbolt returned very late, and slept in his dressing room so that he should not disturb her."

"Thoughtful man, that," murmured Cleek placidly. "And where was he then?"

"At service in the chapel. When he returned I told him about this—Jane had come rushing to me. We all three went to the octagonal room. We thought Mary had probably slept through the night there. We called and called and then tried the door."

"Which was still locked, I suppose?" aid Cleek—staring up at the beautifully paneled ceiling with the eye of a connoisseur.

"Yes, and at last we alarmed the whole household and broke down the door, only to find the room empty!"

"And what about Maurice Ward?" he asked abruptly. "Who discovered the body?"

"Mr. Shadbolt himself. He went to the conservatory for flowers for the chapel. He has always made it a great point to have plenty of flowers—and there, half hidden by the palms, was the body. Maurice had evidently shot himself and so put an end to his miserable existence."

"And what did Mr. Shadbolt do?"

"Gave orders to Davison to send for the police, and went back to the octagonal room, where he is at this very minute. I think that is all. And now I will go up and see if I can persuade him to see you, shall I?"

"Yes, do," said Cleek. "And I should like to examine the room for myself."

"It's a bit of a poser this time, and no mistake," said Mr. Narkom as the door closed behind her, patting the bald spot on the top of his head. "What do you make of it, eh?"

"Tell you better when I've seen Mr. James Shadbolt and the deceased Maurice Ward," said Cleek, staring fixedly at a quaint old Italian statuette. "Nice little work of art, that. Worth a small fortune in itself." He strolled over and gazed at it admiringly.

"IT was close on half an hour later when the opportunity to interview Mr. James Shadbolt was eventually accorded them, and Ailsa returned to take them up to the octagonal room. It was, as she had said, a beautiful place, furnished with all the luxury that an artistic spirit—combined with the ever essential money—could devise, and in the chair in which his young bride had possibly taken her last sleep sat an old man, bent of back, bowed of head.

Ailsa went over and touched the sorrowing old man on the shoulder.

"Mr. Shadbolt," she whispered, "you must come away. The gentlemen from Scotland Yard are here—you must see them."

"Oh, I can't, Ailsa. I can't!" the old man bleated despairingly.

Cleek gave him a keen scrutiny and found himself astonished at what he saw. Far from being the jealous, crabby old art collector he had imagined, it was evident that he could not be more than fifty years of age, and in the very prime of his life. His aristocratic face—grief-lined as it was—his bearing—all proclaimed him as one of the old-world school, the school where courtesy and gentleness are among the chief qualities taught.

Cleek made a little clicking sound, indicative of mild distress, and suddenly Mr. Shadbolt rose to his feet and faced the intruders.

"Gentlemen," said he, gravely acknowledging Cleek's bow, "forgive my grief; but you don't know what my young wife was to me. Death is cruel—but suspense is more than I can bear. Find her! I'll give all my art treasures to the nation—I'll strip myself of every possession in the world, if you will only restore her to me."

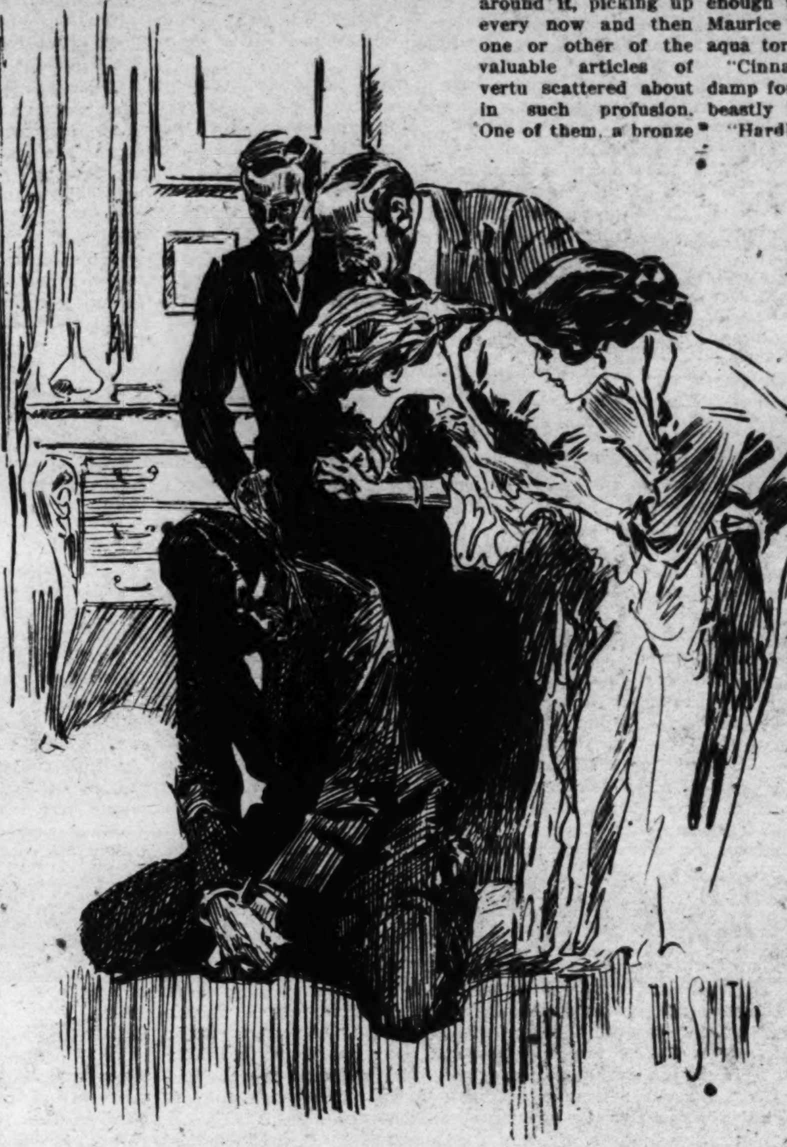
"This is Mr. Narkom," said Ailsa, thinking to distract his attention; "and this"—she hesitated.

"Cleek," interposed that gentleman serenely. "Just Cleek of Scotland Yard, at your service, Mr. Shadbolt."

"I have heard of you, sir," the old man said, extending a hand as Ailsa performed the introduction, "and I am glad to make your acquaintance—but I wish to God it had been under happier circumstances."

"And I," agreed Cleek, softly, with his queer little one-sided smile. "However, if the mystery is solvable, we will solve it. Believe that." He looked swiftly around the room. "Miss Lorne has given me permission to examine this room—have I yours also?"

Mr. Shadbolt bowed his head, and fortwith Cleek began his investigation. He wandered placidly enough around it, picking up every now and then one or other of the valuable articles of vertu scattered about in such profusion. One of them, a bronze statuette, seemed particularly to rivet his attention.



"The young wife looked at the abject Italian. 'What has happened?' she asked."

"A fine piece of work, this," he said, holding it at arm's length, with tilted head. "The Venus de Medici is not often found modeled in old bronze, is it?"

"Ah, sir, I see you are a connoisseur," said Mr. Shadbolt, a gleam of interest in his eye.

"Oh, nothing much. Manage to pick up a few odd scraps of knowledge," said Cleek.

He turned back to the table. As he did so, his foot caught in the soft rug, and he lurched up against it, the statuette stil in his hand. The sound of something falling made Mr. Shadbolt turn. The figure was broken into three pieces!

For a moment the little party stood aghast, while Cleek muttered "Bogus! I thought so." Mr. Shadbolt recovered himself and, putting the pieces away, bade him say no more; but there was a certain antagonism in his manner which had not been there before.

Humbly enough, the repentant Cleek examined the rest of the room, his eyes resting in mute admiration on the pictures and statues. There was a magnificently carved Madonna, which stood some distance away from the wall, that held him in mute admiration.

Cleek tapped and knocked against the oak paneling, but, as Ailsa had assured him, there was absolutely no nook or cranny in which a body could be concealed. The very floor itself was of polished stone, covered with carpets and thick rugs. The soft light of the candles—for there was obviously no gas or electric light—revealed no flaw or possible means of exit.

Presently Cleek gave vent to a little sigh. "Nothing to be gained here," he said, shutting his lips with a little snap; and Mr. Shadbolt drew a deep breath, almost as of relief.

"I should very much like to see the body of Mr. Ward, if you will show us the way. It's hardly a fit task for Miss Lorne, is it?"

Mr. Shadbolt assented gravely, and led the way downstairs to the conservatory. Here, in the midst of flowers, lay the body of the young sailor, and for a few moments the two detectives surveyed it in reverent silence.

That Ward had shot himself through the heart was self-evident. His uniform was all burned where the revolver, still clutched in his hand, had been fired against it.

"It's as plain as a pikestaff," whispered Mr. Narkom, in an excited undertone, noting that Mr. Shadbolt had fallen into a mournful reverie, his thoughts evidently far away from the grewsome scene. "He's killed off the girl, put the body somewhere, and then shot himself. If only we could find out where he did put her!"

"Yes," said Cleek placidly, picking up one of the candles which had been placed at the feet. "As friend Hamlet puts it, 'Ay, there's the rub!' If only he hadn't been poisoned first, your solution would probably be the correct one."

Mr. Narkom fairly gasped.

"Good heavens! what do you mean, Cleek?" he ejaculated, looking at his great ally in awed astonishment.

CLEEK pointed to a little red mark on the man's hand.

"That's what I mean," said he quietly, in a low-pitched voice. "Just that tiny spot, but big enough to open wide the portals of death, my friend. Maurice Ward has been murdered with poison—possibly aqua torfana."

"Cinnamon!" gasped the Superintendent, mopping his damp forehead with a silk handkerchief. "One of those beastly Italian poisons, Lucrezia Borgia stuffs"——

"Hardly. Aqua torfana is a far later poison, and the honor—or dishonor, I might say—of discovering the hideous thing lies with one of the paramours of that arch fiend, the Marquis de Brinvilliers. The inventor himself died accidentally through its fumes, and it is a pity that the formula did not die with him. In certain forms it will cause a state of suspended animation, but in this case, of course, the bullet prevented any possibility of revival."

"What a man you are," said Mr. Narkom admiringly; then he started like a hare that sees a steel trap. "Good heavens!—a husband's jealousy!" he muttered. "Why didn't I think of it before! What do you think, my dear chap?"

"Think?" said Cleek, turning sharply on his heel. "I think it's high time we got back to the Firefly. By gad, if we don't, Mr. Narkom, Dollops won't have left us a crust."

With a gently-spoken "Good night" to their host, the two men made their way to the hall, where they found Ailsa Lorne anxiously watching for them.

"Well?" she breathed.

Cleek smiled. "I'll be back in the morning," he said softly, holding her hand in his and looking long into her eyes. "But have no fear, Ailsa. There will be no more murders committed."

It was barely a quarter of an hour later when, having dismissed Sergt. Potter, Cleek and Mr. Narkom once more found themselves on board the Firefly.

AT exactly 10:30 next morning Cleek and Mr. Narkom once more sallied forth from the Firefly, leaving behind a most disconsolate Dollops, who would dearly have liked to be in at the "death" as it were, and who gazed wistfully after the retreating form of his master like a terrier deprived of his morning's run.

On the terrace they found Ailsa Lorne.

"I wonder whether you will discover anything today," she said earnestly, "before I leave."

Cleek started unconsciously. "You are going? But, of course, you can hardly stay here now, I suppose. Give me till midday, and then I will see. Where is Mr. Shadbolt at the present moment?"

"In the chapel, I think," said Ailsa, and as she spoke the solemn strains of organ sounded on their ears. "It is quite close here, and a real relic of the old times. The Shadbolts have always been very proud of their beautiful chapel. It is indeed one of the show places of the county. Would you like to see it?"

Some few moments later they were inside it, and for a moment the keen detective was lost in the artistic man. For the chapel was indeed as beautiful as Ailsa had said it to be. A rose window, delicate, intricate, flung its halo of multicolored sunshine upon the altar, like some gigantic kaleidoscope, distorting the objects thereon from their natural colors. Flowers were everywhere, in such an abundance as to make the air heavy with their perfume, and through it all, threading its way with an Oriental subtlety, was the scent of the incense which came from a lamp swinging over the altar steps.

Cleek stepped forward and surveyed the scene with an appreciative eye.

Then Mr. Shadbolt approached them, and as they made their salutations to him, he gazed in mute appeal at Cleek, as if imploring his help. They were quite close to the altar now, before which lay great clusters of gardenias and hot-house hyacinths.

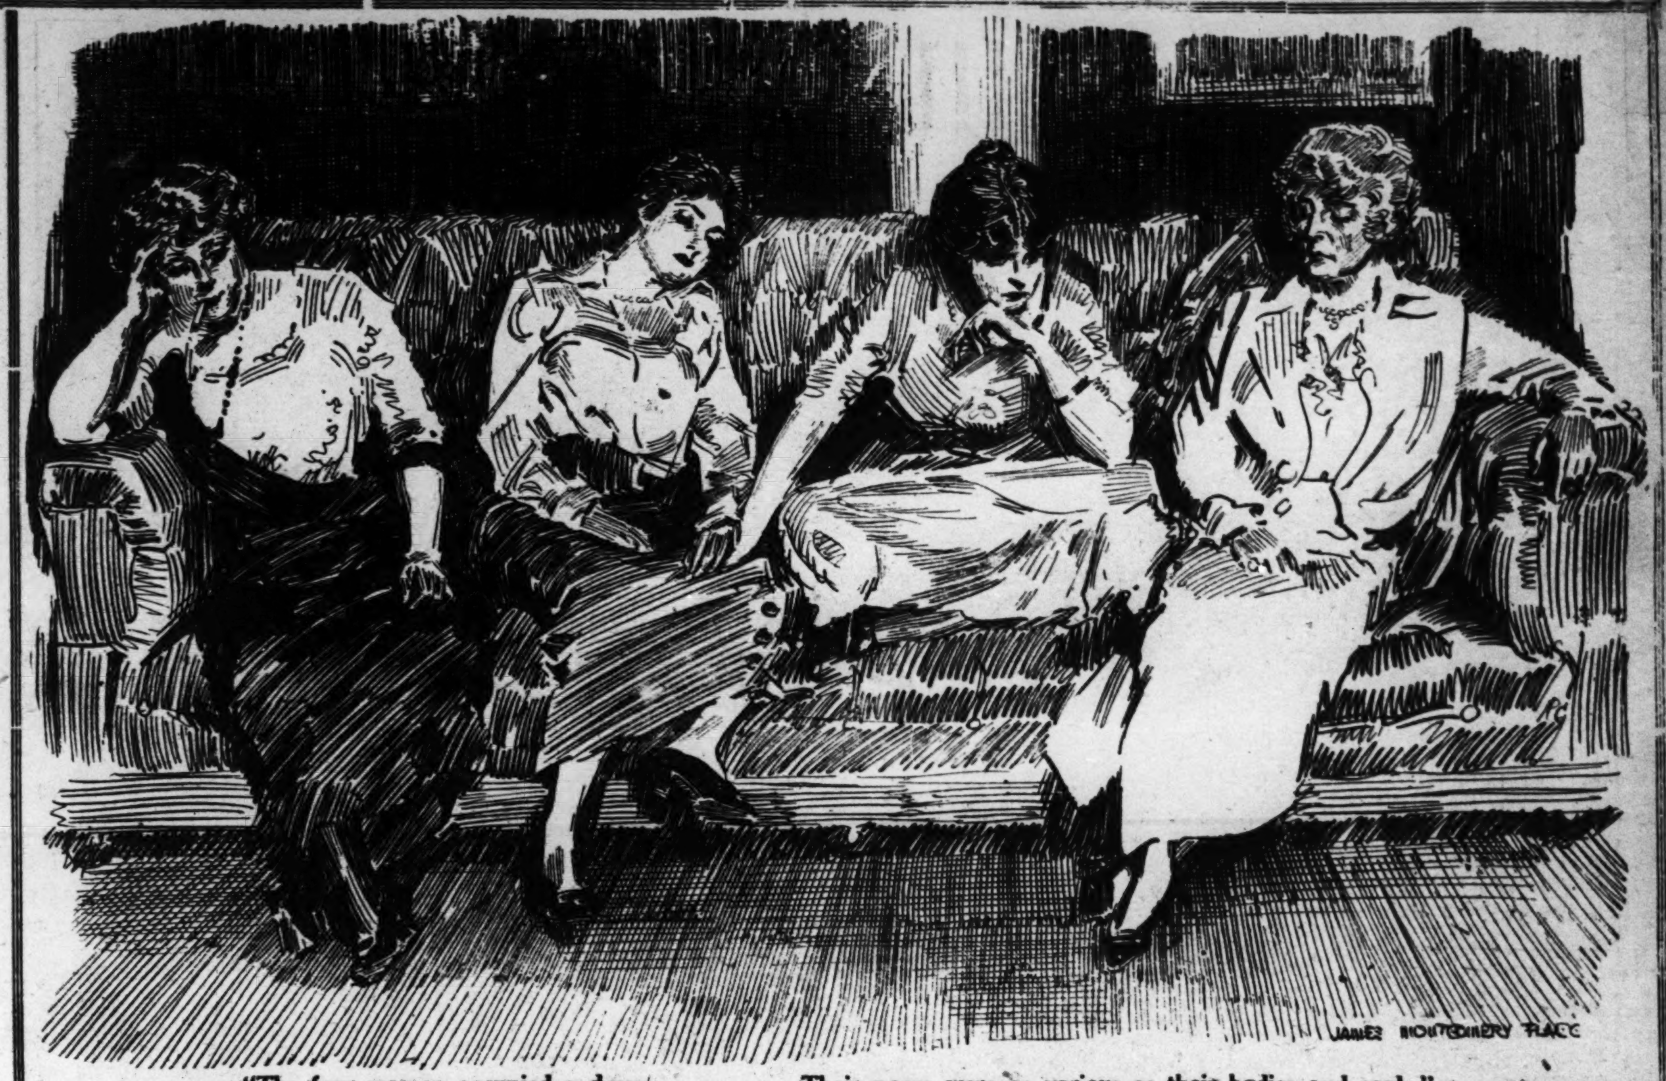
"Don't often see these flowers forced at this time of the year," said Cleek, bending down to sniff at them appreciatively. As he did so, a bit of green caught his eye, and he plunged his hand down into the flowery depths.

"What is it?" asked Mr. Shadbolt anxiously, bending forward to get a better view.

"Nothing in particular—just a little bit of rosemary. Forgive my disturbing your flowers like that, Mr. Shadbolt. 'Rosemary, that's for remembrance,'" he quoted softly.

"By the way," said he sharply, noting the Squire's sudden look of astonishment and fear, "I suppose you will be able to give an exact account of your time after you left The Towers? I should require it, you know, in the—er—cause of justice."

"Good God! it is impossible—how can they? Such an atrocious idea has never entered my head! I knew my



"The four women occupied a divan . . . Their poses were as various as their bodies and souls."

He had just gone when a page came to Persis with the word that her father wanted to speak to her on the telephone.

She gave a start and looked afraid as she rose. Forbes watched her go, and his heart prayed that no bad news might await her. She was so beautiful as she moved, and so plucky. He knew that she was frightened, but she spoke to various people as she passed with all the light-hearted graciousness imaginable. She came back speedily with a look of anxiety vainly resisted. She explained that her father was leaving for Chicago on the Twentieth Century and wanted to tell her good-by. She would barely have time to reach the house before he left.

Forbes offered to accompany her home. She insisted that he should not leave his guests. Winifred and Mrs. Neff rose at once, claiming that they must also leave to make ready for the excursion.

Forbes bade them good-by rather awkwardly. He regretted the disorder of his exit as a host, but he would not forfeit this chance to be alone with Persis.

She was so distressed about her father that she forgot Willie's existence, and left no message for him. When he had finished his tempest in a telephone booth and conveyed his orders to his head gardener, he found Mrs. Neff and Winifred waiting for their cars. They explained Persis' flight and made arrangements for the hour and place of meeting for the journey.

When Forbes hastened after the hastening Persis and saw how distraught she was he felt the sharp cutting edge of sympathy. It was his first sight of her in a mood of heartache, and his own heart ached akin.

When they reached the outer door they found to their amazement that it was raining hard.

While Persis waited for a taxicab Forbes tried to shelter her with his body. He ventured to hope that her father's absence would not distress her.

"Oh, no," she answered, bravely, "not at all. He's going on business. He told me the other day he might have to leave town for a few days—on business."

Forbes hesitated over his next words.

"I hope this won't prevent you from going up to Mr. Enslee's."

"Oh, no, quite the contrary," she said. "I'd be alone at home. I'll be glad of the—the diversion. Here's the taxi. It's really not necessary for you to go with me."

For answer he took her arm and ran with her to the door the footman opened. A blast of windy rain lashed them as they crept into the car. The door slammed and they were under way, running cautiously on the skiddish pavement.

AT last he was alone with her. The rain made their shelter cozier, and for all its bluster it was a spring rain. With its many-hoofed clatter it was a battalion of police clearing the way for the flower procession.

Thinking of this, Forbes said:

"I'm mighty glad you're not leaving town."

"But I am."

"With your father, I mean. You're leaving town with me instead."

She looked him in the eye with some surprise.

"It's a good thing we put the blame for that luncheon on Mrs. Neff. It tickled her to death and—do you know that Willie really thinks you're flirting with her—or aiming at Alice? He can't tell which." She laughed deliciously. It didn't grieve her to fool Willie.

"I'm not flirting with anybody," he said. "I'm adoring you."

A little frown of bewilderment troubled the smile she gave him. She felt his hand on hers and tried to draw it away, but he held it fast.

"We're not at the opera, you know," she said. "That noise isn't the music of 'Tristan and Isolde.' That's rain."

"I know it," he answered, "and I don't want you to be Isolde. If only she had married Tristan in the first place"——

"They might have been divorced in the second place."

"Don't be—don't talk that way. I'm in deadly earnest," he pleaded, but she laughed evasively.

"That was very heady sherry you gave us today."

He shook his head sadly, as over the flippancy of a child, and took her hand in both of his.

"It's broad daylight, Mr. Forbes, and this is Madison avenue."

"But nobody can see us," he answered. "Look at the rain."

It was as if a brief tropical flood had burst upon New York.

Somehow it did make a difference that nobody could see. It always makes a difference in us that nobody can see us.

EVEN Forbes felt the change in Persis. In his face gathered a fierce determination. His fingers tightened upon hers, no longer caressingly, but cruelly, till they hurt. He pulled her right hand across to him with his right, and thrust his left arm back of her, caught her farther shoulder in the crook of it and drew her close till their faces almost touched, till her eyes were so close to his that they were grotesquely one.

And then he paused. He lacked the elan to seize the red flag of her lips. He paused weakly to stare at her and to beseech the kiss he might have captured.

"Kiss me!" he said.

So silly a phrase for so warm a deed. She shook her head and her fright was gone. She taunted him from her eyes as from an unconquered citadel.

"Kiss me!" he repeated, feeling poltroon and idiotic.

She enjoyed the struggle. She was striking the first of the matches. She would watch the pretty blue flame a moment before it blazed red, then she would blow it out with a little breath from the lips he demanded.

It was fascinating to see how tremendously excited he was over the privilege of touching his lips to hers. It was a quaint little act to make so much of. He was a splendid man, brave, charming, good to see, and now he was crimson and fierce-eyed and breathing hard, trembling with the struggle to keep from taking what was so close. She smiled at him triumphantly. She was about to puff out the flame with a whiff of sarcasm, when he said, with all the simplicity of truth:

"I couldn't take a kiss unless you gave it to me. I don't want to kiss you unless you want me to. May I?"

It was such a boyish plea that she could not be sophisticated in its presence. She could not answer such hunger with wit. She felt a sudden power from somewhere pressing her head forward to his lips and her heart closer to his.

She smiled tenderly with veiled eyes, and no longer held off. With a gasp of joy he understood and caught her against him. But just as their lips would have met another instinct saved her.

She had always felt a kind of sanctity about her mouth, a preciousness that must not be cheaply cast away. Among all the kisses she had given and taken there still remained this first kiss, still vestal and virgin. And that was the kiss he asked.

She turned her head swiftly and it was her cheek that he touched. There was such a burning in the touch that the fire ran through her. Her cheeks crimsoned. She closed her eyes in a kind of sweet shame.

At last she opened her eyes to see again what manner of man this was that had conjured away all of her pride and her wisdom and her strength. Her eyes saw that the curtain of rain was slipping from the windows. The downpour had abated. They were drawing up at her own curb.

She flung off his hands with a gasp of anger and terror. He stared at her in a daze. Then he understood.

"Forgive me!" he pleaded

SHE was furious with him; but she blamed herself more, and breathed hard with rage as she straightened her hat and her hair.

An old footman was waiting at the top of the steps with an umbrella. He ran down and opened the door.

"Your father is waiting for you, miss," he said.

Forbes stepped forth into the light drizzle and helped her out.

"Good-by," he said. And again, "Good-by." But she hurried up the steps. Forbes followed her with his eyes, and saw an elderly gentleman waiting for her at the door. There was a troubled look on his face. The door closed upon him as he caught Persis in his arms.

Forbes told the chauffeur to take him back to his hotel, and crept back into the deserted nest of romance. The taxicab turned slowly round. As it passed the house again, Forbes saw another car stop at the curb. From it stepped Willie Enslee.

He had apparently come in hot pursuit. On the other hand, he might have come merely to make the final arrangements for the excursion to the country. And yet Willie must be accepted as a rival. Or, rather, it was Forbes that was the rival, since Enslee's infatuation for Persis was generally known long before Forbes reached New York.

Even so, Forbes would have preferred to make love to Mr. Enslee's sweetheart somewhere else than at Mr. Enslee's home. But how was he to fight his rival except where his rival was? How rescue the imprisoned princess but by invading the ogre's castle?

Besides, in invading Enslee's own domain he was giving Enslee every advantage. All of the splendor of Enslee's chateau, the armor of riches and the sword of gold would defend him, while Forbes would attack only with his empty hands and the power of love. If Goliath thought that David took an unfair advantage of him, why did not Goliath lay aside his buckler and his bludgeon and use a sling, too? Pebbles were plentiful enough.

As Forbes folded his togs and wished them better and braver, he paused to laugh at what Persis had told him: Willie believed that Forbes was flirting with Mrs. Neff for herself or her daughter! What a blind little ape Enslee was! Then Forbes straightened up and flushed and called himself a double-dyed cad. He flung aside the things he was folding and resolved not to go to Enslee's home at all.

He sank into a chair and pondered. If he did not go he would be left alone in New York. Only a few days remained of his little vacation. By the time Persis came back Forbes would be at his army post, a slave to discipline and the everlasting round of the same dull duties. Persis would be angry and hurt and she would marry Enslee; she would live in that home with Enslee; she would become part of the Enslee estates, body and soul.

Forbes' gorge rose at the vision this brought to his mind. He ripped out an oath, and flung off the withes of such false honor. He would, he must, save Persis at any cost. If Enslee were foolish enough to think that Forbes was hunting Mrs. Neff or Alice, let him take the consequences.

THE motor caravan was made up of three machines. Winifred ran her own roadster, nursing the steering wheel to her bosom, while her fat elbows harried Ten Eyck's cramped form. Bob Fielding had been unable to get away from the troubled waters of Wall street, and Winifred had adopted Ten Eyck as his understudy.

Mrs. Neff took her four-passenger touring car. Forbes decided after several appalling bumps that it had belonged to her first husband. Alice sat with the chauffeur, dreaming of Stowe Webb, no doubt. In the rear Mrs. Neff, in her most garrulous mood, talked nonsense through a veil whose flying ends kept snapping in Forbes' face. And when they were beyond Broadway her cigarette ashes kept sifting into his eyes.

He was as polite as possible, but his thoughts were trying to pierce the dust-wake of the great six-cylinder touring car in which Willie Enslee led the way with Persis. All Forbes could see of her was the top of her motor hood and the veil that fled back like a signal beseeching him to make haste and save her.

There was a pause by agreement for dinner at a roadhouse—"their last civilized meal," as Ten Eyck mournfully prophesied, "before they entered the purgatory of Winifred's cooking at Willie's boarding house."

When the task of fretting out a dinner was finished they got under way, pushing north again.

Eventually the pilot car, or, rather, its guiding cloud of dust, swept off to the east, turning its back on the Hudson and plunging into the heart of Westchester

CLEEK, OF SCOTLAND YARD

THE MYSTERY OF THE OCTAGONAL ROOM

Cleek and Narkom, enjoying a houseboat holiday, are suddenly confronted with a baffling case, not unmixed with sentimental emotion, in the tragic disappearance of the beautiful young wife of a famous art collector. The coincident and unexplained death of the lady's former sweetheart might have centered suspicion upon a jealous husband, had not the admirable Cleek noticed that the priceless little bronze Venus was a forgery. A parrot and a sprig of rosemary help out as links in the circumstantial chain, but it took the hero of Scotland Yard to perceive the connection.

IF Dollops had not contrived to get soaked through to the skin, while waiting outside one of the variety halls, chance would never have led to Cleek's notice one of the strangest cases that has ever found its way into these chronicles, and one invested with rather more than usual mystery and diabolical ingenuity. The effects of sitting for two hours in an overheated atmosphere, with clothes literally steaming, may be better imagined than described. After a week of anxiety, during which the whole universe seemed permeated with scents of eucalyptus and turpentine, Dollops emerged, at least three shades thinner and with a soulful look in his eyes.

The next prescription was, of course, "change of air," and this is where Fate, personified in Mr. Maverick Narkom, took an interest in the game.

"What you want, young man," said he, when he called around to see how the repentant invalid was getting on, "is to go back to the simple life—miles away from everything and everybody, and not a movie show in sight."

"The very thing," said Cleek, patting the lad upon the shoulder; "and I'll go with him to see he doesn't get into mischief. Plenty of sun, green grass, moving water and waving trees—a houseboat up the river you'd just about answer the description. What say you, my friend?"

Mr. Narkom purred approvingly. "Not half a bad idea, old chap. 'Pon my soul, I don't know but what I won't take my holiday now and come with you—if you'll let me, of course."

His great ally hastened to reassure him on this point, and the matter was settled forthwith. A houseboat was hired and ordered to be got in readiness to await their arrival, and at ten the following morning the little party set out for Hampton Wick, where the boat was anchored.

For more than a week they led an ideal existence. The boat Firefly proceeded slowly along the winding river—by day they rowed across to the green slopes, refreshing themselves in body and mind with the delights of nature.

One evening the two men sat musing peacefully in their low chairs, beneath a summer sky in which the moon and stars were just beginning to glow, when an excited scrabbling and panting warned them that Dollops was returning from a nearby village.

Two minutes later, his eyes starting, and with much puffing and blowing, the lad appeared.

"Hullo," began Mr. Narkom, "what the dickens is wrong with you?"

But Dollops interrupted him excitedly. "It's a case, sir, not 'arf a case, too!" He was evidently answering the superintendent, but his eyes were fixed dog-wise on his master, whose approval was all the world to him.

"Nothing to do with us, Dollops," said Cleek gently.

"But yes, it is, sir," persisted the incorrigible one. "The whole village—Riversley it's called—is just boiling with excitement. Well, sir, in my hunt for bread I landed up against the 'Golden Wheatsheaf.' I had to wait in the bar, and it wasn't 'arf full, either, and the village constable was there, an' I was just a-coming out, when I 'eard 'im say: 'I wish to goodness my ole man Narkom was about; e'd git to the bottom of it, you bet.'"

"Oh, get along with you, you young demon," laughed Cleek. "Narkom, he's pulling our legs."

"I'm not. It's a fac' as sure as eggs is eggs, as the chicken said to the incubator," said Dollops, growing red in the face with earnestness. "'Is name's Potter—Sergeant Thomas Potter."

Mr. Narkom wrinkled up his brows in thought. "'Pon me soul, I believe I remember him. Go on, youngster; let's hear the rest of it. Someone stolen the Squire's spoons?"

"No, sir; it's worse. It's the Squire's wife."

Cleek sat up suddenly. "Suppose we row over, Narkom, and hear the news for ourselves?"

Following Dollop's directions—for he was bound to remain to look after the Firefly—the two men struck across the fields, and soon found the "Golden Wheatsheaf." As stated by Dollops, it was full of men, all busy talking, and Mr. Narkom and his companion only worked their way through by sheer dint of force. There was a little space near the bar, and in the midst of this stood Sergeant Potter.

"A miracle!" he ejaculated. "Wot I calls a bloomin' miracle, beggin' your pardon, sir. Not ten minutes ago I was saying if only Mr."——

"Let's hear what it is first," said Mr. Narkom. "Murder?"

"Lord only knows, sir. It's the Squire's wife is missing. No one's seen nor 'eard any signs of her since the Squire left her in the octagonal room on Tuesday night."

Cleek, who had been idly tapping his fingers on the polished bar of the inn, looked up.

"What's that?" he said smoothly. "A public house?"

"Lor', no, sir," said the shocked Sergeant. "It's 'er boodwar—in the tower. You can see it there, outside, above the trees. It's all sides, if you understand what I mean, sir."

"Octagonal," murmured Mr. Narkom. "Go on, you haven't told me who the Squire is."

"Mr. Shadbolt, sir."

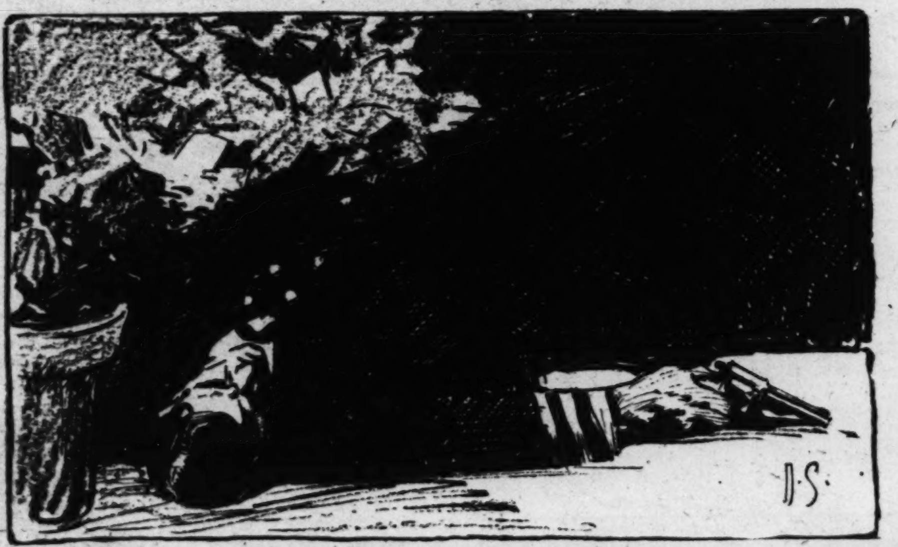
Cleek spun around on him like a flash.

"Not the Shadbolt—James Anthony Shadbolt?" he said in the sharp staccato of excitement. "The man who collects antiques, the greatest living authority on Italian art? Not that Shadbolt, surely?"

"Aye, sir, that's 'im," replied Sergeant Potter dejectedly. "The Towers is chock full of ole rubbish, more fit for the scrap' eap, begging your pardon, gentlemen, but the pictures is that old, and the furniture wants revarnishing, to my mind; but lor' bless ye, the old gentleman's just clean mad on 'em, won't allow so much as a finger laid on 'em—save when 'e's there 'isself."

"Yes, I know," agreed Cleek. "England owes much of her art knowledge to James Shadbolt. I presume, then, that there has been a burglary at the Towers."

"Lor' bless ye, no, sir. It's simply Mrs. Shadbolt has disappeared. It seems, sir, that the Squire and his lady dined together on Tuesday night, and after that the Squire drove down to a meeting, and didn't get back till late—so, not wanting to disturb 'er, you see, sir, he tiptoes into his dressing room, and sleeps there and gets dressed early and goes to early church as usual."



"In the conservatory, half hidden by the flowers, lay the body of the young sailor."

"Oho!" said Cleek with a strong rising inflection. "Is the Squire a devout churchman?",

"Yes, sir."

CLEEK pinched up his chin and nodded.

"I see, I see. So Mrs. Shadbolt is not of the same religion as her husband, then?"

"No, indeed, sir. She was old Rector Leddrington's lass. We've always called her our Miss Mary, God bless her! and so says many of us. Well, sir, as I was saying, when she didn't come down to breakfast, the old Squire nearly 'ad a fit, and they searched and searched, but there aint bin no sign. I'm just going up there, so if you'd care to come along now"——

"The very thing," interposed Cleek, as they swung off into the night. "Can you give me any little facts as to suspicious characters, or any telegrams taken up to the Towers?"

"No, sir; no letters or telegrams. The Squire thought as Miss Mary had rushed up to Lunnon and would let him know during the day. But lor' bless yer, Miss Mary wouldn't do no such thing as that. Ye see, sir, I was born and bred 'ere, and main sorry I was when I was drafted up Lunnon away from 'em all, and when I does git back again last year, I learn that the Rector 'ave been took ill and was traveling in Italy for 'is 'ealth, with Miss Mary and the Squire. It was a regular thunderclap to us when the news came that the Rector had died out in them foreign Eyetalian parts, and then Miss Mary was married to the Squire. I knew there'd be trouble, too, because Master Maurice was expected back again—and trouble there was!"

Cleek twitched up an inquiring eyebrow.

"Why?" said he sharply. "Is this Mr. Maurice connected with Mrs. Shadbolt in any way?"

"Lumme, yes, sir. He was her cousin, was Mr. Maurice Ward, and a sailor, and engaged to her. Loved each other ever since they was in pinafores, but 'e was too poor to marry 'er, and when he was on his voyage Miss Mary used to visit up at The Tower and copy some of the old pictures."

"Just one more question," said Cleek, as they neared the great house standing back in its screen of trees. "Was Miss Mary—or Mrs. Shadbolt, I should say—quite happy when she came back to Riversley?"

"Well, sir, she was a bit pale like, but then, you see, the old Rector had only been dead six months. We 'eard as 'ow it was a deathbed marriage. Still, she seemed happy enow, and t'owld Squire fair worshiped 'er. Things were peaceful enough till Mr. Maurice came back last week."

"Ah! and I suppose Mr. Maurice didn't like finding his sweetheart married, eh?"

"That he didn't, sir. Carried on something awful. Went up to The Towers and fair frightened Miss Mary into fainting—swore 'e'd never 'eard of 'er marriage nor 'ad 'er letters. That's why, sir, I think it's a case of murder, though Mr. Maurice is as fine a young sailor as ever you'll meet—but fac's is fac's, and if a young man rushes away swearing 'e'll be the death of 'em, and Mrs. Shadbolt ain't nowhere to be found—why"——

"It's as clear as daylight, you idiot," broke in Mr. Narkom in disgust. "Call it a difficult case? Why didn't you go tackle Maurice Ward right away?"

THE Sergeant coughed behind his hand, the suspicion of a twinkle gleaming in one eye.

"Cos, Mr. Narkom—'e's missing, too."

"Missing! Whew! That's a facer! Well, get on the search for him. Here's the house, I suppose?"

The great house was brilliantly lighted and seemed to be in a fine state of commotion. Servants were hurrying to and fro, and without further ceremony the three men pushed open the glass entrance door.

"Thank goodness," ejaculated the butler with relief, when Potter explained their presence. Then he turned to Mr. Narkom, who stood a little in front of Cleek. "We've found Mr. Maurice Ward in the conservatory—found him at last, but dead, sir, dead! Shot through the 'eart 'e is. It's plain to see 'ow the land lies now. He murdered the missus, and then went and did for himself proper and committed suicide!"

Narkom gave vent to a low whistle and turned to Cleek. But Cleek had stepped forward, his eyes alight with something more than interest, something other than astonishment. For, even as the Superintendent followed the trend of his gaze, his own eye lighted upon a slim, girlish figure that was stepping down the broad marble staircase, saw the flash of something warmer, deeper, come into the fair, sweet face, and Cleek's eager voice came to him as his hands met Ailsa's.

"Thank God for a man!" The exclamation broke from her almost unconsciously as she advanced across the hall with both hands outstretched in greeting, the rose color rising in her face.

"Ailsa!" Cleek exclaimed, so carried out of himself that he hardly knew what he said.

"I might have known you would come just when you were most wanted," she said, with a shy little laugh. "You were the one man I wished for, the one man I prayed would be able to come and handle this dreadful case!"

"I would have come sooner, had you only said where you were," he answered simply, releasing her hand and looking long into her upturned face.

"Yes. I ought to have written. But oh! I could not. I have been trying first to comfort my friend, Mary Shadbolt, for the loss of a dear father, and now her husband for that very friend's loss. Oh, poor Mr. Shadbolt! He is nearly distracted—if you only knew what this really means!" She lifted an imploring face to his; her eyes were suffused with tears. "Help us—bring back to him our dear girl, and restore him to his old self, dear—that is what I ask."

"I will do my best, Ailsa—I will do my best. Supposing you give me the exact details of the case, just what did take place. Or shall I see Mr. Shadbolt first?"

She shook her head.

"He is too heart-broken to do more than pace up and down her room. He believes she will come back yet," said she sadly. "I will tell you what little there is to tell. Come."

With a gesture to include Mr. Narkom, she led the way to a small room on the ground floor of the octagonal tower. It was evidently a small drawing room, all white and gold, with fluted columns from floor to ceiling, and the furniture was in exquisite taste.

"I'll try and give you the details as briefly as possible," began Ailsa. "First of all, this house, The Towers, is a very old one, dating back, I think, to the time of Cromwell, but it has been so repaired and rebuilt that it appears quite a modern structure—all except this tower, which is solid brick, and the octagonal room, Mary's boudoir, is covered with oak paneling. There isn't a single slit or secret door in it from ceiling to floor."

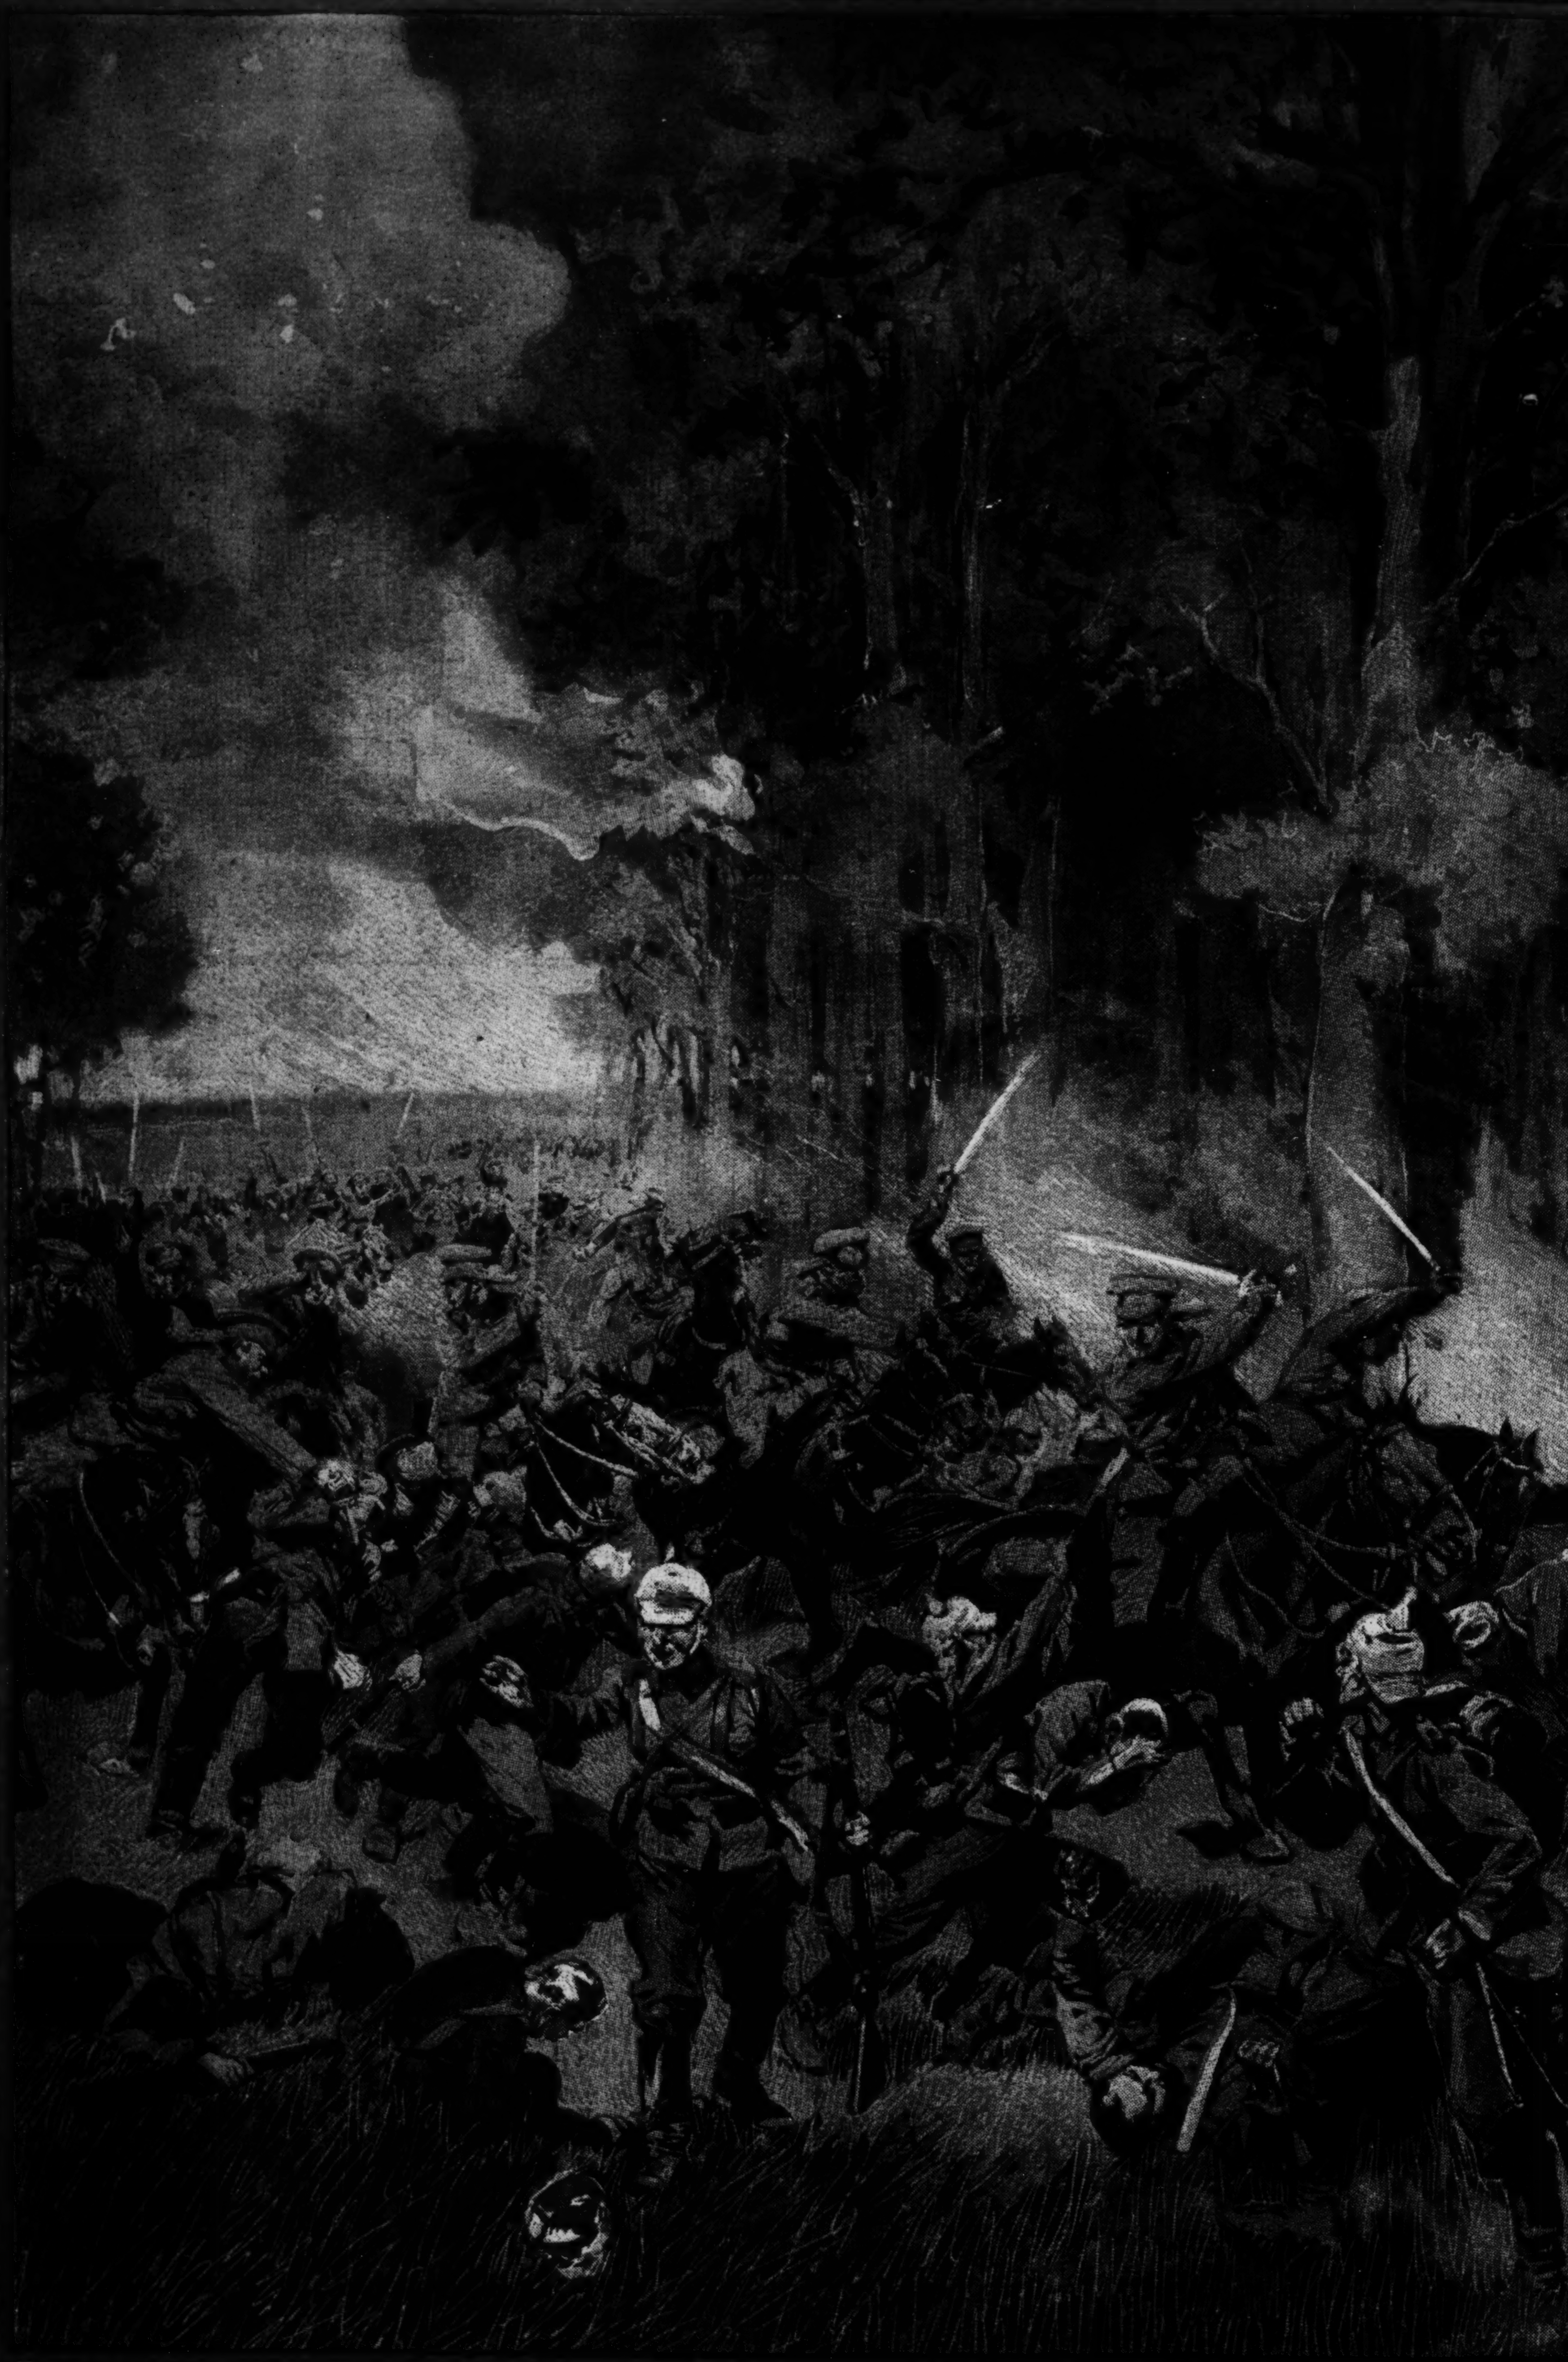
"Windows? Ah, too small. And you are sure your friend did not come out of the room?"

"Absolutely certain."

AILSA'S tone was firm, emphatic. "We dined all three together, quite happily. Mary had got quite over the scene with Maurice Ward"—she paused a moment, raising her eyebrows inquiringly.

"Yes, I heard something of that scene," he said in answer to her silent query. "Was he—violent, then?"

"Yes—very. You see, they had been engaged. Of course, it was only a boy-and-girl affair, and Mary



SPIRITED ACTION IN

THIS stirring picture was made from a sketch by Frederic Villiers, the noted English war correspondent and artist now in France. It portrays fantry had concealed itself in a forest. British infantry, after a series of daring charges, succeeded in setting fire to the woods and the Germa and cut them to pieces. It is in such sweeping attacks that the cavalry is particularly serviceable. The infantry are in close masses, unable soldiers and overwhelm them by sheer weight and impetus. The Chateau of Chantilly, built by the famous Constable Anne de Montmorency was p ays an incident that happened near the Chateau of Chantilly and not far from the famous Chantilly race course. A large force of German inermans were driven out by the flames and smoke. As they emerged into the glades an avalanche of English cavalrymen swept down upon them ble to form any definite resistance. The cavalrymen advance in widely separated files which enable them to sift through the throng of foot as presented to France in 1886 by Henri d'Orléans, Duc d'Aumale. It is famous for its art treasures and great library.
